TO GO PUBLIC
Exclusive Cabin Uses Near End

By JEFF GREER

SAN FRANCISCO — Thirteen persons who for years have enjoyed exclusive use of hideaway cabins on state park land will lose their retreats in a few weeks, the state Parks and Recreation Commission decided yesterday.

By a 4-2 vote, the commission decreed that the cabins in Steep Ravine in Mount Tamaipais State Park will be opened to the public for short-term rentals. The cabins, which have only primitive conveniences but breathtaking views of the Pacific Ocean, will be rented for periods not to exceed one month.

The action came after William Penn Mott Jr. state director of parks and recreation, scrapped a plan that would have enabled the present tenants to keep their cabins for as much as 15 more years. Mott's staff had refused to make the proposal public.

Mott told the commission that the state General Services Department has advised that the commission call for bids from a concessionaire to lease all the cabins. In turn the successful bidder could rent the cabins to the public on a first-come, first-serve basis, for a maximum of a month at a time. Minimum bid for a 10-year lease will be $10,000 per year or a percentage of gross profits, and the concessionaire will have to install a permanent caretaker in one of the 14 cabins, leaving 13 available for rent.

Two alternate proposals from Marin County residents were given a polite ear by the commissioners, but were, in effect, turned down.

Robert F. Raab of Fairfax, president of the Marin Conservation League, urged that unless the cabins could be put to some beneficial use for all the public, "they should be scrapped." He said that the original proposal under which present tenants could have joined forces, bid for the concession, and gotten a 10-year lease with a five-year renewal option, was "an ill-advised compromise with the desires of the present lessees."

Elizabeth Terwilliger of Mill Valley and companions on the citizens advisory trails committee for the Golden Gate National Recreation Area urged that the cabins be leased to American Youth Hostels, as overnight shelter for hikers. The commission's attorney advised that hostels are open only to members, thus the cabins would not truly be open to the public.

Mrs. Terwilliger waved her arms and painted glowing verbal pictures of sunset and moonlight on the shore, described the ravine's and beache's rich wildlife, and said the Marin County Parks and Recreation Commission supported the hostel idea.

"It's a neat experience to be able to camp on the coast," agreed state Commissioner Sally B. Altick of Menlo Park. But

Watergate Seven Plead Innocent

Sirica Releases All On Personal Bonds

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Seven former associates of President Nixon today pleaded innocent to conspiracy charges growing out of the Watergate cover-up.

Two of them, former White House Domestic Affairs Adviser John D. Ehrlichman, and former White House special counsel Charles W. Colson, also entered innocent pleas to charges related to the break-in at the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

Chief U. S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica released all seven on personal bond. He asked them, however, to surrender their passports and not to leave the country without permission.

The other five pleading innocent were: Former Attorney General John N. Mitchell; former White House Chief of Staff H. R. Haldeman; former Assistant Atty. Gen. Robert C. Mardian; former White House aide Gordon C. Strachan; and Kenneth W. Parkinson, lawyer for the Committee to Re-elect the President.

The entire ceremony took seven minutes in courtroom No. 2 in the U. S. District courthouse with all seven defendants present.

The arraignment had been scheduled only for the seven major indictments in the cover-up of the burglary at the Democratic National office in the Watergate complex June 17, 1972. But Sirica said District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell had asked him to conduct an arraignment as well for Colson and Ehrlichman on the charges growing out of the 1971 Ellsberg break-in.

As the clerk of court read their names, each defendant responded in a loud, clear voice, "Not Guilty to all counts," except for Parkinson who said he pleaded innocent to the two counts of conspiracy and lying during the Watergate investigation for which he was charged.

The only words that the defendants spoke in court were their pleas of "not guilty." Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski arrived about 15 minutes before the proceeding and went to Parkinson and Mitchell to shake hands.

"John, How are you? Good to see you again," Jaworski said.

"Are you in good health?" Mitchell replied.

Mitchell, who is on trial in New York on charges involving an illegal campaign contribution, looked gray and worn.

Assistant Special Prosecutor Richard Ben-Veniste told the judge that he had no objection to releasing the defendants on personal bond, although he requested that they surrender their passports and make application for any trips abroad. This is a routine condition.

A small crowd outside the court building had greeted Mitchell with cries of "sieg Heil" and "I hope you get 30 years" but he did not acknowledge them.

As the defendants moved through the crowd of about 150 people, some hoisted signs reading "Free Martha" —a reference to Mitchell's wife — and "Defend the Constitution: free the traitors."

All are accused of conspiracy to obstruct justice and all but Colson and Mardian of lying during the Watergate investigations.

Sirica set May 1 to hear pretrial motions by any defendants who might seek a change of location for the trial, move to have the charges dropped or take other legal action. Trial date was earlier set for Sept. 9.

Following the arraignment Mitchell refused to talk with reporters saying: "I have no comment at all. I refer you to Judge Sirica's (gag) order."

Following the arraignment Colson, Haldeman, Ehrlichman and Strachan talked in quiet tones for about five minutes inside the courtroom. After Colson and Strachan left the two former top White House aides sat down at the defendants table and held a lengthy and apparently very friendly talk.

COURT ARRIVAL — H. R. Haldeman, former key aide to President Nixon, arrives for arraignment on Watergate conspiracy cover-up charges. Haldeman, along with six others, pleaded innocent to the charges in a Washington, D.C. court session today.

Golan Heights 'Prewar Alert'

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Israeli troops kept up a "prewar alert" on the Golan Heights today to thwart any attempt by Syria to recapture territory lost in the October Middle East war, a frontline commander said.

"We can see the Syrian soldiers walking around wearing steel helmets and coming in and out of their communications trenches more often," the unidentified commander said in an interview broadcast by the Israeli army radio. "The traffic on their roads has been accelerated.

"In recent days, in view of the reports, we have gone into a high special alert—an alert which before this we used to call a prewar alert," the commander said.

Prime Minister Golda Meir said last night the alert on the Golan Heights was called because of intelligence information that Syria planned an attack to recapture the territory it lost in the war.

The commander said tension on the frontlines was "higher than it has ever been before.

"We are located closer to our tanks," he said. "We are ready at any moment to mount them and carry out whatever we are required to do—strike or spot counterthrusts and so on. But as of noon there has been no action at all."

Mrs. Meir said that Israel is "ready for anything."

In Damascus, Syrian President Hafez Assad told a rally yesterday, "The war with Israel is not finished as far as we are concerned. It will not finish until all the occupied Arab territories are liberated and the full rights of the Palestinian people are restored."

Syria said it destroyed two Israeli artillery batteries, silenced three others, hit a concentration of Israeli vehicles and destroyed an engineering unit Friday, inflicting unspecified casualties.

The Israeli command said Syrian gunners fired antitank rockets and artillery rounds in three incidents and that fire was returned once. It reported no Israeli casualties.

The outbreak was the first since Israeli forces went on alert Wednesday following reports of a Syrian troop buildup.

Mrs. Meir, citing intelligence sources, said:

"We heard from it that there has been a decision by the Syrian government to engage in military actions for the purpose of liberating, in its words, the area of the salient captured by us in the Yom Kippur war and that the Syrian army had been put on very high alert.

Odd-Even Gas Plan On Monday

Marin's gasoline lines were as long as ever today, but shorter lines may come Monday when the county embarks on an odd-even system of fuel sales.

The voluntary sales plan will not include penalties for violators.

Motorists with license plates ending in odd numbers can buy gas Monday, March 11. Those with plates ending in even numerals will be serviced on Tuesday, March 12, as well as other even-numbered weekdays.

Residents with personalized plates containing no numerals may buy gas on odd-numbered days. Those with personalized plates that do include numbers will be serviced on odd or even days depending on the last numeral.

On Saturdays, anyone can buy gas.

FILINGS END FOR MOST OF JUNE RACES

By yesterday's deadline for filing for most races in the June 4 election, there were 93 candidates for congressional, legislative, county, district and state seats at stake in Marin. (See page 18 for Marin and Southern Sonoma filings.)

A last minute contest developed in the Tamalpais High School District, and one incumbent county supervisor drew no opposition in his reelection bid.

Filing for county clerk, Marin Municipal Water District and sanitary district boards closes at 5 p.m. on Wednesday.

Los Angeles Area Registers A Quake

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A sharp earthquake bumped the Los Angeles area last evening, startling tremor-conscious residents, but it did no serious damage.

The quake was an aftershock of the disastrous Sylmar earthquake that killed 62 persons and caused $233 million in property damage on Feb. 9, 1971, the Caltech seismology laboratory said.

The tremor struck at 5:52 p.m. with a magnitude of 4.5 on the Richter scale, Caltech said.

The epicenter was about 40 miles north of central Los Angeles in a suburban area of the San Fernando Valley, about two or three miles east of Newhall—the same general area that suffered the worst devastation in the 1971 quake.

To observers in central Los Angeles, it felt like a sharp bump followed by a series of shimmies. It was one of the largest of the scores of aftershocks of the 1971 quake, said Dr. James Whitcomb, Caltech seismologist.

Telephone service was temporarily disrupted in Newhall and sheriff's deputies said there was one report there of "some grocery items being shaken off shelves in the market."

The quake was felt sharply throughout the San Fernando Valley, northeast to the Antelope Valley into the Santa Monica Mountain communities of Studio City and Beverly Hills, in Hollywood, west to Santa Monica on the coast and south through the Los Angeles Basin. Residents of Orange County to the south reported only a light shock.

First Lady Has No Caracas Visit Fears

WASHINGTON (UPI) — First Lady Pat Nixon says she has no fear about returning on an official visit Monday to Caracas, where 16 years ago she and her husband were mobbed, spat upon and stoned.

Caracas is the first stop on Mrs. Nixon's six-day, 9,195-mile trip to attend the inaugurations of the presidents of Venezuela and Brazil —her third solo diplomatic venture since her husband became President.

Her arrival Monday afternoon was bound to bring back vivid memories of the day in 1958 when she and then-Vice President Nixon were ambushed by angry leftist demonstrators who smashed the windows of their limousines, spat on them and chanted "Death to Nixon."

But Helen Smith, Mrs. Nixon's press secretary, said those memories do not frighten the First Lady.

"She feels that it was not against her," Mrs. Smith said, referring to the 1958 incident. "Relations have improved so much since that time."

Sources in Venezuela said authorities have established strict security measures for the arrival of Mrs. Nixon and dignitaries from 47 other nations, including armed escorts and constant bomb checks at the sites of all ceremonies.

The Secret Service, which will accompany Mrs. Nixon as it always does, said its agents were working with local authorities on security arrangements. But a spokesman added that the precautions would be no more than "the routine security that we utilize for any foreign trip of a First Lady."

After landing at Maiquetia International Airport outside of Caracas, Mrs. Nixon will be taken in a smaller craft to an smaller military base near the

Watergate Seven Plead Innocent

Sirica Releases All On Personal Bonds

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Seven former associates of President Nixon today pleaded innocent to conspiracy charges growing out of the Watergate cover-up.

Two of them, former White House Domestic Affairs Adviser John D. Ehrlichman, and former White House special counsel Charles W. Colson, also entered innocent pleas to charges related to the break-in at the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

Chief U. S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica released all seven on personal bond. He asked them, however, to surrender their passports and not to leave the country without permission.

The other five pleading innocent were: Former Attorney General John N. Mitchell; former White House Chief of Staff H. R. Haldeman; former Assistant Atty. Gen. Robert C. WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Diva Sings With Arm In Sling

Nilsson

Not until yesterday morning did Miss Nilsson decide she would sing in spite of a dislocated shoulder suffered in a rehearsal fall last Monday. She had been hospitalized until Wednesday after corrective treatment under general anesthesia. British soprano Rita Hunter had been groomed as a replacement.

The Swedish diva's first appearance on stage was greeted with a storm of applause. Never once during the evening did she falter, although she clutched her shoulder many times with her free hand.

Security Check

BELFAST (UPI) — Troops and police circled the economic heart of Belfast today in one of the city's biggest security operations ever — a bid to halt a mounting Irish Republican Army (IRA) bombing offensive.

Steel and concrete barriers closed all minor roads into the city center, forcing lines of traffic to form at road blocks on the main access roads.

Security sources believe the IRA is using women to smuggle dismantled bombs into downtown Belfast, then assembling the devices in washrooms.

No Solution

MADRID (UPI) — The Spanish government and Roman Catholic hierarchy tried to break a deadlock today in a dispute over a politically explosive sermon that has threatened a breakdown in their relations.

The two sides convened another round of separate meetings today after failing to find a solution Friday to the worst church-state crisis in the 35 year rule of Generalissimo Francisco Franco.

Political sources said Pope Paul VI sent Franco a personal message yesterday in an attempt to stave off a threatened break in relations. Officials of both sides declined comment on the report.

Busy Rights

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Robert Reford is paying almost half a million dollars for the film rights to a book on Watergate by the two reporters who won a Pulitzer Prize for breaking the scandal, the Los Angeles Times reported today.

The actor has agreed to pay $450,000 for the movie rights to "All the President's Men," by Carl Bernstein and Robert Woodward of the Washington Post, the Times said. The Times quoted Woodward as saying Redford would portray him in the movie.

Still Confined

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope Paul VI is recovering well from influenza but remains confined to his apartment on doctor's orders as a precautionary measure, Vatican sources said today.

They said the 76-year-old pontiff's temperature had returned to normal, and he partially was resuming his activities in his private study on the third floor of the apostolic palace.

The Vatican announced Wednesday that Pope Paul was suffering from the flue, his first known illness in 14 months.

Discuss Pact

ADDIS ABABA (UPI) — Labor chiefs met today to ratify a compromise with the government in what could be the last act in an unprecedented three-week-old series of civilian and military upheavals.

Leaders of the 85,000-strong Ethiopian Trade Union movement are expected to end a two-day-old general strike, the first in the country's history. Diplomatic sources said they believe lifting the walkout would mark the end of three-week series of crises, including civilian riots and military revolt, that challenged the authority of Emperor Haile Selassie and brought the government to the edge of collapse.

Oil Scandal

ROME (UPI) — An oil scandal involving former cabinet ministers may touch off a chain reaction of government vendettas and complicate Premier Mariano Rumor's efforts to form a new government, political sources said today.

They said the issue of who is trying to frame whom in the oil case may prove just as divisive as the economic differences which caused the fall of Rumor's previous coalition government one week ago.

More Bodies

SAIGON (UPI) — North Vietnam said today it has granted the United States permission to retrieve the bodies of an additional 11 American servicemen who died in prisoner of war camps.

A spokesman for Hanoi's delegation to the four-power team administering recovery of missing and dead said the remains of the POWs can be airlifted next Wednesday from the Gia Lam airport near Hanoil

The bodies of 12 other servicemen who died in the so-called "Hanoi Hilton" prison camp were taken from North Vietnam by American authorities last Wednesday.

Wilson Says Britain's Economic Problems Are Far From Solved

LONDON (UPI) — The new Labor government, having settled a crippling coal strike, returned Britain today to a full work week, but Prime Minister Harold Wilson warned that the nation's economic problems are far from over.

"Coats off for Britain!" he declared, calling for "an all-out effort by our people."

While lifting the three-day work week imposed Dec. 31 to save dwindling energy supplies. Wilson said yesterday, "We now have to face twin problems of our trade abroad and inflation at home." The government estimated the three-day week cost the country $4.6 billion in lost production.

In a first move to meet inflation, the government Friday froze rents on all publicly and privately owned homes until the end of 1974.

Chancellor of the Exchequer Denis Healey, meanwhile, has begun work on a budget expected to hike taxes for the rich wtile providing increased social services and possibly subsidies for food and coal purchases.

Wilson has said, "The sacrifices must fall most heavily on the backs of those most able to bear them."

The 269,000 striking mineworkers completed voting Friday on acceptance of a new $230 million contract and prepared to return to the job Monday after a four-week walkout.

Union officials said coal supplies started moving into energy plants Friday morning, a day after miners withdrew pickets.

A 13-week slowdown by the miners over a wage dispute led former Prime Minister Edward Heath to impose the three-day week to conserve dwindling energy supplies.

The subsequent miners' strike Feb. 10 brought the country to the edge of economic chaos and led to the fall of the Heath government.

Dr. Monty Finniston, head of the state-run British Steel Corp., said yesterday that steel production was slashed 50 per cent during the short week and would take six to eight weeks before being fully restored.

The British Ford Motor Co. and the British Leyland Automotive Co. said they would be hampered initially by a shortage of parts.

Paper Industry Wins Exemption From Controls

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Cost of Living Council (CLC) Friday exempted the $31 billion paper industry from controls, leaving only five big industries under the economic stabilization program.

CLC Director John T. Dunlop predicted the price of newsprint would rise about 15 per cent and other paper and pulp products about 12 per cent.

The metals, construction and mining industries remain controlled until April 30. After that, only the petroleum and health industries will operate under the wage-price limits.

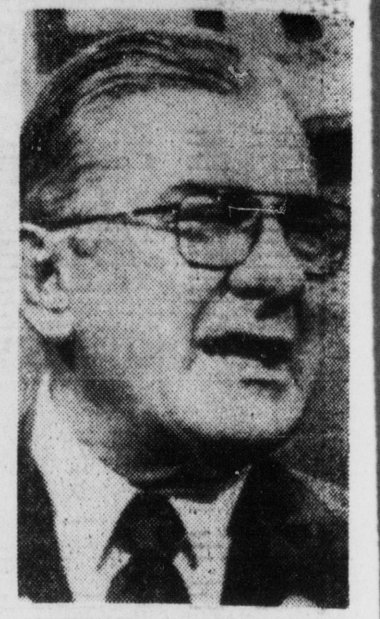
Dunlop said one factor in the decision to decontrol paper is the growing shortage of raw materials. In exempting the industry from controls, the Council announced that various producers of paper products had agreed to observe guideline ceilings for increases until late summer.

Found Guilty

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Three Cambodian army brigade commanders were found guilty today of retreating from battle without orders during the heavy rebel offensive south of Phnom Penh last month, military sources said.

Mills Claims President's Tax Report Enough Resignation Fuel

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI) — Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., said yesterday a congressional report on President Nixon's tax returns for the years 1969-72 should give the President more cause to resign than anything so far revealed in the various Watergate investigations.



REP. WILBUR MILLS
Tax return discussion

Mills said the report from the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation will be released in a month to six weeks. "It's likely to be unanimous," Mills said, adding that it will show the President owes a "substantial" amount of money in income taxes.

"The big question is the deduction of the value of the papers he gave," Mills said. "Did he actually complete the gift prior to July 25, 1969?" On that date such gifts were no longer valid as income tax deductions.

Mills, who is cochairman of the subcommittee as well as chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, made the comments at a news conference called to announce he would seek re-election to a 19th term.

He told reporters he would "hate to see" the President impeached, but he definitely thought the President should resign. He said he did not think there had been any proof so far of an impeachable offense on the part of Nixon.

Asked why, then, the President should resign, Mills said, "I can't say. I know but I won't say. You'll know about it in some 30 or 40 days."

Pressed on the question, Mills said, "If the President should have to pay several thousand dollars (in taxes owed)...those I have talked to are dissatisfied with the President's handling of his tax returns."

Asked if he thought there had been fraud on the part of the President, Mills replied, "No, I am not saying that."

Mills said, "There could be fraud on the part of somebody, but he (Nixon) didn't make out his own returns."

Asked if he believed the release of the report would give more impetus to the President's resignation than the Watergate scandal, Mills replied, "Yes, I do."

Mills, 64, held the news conference at Arkansas Baptist Medical Center, where he has been hospitalized for tests and therapy in recuperating from back surgery last August.

Mills described himself Friday as free from pain, termed the operation a success and said he was confident he could work "the 12 to 14 hour days as I have done."

Reagan Claims No Fears Over 'Botulism' Remark

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — California Gov. Ronald Reagan has no fears that his "botulism" remark will haunt him like George Romney's "brainwashing" comment in 1968 or Sen. George McGovern's "1,000 per cent" gaffe of 1972.

Reagan told a Hartford news conference yesterday, "well, I wouldn't see how," when asked if he thought his comment could hurt a possible candidacy for the presidency in 1976.

Reagan said at a private gathering in Washington, D.C., Wednesday, "it's just too bad we can't have an epidemic of botulism," referring to persons accepting food under the terms of the Hearst kidnaping ransom.

He said later that the remark was a joke.

"I made a ludicrous remark, finally, in answer to some questions about the Hearst case and I suppose I was looking for something to express my frustration with this very tragic affair," Reagan said.

"Now if this was offensive to anyone I am sorry and as I say, it was intended to be a ludicrous remark. It was taken that way and taken humorously by the people who heard it."

He made his remarks at a news conference while a group of 25 demonstrators from the United Farm Workers paraded outside the Hilton Hotel, carrying signs and changing "get the racist out of Hartford."

Diva Sings With Arm In Sling

Nilsson

Not until yesterday morning did Miss Nilsson decide she would sing in spite of a dislocated shoulder suffered in a rehearsal fall last Monday. She had been hospitalized until Wednesday after corrective treatment under general anesthesia. British soprano Rita Hunter had been groomed as a replacement.

The Swedish diva's first appearance on stage was greeted with a storm of applause. Never once during the evening did she falter, although she clutched her shoulder many times with her free hand.

Security Check

BELFAST (UPI) — Troops and police circled the economic heart of Belfast today in one of the city's biggest security operations ever — a bid to halt a mounting Irish Republican Army (IRA) bombing offensive.

Steel and concrete barriers closed all minor roads into the city center, forcing lines of traffic to form at road blocks on the main access roads.

Security sources believe the IRA is using women to smuggle dismantled bombs into downtown Belfast, then assembling the devices in washrooms.

No Solution

MADRID (UPI) — The Spanish government and Roman Catholic hierarchy tried to break a deadlock today in a dispute over a politically explosive sermon that has threatened a breakdown in their relations.

The two sides convened another round of separate meetings today after failing to find a solution Friday to the worst church-state crisis in the 35 year rule of Generalissimo Francisco Franco.

Political sources said Pope Paul VI sent Franco a personal message yesterday in an attempt to stave off a threatened break in relations. Officials of both sides declined comment on the report.

Busy Rights

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Robert Reford is paying almost half a million dollars for the film rights to a book on Watergate by the two reporters who won a Pulitzer Prize for breaking the scandal, the Los Angeles Times reported today.

The actor has agreed to pay $450,000 for the movie rights to "All the President's Men," by Carl Bernstein and Robert Woodward of the Washington Post, the Times said. The Times quoted Woodward as saying Redford would portray him in the movie.

Bus Pact To Be Eyed On Tuesday

A tentative settlement with the Golden Gate Bridge District on the costs of Marin bus service will be considered Tuesday by the Marin County Transit District board.

The proposed agreement, worked out Thursday between committees of the two districts, would keep Marin's share of the cost about the same as this year.

Under dispute is a formula which pegged Marin's cost at an estimated $351,000 for passengers who board and get off transbay buses without leaving the county.

The settlement would have Marin pay $85,000 (the same as this year) and give up $120,000 in sales tax revenues expected to come to the county from new bus and ferry purchases by the bridge district.

The transit district board will consider the settlement at 8 a.m. Tuesday at Civic Center. The meeting will begin a half hour earlier than usual because of a long board of supervisors' agenda.

Bus Pact To Be Eyed On Tuesday

A tentative settlement with the Golden Gate Bridge District on the costs of Marin bus service will be considered Tuesday by the Marin County Transit District board.

The proposed agreement, worked out Thursday between committees of the two districts, would keep Marin's share of the cost about the same as this year.

Under dispute is a formula which pegged Marin's cost at an estimated $351,000 for passengers who board and get off transbay buses without leaving the county.

The settlement would have Marin pay $85,000 (the same as this year) and give up $120,000 in sales tax revenues expected to come to the county from new bus and ferry purchases by the bridge district.

The transit district board will consider the settlement at 8 a.m. Tuesday at Civic Center. The meeting will begin a half hour earlier than usual because of a long board of supervisors' agenda.

Slayer Suspect Is Sentenced For Burglary

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Alan W. Veale, who faces trial in the slaying of a Point Reyes National Park ranger, was sentenced Thursday to 12 years in federal prison for the $995 armed robbery of a Berkeley bank last September.

Veale, 24, of San Francisco, also was sentenced by U.S. District Court Judge William T. Sweigert to a 10-year concurrent term on a charge of using a firearm to commit a felony.

Veale was convicted Jan. 30 in his second trial on the two charges. His first trial ended last Dec. 24 with the jury deadlocked 11-1 for conviction.

Veale and Veronza Leon Bowers Jr., 27, also of San Francisco, were indicted Sept. 27 by a federal grand jury in the fatal shooting of Ranger Kenneth Patrick last August 5. Bowers is scheduled to start trial March 18 with Veale's trial to follow.

CABINS

she said she doubted the hostel organization could afford $10,000-a-year rent.

She moved for the 10-year concession, public rental plan, which passed despite negative votes by Loren L. Lutz of Pasadena and Clarice E. Gilchrist of Piedmont. Three of the nine commissioners already had left for home when the item — the last on the agenda — finally came up.

Controversy swirled over the cabins several times since the state purchased Steep Ravine in 1960 from the William Kent family and added the 240-acre property to Mount Tamalpais State. Park. The cabins were leased on a year-to-year basis, mostly to the same tenants who used them when the Kents owned the hideaways. By special legislation, the leaseholders were able to hold the rent down to $500 a year, and to have a chain across the road leading down from Shoreline Highway.

State Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael, charged in 1972 that public land was being enjoyed exclusively by the small group of tenants. He won passage of a bill late in 1972 that terminated the leases as of Feb. 28, 1974.

The cabins, each about 20 by 35 feet, have no electricity and are hooked into a single septic tank that would be too small for year-round use by all the tenants, Mott said. Most leaseholders used the cabins only on weekends and for vacations. The water supply dries up each fall, he added.

Mott said that bids will be advertised as soon as possible and probably can be opened May 7.

Meditation Course Is Being Offered

A six-week course of meditation for beginners is being offered at the Community Congregational Church of Tiburon.

The course will be taught by the Rev. Francis Geddes, a 25-year student of meditation, director of the Center for Spiritual and Human Growth in San Anselmo, a clergyman in the United Church of Christ and currently in advanced training at the Psychosynthesis Institute in Redwood City.

OBITUARIES

Walter Thierbach Dies At 85

Funeral for Navy Capt. (ret.) Walter Charles Thierbach of Tiburon will be at 11 a.m. Monday at N. Gray and Co. in San Francisco.

Thierbach, 84, died Thursday in a local hospital after a long illness.

He was born and reared in San Francisco and joined the Navy in 1917. During World War I he was on convoy duty in the North Atlantic and later served as an inspector for the Brooklyn Naval Shipyard.

During World War II, Captain Thierbach served as maintenance and repair officer for Western Sea Frontier and was on the staff of Admiral Osterhaus. He also was responsible changing Treasure Island from a world fair site to a naval station.

CAPT. W. C. THIERBACH
Retired Navy captain

While serving at Pearl Harbor, he was awarded the Bronze Star. He retired from active duty in the reserve unit in 1952. Since then he and his wife had lived in Tiburon.

Thierbach was a member of the retired Officers Association, an associate member of the Naval Institute and the San Francisco Employees Retirement System.

He is survived by his wife, Lorena J. Thierbach; two daughter, Georgia Bazzano and Ruth Thierbach, both of San Francisco, five grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Inurnment will be private.

Memorial contributions to Save the Redwoods League, the Retired Officers Scholarship Fund or the Belvedere-Tiburon Landmarks Society are preferred by the family.

2,250-Acre Rezoning On Agenda

Rezoning of some 2,250 acres of the San Rafael-Sleepy Hollow Divide to allow fewer homesites will be considered Monday by the Marin County Planning Commission.

The change, recommended by the planning department, covers the ridges south of Lucas Valley Road between Terra Linda and San Rafael, San Anselmo and Sleepy Hollow.

The planning staff said the action is needed to make the zoning consistent with the countywide general plan, which designates the areas as ridge and upland greenbelts.

According to Marjorie W. Macris, a principal planner, the rezoning would reduce the number of possible homesites from 1,100 to about 260.

Current zoning for the 2,250 acres ranges from one home per quarter acre to one home per three acres. The bulk of the land is recommended for one home per 10 acres and one home per five acres.

(The 10-acre zoning is considered open space-greenbelt zoning in the eastern portion of the county.)

The commission, meeting at 9 a.m. at the Civic Center, also will resume its hearing on greenbelt zoning for about 1,500 acres in the Mount Burdell area north of Novato.

Slayer Suspect Is Sentenced For Burglary

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Alan W. Veale, who faces trial in the slaying of a Point Reyes National Park ranger, was sentenced Thursday to 12 years in federal prison for the $995 armed robbery of a Berkeley bank last September.

Veale, 24, of San Francisco, also was sentenced by U.S. District Court Judge William T. Sweigert to a 10-year concurrent term on a charge of using a firearm to commit a felony.

Veale was convicted Jan. 30 in his second trial on the two charges. His first trial ended last Dec. 24 with the jury deadlocked 11-1 for conviction.

Veale and Veronza Leon Bowers Jr., 27, also of San Francisco, were indicted Sept. 27 by a federal grand jury in the fatal shooting of Ranger Kenneth Patrick last August 5. Bowers is scheduled to start trial March 18 with Veale's trial to follow.

she said she doubted the hostel organization could afford $10,000-a-year rent.

She moved for the 10-year concession, public rental plan, which passed despite negative votes by Loren L. Lutz of Pasadena and Clarice E. Gilchrist of Piedmont. Three of the nine commissioners already had left for home when the item — the last on the agenda — finally came up.

Controversy swirled over the cabins several times since the state purchased Steep Ravine in 1960 from the William Kent family and added the 240-acre property to Mount Tamalpais State Park. The cabins were leased on a year-to-year basis, mostly to the same tenants who used them when the Kents owned the hideaways. By special legislation, the leaseholders were able to hold the rent down to $500 a year, and to have a chain across the road leading down from Shoreline Highway.

State Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael, charged in 1972 that public land was being enjoyed exclusively by the small group of tenants. He won passage of a bill late in 1972 that terminated the leases as of Feb. 28, 1974.

The cabins, each about 20 by 35 feet, have no electricity and are hooked into a single septic tank that would be too small for year-round use by all the tenants, Mott said. Most leaseholders used the cabins only on weekends and for vacations. The water supply dries up each fall, he added.

Mott said that bids will be advertised as soon as possible and probably can be opened May 7.

Meditation Course Is Being Offered

A six-week course of meditation for beginners is being offered at the Community Congregational Church of Tiburon.

The course will be taught by the Rev. Francis Geddes, a 25-year student of meditation, director of the Center for Spiritual and Human Growth in San Anselmo, a clergyman in the United Church of Christ and currently in advanced training at the Psychosynthesis Institute in Redwood City.

OBITUARIES

Walter Thierbach Dies At 85

CAPT. W. C. THIERBACH
Retired Navy captain

Funeral for Navy Capt. (ret.) Walter Charles Thierbach of Tiburon will be at 11 a.m. Monday at N. Gray and Co. in San Francisco.

Thierbach, 84, died Thursday in a local hospital after a long illness.

He was born and reared in San Francisco and joined the Navy in 1917. During World War I he was on convoy duty in the North Atlantic and later served as an inspector for the Brooklyn Naval Shipyard.

During World War II, Captain Thierbach served as maintenance and repair officer for Western Sea Frontier and was on the staff of Admiral Osterhaus. He also was responsible changing Treasure Island from a world fair site to a naval station.

While serving at Pearl Harbor, he was awarded the Bronze Star. He retired from active duty in the reserve unit in 1952. Since then he and his wife had lived in Tiburon.

Thierbach was a member of the retired Officers Association, an associate member of the Naval Institute and the San Francisco Employees Retirement System.

He is survived by his wife, Lorena J. Thierbach; two daughter, Georgia Bazzano and Ruth Thierbach, both of San Francisco, five grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Inurnment will be private.

Memorial contributions to Save the Redwoods League, the Retired Officers Scholarship Fund or the Belvedere-Tiburon Landmarks Society are preferred by the family.

2,250-Acre Rezoning On Agenda

Rezoning of some 2,250 acres of the San Rafael-Sleepy Hollow Divide to allow fewer homesites will be considered Monday by the Marin County Planning Commission.

The change, recommended by the planning department, covers the ridges south of Lucas Valley Road between Terra Linda and San Rafael, San Anselmo and Sleepy Hollow.

The planning staff said the action is needed to make the zoning consistent with the countywide general plan, which designates the areas as ridge and upland greenbelts.

According to Marjorie W. Macris, a principal planner, the rezoning would reduce the number of possible homesites from 1,100 to about 260.

Current zoning for the 2,250 acres ranges from one home per quarter acre to one home per three acres. The bulk of the land is recommended for one home per 10 acres and one home per five acres.

(The 10-acre zoning is considered open space-greenbelt zoning in the eastern portion of the county.)

The commission, meeting at 9 a.m. at the Civic Center, also will resume its hearing on greenbelt zoning for about 1,500 acres in the Mount Burdell area north of Novato.

Rain To Make Return To Marin

Today's crisp, clear weather in Marin may be replaced by rain laden clouds tomorrow, according to federal forecasters.

The weatherman predicted that cloudy skies will sweep over Marin tonight, maing rain likely by tomorrow afternoon.

Hearsts Continue Vigil For Patricia

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Patricia Hearst's family kept their vigil today, waiting for word from her kidnapers on what they have to do to win her freedom in addition to the multimillion dollar food program already under way.

Gov. Ronald Reagan urged all Californians to join the Hearsts in their long wait by making the weekend a special time of prayer for Patricia's safety.

ELSIE DRISCOLL

Elsie B. Driscoll, 82, a former San Rafael resident, died last night in a Vallejo hospital after a long illness.

Mrs. Driscoll, widow of Francis J. Driscoll, had been a resident of Vallejo for two months after living in San Rafael for eight years. She was a native of Milwaukee.

Surviving are two daughters, Elizabeth Shepherd of San Rafael and Florence Stanley of Vallejo.

A Mass of Christian Burial will be celebrated at 10 a.m. Monday at St. Raphael's Church, San Rafael. Burial will be at Holy Cross Cemetery, Colma. Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. tomorrow at the Twin Chapel Mortuary, Vallejo.

KEITH FERGUSON

Funeral for Keith Ferguson, dean of the federal government's admiralty attorney corps in San Francisco and a San Rafael resident for more than 40 years, will be at 1 p.m. Monday at Sneider and Sullivan Funeral Home in San Mateo.

Ferguson, 79, died Thursday in a Palo Alto hospital after a long illness.

He was born in Salt Lake City, the son of prominent Utah ranchers.

He attended Oregon State College and the University of Michigan Law School.

In 1917 he married the former Alice Barr, who died some years ago. The family lived in San Rafael until 1942.

Ferguson worked as an attorney for the Robert Dollar Co. in the early years of his law career, later joining the federal admiralty corps.

During World War II, he served as a Navy captain. He ended his military career in 1947, settling war claims in the Philippine Islands with the Judge Advocate General Corps.

After his military service, Ferguson returned to government admiralty work in San Francisco until he retired in 1965. After retirement he was a professor of admiralty law at Hastings Law School for more than five years.

He was a member of the Masonic Lodge.

Ferguson is survived by a son, A. Barlow Ferguson of San Francisco; a daughter, Mrs. Nancy Ferguson Dollar of San Francisco, and six grandchildren.

Inurnament will be at Skylawn Cemetery in Sam Mateo County.

MRS. TWEEDALE

Funeral for Lurline H. M. Tweedale of San Anselmo, will be at 1 p.m. Monday at Gantner-Felder-Kenny Funeral Home in San Francisco.

Mrs. Tweedale of 245 Van Winkle Drive, died Thursday in a local hospital after a short illness. She was 76.

She was born and reared in San Francisco. She was a homemaker all of her adult life. She moved to San Anselmo 10 years ago to make her home with her son, Claude Tweedale who survives her

Mrs. Tweedale was a member of the Delores Parlor of the Native Daughters of the Golden West.

In addition to her son, she is survived by two daughters, Lois Tweedale of San Francisco and Lurline Gratton of Alameda and two grandchildren.

Burial will be at Cypress Lawn Cemetery, Colma.

OLIVER MERWIN

Oliver E. Merwin, a former Marin resident and retired partner in a San Rafael engineering firm, died yesterday of an apparent heart attack at his home in Virginia. He was 75.

Merwin was born and reared in Michigan. He served in the Army in France during World War I. After the war he went into the construction business and later the engineering business. He was a partner in Harding Associates in San Rafael until he retired three years ago.

He and his wife, Viva E. Merwin, who survives him, moved from the Country Club Estates in Novato to Petaluma and then a few months ago, moved to Fairfax, Va. to make their home with their son, Oliver Jr.

In addition to his wife and son, he is survived by two other sons, James Merwin of Los Altos and Eugene Merwin of Fairfax, Va., and 12 grandchildren.

Mass of the Christian Burial will be celebrated at 10 a.m. Tuesday at Our Lady of Loretto Church, Novato. Recitation of the Rosary will be at 8 p.m. Monday at Keaton's Chapel of Marin, Novato. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery, San Rafael.

Promotions For Menist And DuBain

Stuart D. Menist of Kentfield, president of Fireman's Fund America Insurance Companies, San Francisco, yesterday was elected chairman of the board.

He succeeds the late Louis W. Niggeman, also of Kentfield, who died Feb. 15.

Menist, 59, joined the company in 1937 and advanced to president of Fireman's Fund in 1972. Menist is a former commanding general of the 91st Division of the Army Reserves, who retired from that post two years ago with the rank of major general.

He is chairman of the National Automobile Club, was 1973 campaign chairman of the United Bay Area Crusade and is a director of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce.

DuBain, 50, was elected executive vice president last year with responsibility for all property liability underwriting, actuarial and marketing activities. He has been with Fireman's Fund since 1946.

DuBain is president of the Oil Insurance Association and a member of the executive commitee of the Factory Insurance Association.

State Park Campers Warned Reservations Will Be Needed

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — State Parks Director William Penn Mott Jr. today warned Californians that if they plan to camp in the state park system the Memorial Day weekend they should make reservations now.

"Some of the southern and central state beaches are already booked solid for most of the weekend beginning May 24," Mott said. "The same situation applies to Easter week, the nine days beginning April 5."

However, Mott said reservations were still available for both periods in most other state park units and at many campgrounds operated by other government agencies and private businesses.

State park units with campsite reservations filled include: San Elijo Beach, South Carlsbad Beach, San Clemente, Doheny, Leo Carrillo Beach, El Capitan Beach, Seacliff Beach and New Brighton Beach.

Mott said reservations may be made as early as 90 days in advance at any of the more than 150 Ticketron outlets in the state.

MYRON DuBAIN
Elevated by Fireman's Fund

STUARD D. MENIST
Board Chairman

Promotions For Menist And DuBain

Stuart D. Menist of Kentfield, president of Fireman's Fund America Insurance Companies, San Francisco, yesterday was elected chairman of the board.

He succeeds the late Louis W. Niggeman, also of Kentfield, who died Feb. 15.

Menist, 59, joined the company in 1937 and advanced to president of Fireman's Fund in 1972. Menist is a former commanding general of the 91st Division of the Army Reserves, who retired from that post two years ago with the rank of major general.

He is chairman of the National Automobile Club, was 1973 campaign chairman of the United Bay Area Crusade and is a director of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce.

DuBain, 50, was elected executive vice president last year with responsibility for all property liability underwriting, actuarial and marketing activities. He has been with Fireman's Fund since 1946.

DuBain is president of the Oil Insurance Association and a member of the executive commitee of the Factory Insurance Association.

State Park Campers Warned Reservations Will Be Needed

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — State Parks Director William Penn Mott Jr. today warned Californians that if they plan to camp in the state park system the Memorial Day weekend they should make reservations now.

"Some of the southern and central state beaches are already booked solid for most of the weekend beginning May 24," Mott said. "The same situation applies to Easter week, the nine days beginning April 5."

However, Mott said reservations were still available for both periods in most other state park units and at many campgrounds operated by other government agencies and private businesses.

State park units with campsite reservations filled include: San Elijo Beach, South Carlsbad Beach, San Clemente, Doheny, Leo Carrillo Beach, El Capitan Beach, Seacliff Beach and New Brighton Beach.

Mott said reservations may be made as early as 90 days in advance at any of the more than 150 Ticketron outlets in the state.

Yorty Begins Job As Talk Show Host

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Former Mayor Sam Yorty has a new job as a talk show host on radio station KGBS.

In announcing "The Sam Yorty Show" yesterday, the former mayor said it would give him a chance "to talk back to those who have been picking on me."

Bus Drivers Have To Be Bused

Because the drivers can't find enough gas to drive their own cars to work, special bus runs to pick them up at home will begin Monday.

Predawn buses will be run from Petaluma and San Francisco to the system's main base in San Rafael, reported Bus Transit Mgr. H. Donald White.

"I'm trying to protect the public," he told newsmen at a meeting of district directors. "If one driver doesn't get to work," he said, "that can mean 50 people not getting to work."

Thirty-two drivers in the Petaluma area already have signed up, and the 45-seat coach probably will be filled up when it runs Monday, White predicted. The other special coach will pick up San Francisco drivers who will park at the toll plaza.

White explained that drivers get to work before service stations open and get off after the stations close. A few had remained open late last month, but even these are closing too early now for the drivers to get gasoline, he said.

The district has 260 drivers for its 188 coaches.

The need for a full force of drivers was clear as the district's staff reported that a count on Wednesday showed that a record 44 per cent of the commuters during the peak hour of 7 to 8 a.m. used transit.

The tally of vehicles across the bridge from 6 to 10 a.m. yesterday showed a drop to 16,885 — down from around 20,000 only months ago before the energy shortage. Last month the average ran close to 19,000.

Crowding on the district's commuter buses also has been increasing, and no relief can come until 32 more buses just ordered arrive in September or October.

Weekend traffic also has fallen. Last Saturday 56,444 crossed the span, 28 per cent less than a year ago. Last Sunday's figure of 55,240 was 33 per cent below a corresponding day in 1973.

Car pooling, however, was up only slightly in the past weeks, reported Gen. Mgr. Dale W. Luehring, with more than 74 per cent of the vehicles still with only one person.

The Golden Gate Bridge District directors also:

LOBBYIST — Rehired Sacramento lobbyist Gordon Garland for $26,250 a year. A proposed 5 per cent hike in his salary was dropped at the insistence of San Francisco Supervisor John L. Molinari, a director of the district.

TRANSIT — Referred to committee a proposal by board president Stephan C. Leonoudakis of San Francisco that future increases in transit operating deficits be financed first by increasing fares.

SEDANS — Bought two compact sedans through the state for $5,878.

SUMMER HIRE — Budgeted $35,000 to hire 35 poor high school youths for the summer job program.

Six Months Given In Burglary

Thomas Wade Ayers of San Rafael, who pleaded guilty to burglarizing a Woodacre residence, was sentenced to six months in jail yesterday.

But Superior Court Judge Charles Read Best said Ayers, 21, may be allowed to spend the time in a drug treatment program.

Ayers admitted the Aug. 22 burglary of the Kenneth D. Peterson home. He and Judy Soga, 20, of Woodacre, allegedly were seen carrying items from the Peterson home to a car.

Miss Soga was convicted of the burglary by a jury in November and was ordered to enroll in a drug program.

Judge Best placed Ayers on two years' probation.

Supervisors Will Study Health Staffer's Firing

Marin County supervisors, meeting Tuesday at 9 a.m. at the Civic Center, will look into the firing of microbiologist Joseph A. Valu from the county medical laboratory.

The hearings, slated for the board's morning session, is an appeal of the personnel commission's unanimous decision to uphold the firing, ordered last September by Betty L. Presley, director of health and human services.

The board also will consider a request that a commission on the status of women be established and review the county's 1974-75 mental health services plan.

Vote Registrars Will Be Trained

A class to train deputy registrars of voters for the June 4 election will be held at 7:15 p.m. Tuesday in Room 6 of the San Rafael High School cafeteria.

The class is sponsored by the Marin County Democratic Central Committee, according to secretary Mary Henry. She said officials from the county elections office will conduct the training session.

Reservations must be made in advance with Nancy Willner, 186 The Alameda, San Anselmo.

The Fondas Will Host Peace Party

NEW YORK (UPI) — Actor Henry Fonda and his actress-daughter, Jane Fonda, will jointly host a party on March 25 "to support the Indochina Peace Campaign."

Fonda's one-man performance as "Clarence Darrow" will open here the night of the party.

Fonda once reacted to one of Jane's outspoken antiwar views by saying "I have no daughter." Now he says that while he is not an activist like his daughter, he had protested the Vietnam war.

Bus Drivers Have To Be Bused

Because the drivers can't find enough gas to drive their own cars to work, special bus runs to pick them up at home will begin Monday.

Predawn buses will be run from Petaluma and San Francisco to the system's main base in San Rafael, reported Bus Transit Mgr. H. Donald White.

"I'm trying to protect the public," he told newsmen at a meeting of district directors. "If one driver doesn't get to work," he said, "that can mean 50 people not getting to work."

Thirty-two drivers in the Petaluma area already have signed up, and the 45-seat coach probably will be filled up when it runs Monday, White predicted. The other special coach will pick up San Francisco drivers who will park at the toll plaza.

White explained that drivers get to work before service stations open and get off after the stations close. A few had remained open late last month, but even these are closing too early now for the drivers to get gasoline, he said.

The district has 260 drivers for its 188 coaches.

The need for a full force of drivers was clear as the district's staff reported that a count on Wednesday showed that a record 44 per cent of the commuters during the peak hour of 7 to 8 a.m. used transit.

The tally of vehicles across the bridge from 6 to 10 a.m. yesterday showed a drop to 16,885 — down from around 20,000 only months ago before the energy shortage. Last month the average ran close to 19,000.

Crowding on the district's commuter buses also has been increasing, and no relief can come until 32 more buses just ordered arrive in September or October.

Weekend traffic also has fallen. Last Saturday 56,444 crossed the span, 28 per cent less than a year ago. Last Sunday's figure of 55,240 was 33 per cent below a corresponding day in 1973.

Car pooling, however, was up only slightly in the past weeks, reported Gen. Mgr. Dale W. Luehring, with more than 74 per cent of the vehicles still with only one person.

The Golden Gate Bridge District directors also:

LOBBYIST — Rehired Sacramento lobbyist Gordon Garland for $26,250 a year. A proposed 5 per cent hike in his salary was dropped at the insistence of San Francisco Supervisor John L. Molinari, a director of the district.

TRANSIT — Referred to committee a proposal by board president Stephan C. Leonoudakis of San Francisco that future increases in transit operating deficits be financed first by increasing fares.

SEDANS — Bought two compact sedans through the state for $5,878.

SUMMER HIRE — Budgeted $35,000 to hire 35 poor high school youths for the summer job program.

Six Months Given In Burglary

Thomas Wade Ayers of San Rafael, who pleaded guilty to burglarizing a Woodacre residence, was sentenced to six months in jail yesterday.

But Superior Court Judge Charles Read Best said Ayers, 21, may be allowed to spend the time in a drug treatment program.

Ayers admitted the Aug. 22 burglary of the Kenneth D. Peterson home. He and Judy Soga, 20, of Woodacre, allegedly were seen carrying items from the Peterson home to a car.

Miss Soga was convicted of the burglary by a jury in November and was ordered to enroll in a drug program.

Judge Best placed Ayers on two years' probation.

MURRAY OLDERMAN

Leapin' Lizards! This Man Jumps

THE TIPOFF:

The major league team to watch this year is the Pittsburgh Pirates because they've added pitchers Jerry Reuss and Ken Brett, a couple of winners who should push them back to the top.

Q. North Carolina State's David Thompson has to be one of the greatest leapers in basketball history. Has he ever competed in track and field and if he has, what are some of his better marks in the high jump and long jump? — Wes Overby, Reidsville, N.C.

Thompson, whose leaping has been measured at three and a half feet from a standstill, competed briefly in the triple jump after coming to NC State. In his second meet, he set a school record of 49'11'' and qualified for the NCAA finals but never competed again. He was a high school track star at Crest in his native Shelby, N.C., with best marks of 6-3 in the high jump and 22-8 in the long jump. Big question at State now is if he'll jump to the cage pros after this season, as a ''hardship'' case. He will.

Q. I would like to know why "Oakland" is not listed in the NBA standings in place of "Golden Gate." They would have more fans from the East Bay. Why not the Oakland Warriors??? — Harold Ford, a good Oakland sports fan, Oakland, Calif.

Why not the Anaheim Angels, Bloomington Twins, Arlington Rangers, New Haven Giants, Irving Cowboys, Orchard Park Bills, Foxboro Patriots, Salt Lake City Stars, Raleigh Cougars and Norfolk Squires? The truth is, Warriors owner Franklin Mieuli, who also owns a piece of the 49ers and Giants, still thinks San Francisco, and not Oakland, connotes big time and keeps the team offices in ''The City,'' as they call it.

Q. Could you find out what the Pirate intentions are for pitcher Jim McKee? Will he be a relief pitcher or even play for their Charleston farm team? I am a big fan of his. — Miss Mary, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Young Jim McKee should have big fans. He's a well-padded 6-7 himself. The young hurler came up briefly to the Pirates the last two years. A 6-0 streak last August at Charleston indicates he may be ready, with an outstanding curve and improved control, though the Pirate staff will be tough to crack. At Otterbein College, where he also starred in basketball, Jim led the nation's colleges in strikeouts. He pitched winter ball in Venezuela and is currently toiling at the Pirate camp in Bradenton, Fla.

Q. Who is the NBA's tallest player and how tall is he? Who is the ABA's tallest? Who is the tallest coach in all of basketball? — Gary Ross, Westlake, Ohio.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar of the Milwaukee Bucks and Artis Gilmore of the Kentucky Colonels are each listed at 7'2'' to top their leagues, though there's a suspicion Jabbar is fudging an inch or two (he may be taller). The coach closest to heaven, of course, is 7'1'' Wilt Chamberlain of the San Diego Conquistadors, who also refuses to be measured officially. And then, among the scholars, there is 7'4'' Tom Burleson of NC State.

Q. Now that Tommy Prothro is back in pro football as a coach, will he revive his old ideas about flip-flopping his offensive linemen and banning bedchecks? — Jordan Lansky, San Diego, Calif.

You can't say the old bridge master is inflexible. Tommy, whom I consider one of the most intelligent men in sports, will play it straight, based on his abortive experience with the LA Rams. He'll use orthodox line sets, and he'll bow to the establishment by having an assistant flash pen lights into all rooms at 11 P.M.

(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Thurmond Question Posed To Warriors

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — How long can the Golden State Warriors win on the road when their center is back home with an ailing foot?

The Warriors trailed Philadelphia 51-46 at the half but again fought through to a 106-96 victory last night with Rick Barry hitting 28 points and Jim Barnett adding 26, including 12 in the third quarter burst that broke it open.

Persistent Los Angeles also won so the Warriors still lead the National Baksetball Association Pacific Division by a half-game and a few percentage points moving into tomorrow's game with the Capital Bullets, who might be tired after hosting Portland tonight.

The Warriors are on an odyssey that is taking them to four cities for five games in six days and Philadelphia is the only non-playoff team scheduled.

Big center Nate Thurmond, meanwhile, returned to the Bay Area Friday so that team physician James J. Raggio could begin treatments on the foot. He said he would miss the road trip and would not speculate when he might return to the lineup.

"I've never had this trouble before so I don't know how long it will take me to recover. I'm going to see Dr. Raggio right away and there's a possibility I might go into the hospital so I can stay off it for three or four days."

Thurmond injured his foot three weeks ago and has played sparingly since, partly because he hurt his other foot when he had to play favoring it. Thurmond limped noticeably as he came off the plane yesterday.

"This is different from what the injury started out as. It's in the tissue next to the heel, not really in the arch. Last night it felt like a knife going through the bottom of my heel and I knew something was drastically wrong."

Thurmond said that his loss was not as serious for the team as it might have been in other seasons because young George Johnson has come into his own as a defensive star.

Meanwhile, back in Philadelphia, the Warriors trailed by 14 points in a disastrous first quarter but then produced a hero per quarter thereafter.

Barry hit 10 as the Warriors closed the margin to five, Barnett hit 12 as the Warriors took a 74-65 lead and Cazzie Russell added 10 as the Warriors salted it away. Russell, despite an injured ankle, scored 20.

GOLDEN STATE (106)—Barry 9 10-10 28, Lee 1 0-2 2, G. Johnson 8 2-2 18, Beard 5 0-0 10, Mullins 1 0-0 2, Russell 10 0-0 20, Barnett 12 2-3 26, C. Johnson 0 0-0 0. Totals 46 14-17 106.

PHILADELPHIA (96)—Van Arsdale 5 3-4 13, Mix 10 3-4 23, L. Ellis 4 3-4 11, Carter 7 2-2 16, Jones 0 0-0 0, Cannon 5 1-1 11, Boyd 5 0-2 10, Kimball 4 0-0 8, May 2 0-0 4, Bristow 0 0-0 0. Totals 42 12-17 96.

Sonoma One Game Away

By PAUL DWORIN

SAN LUIS OBISPO — Just one team now stands between Sonoma State College and a berth in the National Collegiate Athletic Association College Division basketball championships next Wednesday through Friday.

That team is the University of California, Riverside, whom The Cossacks play here tonight at 9 o'clock in the title game of the NCAA Western Regionals.

The Far Western Conference co-champion Cossacks earned the right to meet Riverside tonight with a 73-66 victory last night over California Collegiate Athletic Association champion tournament host Cal Poly, San Luis Obispo.

CCAA runnerup Riverside beat FWC co-champion Chico State, 62-51, to reach the finals, holding former College of Marin star Joe Casteel to six points in the process.

The Highlanders will have history on their side going into tonight's battle. They have won two of the last three Western Regional tournaments and last year beat Sonoma, 70-68, in the first round.

When asked if he would do anything special to prepare him team for Riverside (20-6), Cossack coach Bill Trumbo said, "It's hard to prepare for just one game. We just have to play our best."

Last night, the Cossacks (18-9) played their best in avenging an earlier 78-68 defeat at the hands of Cal Poly.

Jumping out to a 6-0 lead on the outside shooting of Tom Fitchie, Sonoma was never behind except for a two-point deficit right after intermission. The Mustangs' Mark Dekker made two free throws to break a 28-28 halftime tie.

Despite the Cossacks' almost continous control of the lead, the outcome of the game was still in question until they ran off seven straight points to build up a 63-54 margin with 4:04 remaining in the contest.

Bob LeBrun came off the bench to help ignite the rally with key rebounds and two baskets.

From that point on, Sonoma went into a semi-stall, taking only sure shots and forcing numerous Mustang fouls. In the last two minutes alone, the Cossacks shot five free throws, making four.

Sonoma was outrebounded, 38-29, but made up for its inadequacy on the boards with 57 per cent field goal shooting — a torrid 63 per cent in the second half. The Mustangs could convert just 43.5 per cent of their shots.

Everyone contributed to the victory, but the standouts for the Cossacks were Fitchie and Bill Belander.

Fitcher hit eight of 11 shots and five of six free throws for 21 points. Belander, the FWC player of the year, scored 22 points and grabbed 11 rebounds to take game-high honors in both categories.

Cal Poly 28 38—66
Sonoma State 28 45—73

No Place For Dick Williams To Go

OAKLAND (UPI) — Now that Oakland A's owner Charles O. Finley has finally released Dick Williams from his contract, the manager of last year's World Champions has no place to go.

Finley said in a telephone interview from his office in Chicago yesterday that his action had the approval of U.S. District Judge Lloyd Burke, who ruled in San Francisco only three weeks ago that Williams could not manage any other team until his current contract expired in 1975.

The owner said he had notified Williams of his decision and "Dick seemed most appreciative and thanked me."

"I'm not a vindictive person," Finley said.

Williams, in Dallas to attend a banquet in honor of his current employer, insurance multimillionaire John MacArthur, confirmed Finley had called him during the day to tell him of his action.

"It didn't surprise me," said Williams, who declined comment on any baseball job that might be in the offing.

"All the managers jobs are taken," he said, "I have no thoughts of being employed by anyone other than who I am employed by now."

Williams had tried to quit Oakland following last season to grab the New York Yankees' managing job.

Finley balked and in the interim, the Yankees hired Bill Virdon.

"We've got a manager ... and we're happy with him," Yankee Vice President Bob Fishel said Friday night. Fishel said the Yankees would have no further comment on the matter.

Finley stressed that he would not let Williams join the New York Yankees in any case.

BELTS 2 HOMERS

Tenace 'Streaks' In A's Exhibition

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — Gene Tenace is off on a streak—and he's doing it with his Oakland A's uniform on.

The World Series hero of 1972, fighting for a starting berth, belted two homers and knocked in five runs yesterday as the defending champs opened their Cactus League season with a 13-3 stomping of San Diego at Yuma, Ariz.

Reggie Jackson and Deron Johnson also added homers while Catfish Hunter and Rollie Fingers pitched three innings of shutout ball each while Ken Holtzman was cuffed about a bit during his three-inning stint. But by that time, Oakland was so far ahead that Holtzman might have been hard put to find any reason to bear down.

Meanwhile, Vida Blue, who is slated to pitch today, admitted that he is again, "seriously thinking about football."

Blue, who last played football in high school seven years ago, was an outstanding prep passer and admits he would love to take a shot at the new World Football League.

He will earn around $70,000 this season but he really sounded as though he meant business when he commented "even if I have a good year, it would be a hard decision whether I would play another year or not."

Blue said that if he decided to make a serious bid for a grid job, he would work out with a college team "just to see whether I could still do it" and then try out with a WFL team in hopes of getting a contract offer."

Rested Seals To Host Boston

OAKLAND (UPI) — A rested band of California Golden Seals hit the ice tomorrow against a Boston team that usually beats them but doesn't seem to intimidate them.

The Seals have not defeated Boston since 1971 and in that span have managed only one tie in 11 efforts. Yet the Seals traditionally score a bunch of goals against the Boston team, which somehow scores more frequently on the Seals.

A new Seal will be left wing—Dave Hrechkosy, one of five Salt Lake high scorers this season. He has 28 goals and 17 assists in the Western Hockey League and four of his goals came when the team was shorthanded.

East German Woman Leads Skaters

MUNICH, Germany (UPI) — Christine Errath of East Germany, skating and jumping like a true champion, slipped into a commanding lead last night after the women's two-minute short program of the 1974 World Figure Skating Championships, leaving Dorothy Hamill of the United States with only an outside shot at the Gold Medal.

The 17-year-old Miss Errath gave a near-perfect performance inside the Olympic Hall and scored 12 ordinals and 125.75 points.

Although Switzerland's Karin Iten was in second place before the final free run Saturday night, experts said only Miss Hamill stook a chance of toppling the European champion from East Berlin. The world title is vacant after Canada's Karen Magnusson defected from the amateur ranks to become a professional.

Valley Baptist Men Cagers Win First

Jon Burris scored 23 points last night to lead the Valley Baptist Boys (1-6) to their first Church League basketball victory of the year — a 60-48 conquest of Valley Baptist Men (2-5).

In the other game played at Dominican College, San Rafael First Baptist (5-1) defeated Dominican (3-4), 66-54, as Ron Bell scored 19 for the winners and Tom Gagen 19 for the losers. Larry Wheeler of Valley Men also had 19 points.

San Rafael On Rebound

By LEW CODDINGTON

OAKLAND — When it comes to bouncing back from defeat, San Rafael High School's performance on the basketball court yesterday afternoon probably will go downas a classic in its field.

The Bulldogs recovered from a 20-point loss Thursday night to pester, harrass and baffle Hayward High yesterday, 71-52, in a second-round game in the Tournament of Champions in the Oakland Coliseum Arena.

It was the biggest victory ever achieved by a Marin team in 18 years of play in the tournament, and it was led by an unlikely figure — guard Steve D'Ambra, who scored a game-high 18 points and bothered Hayward's ball-handlers to distraction.

The victory moved San Rafael into today's 5 p.m. consolation championship game against Amador Valley of Pleasanton, 52-44 victor over Tulare in double overtime.

Amador Valley (21-3) is one of the tallest teams in the tournament, with a lineup averaging 6-foot-4½ and containing two 6-6 players, Andy Finn and Bruce Cavestri.

Oakland Tech will play St. Joseph's of Alameda at 8 o'clock tonight for the championship, while Lincoln of San Francisco will face Berkeley at 6:30 p.m. for third place. Last night, Tech beat Lincoln, 56-44, and St. Joseph's edged Berkeley, 68-67.

San Rafael's victory was its first in tournament history after seven straight losses. The Bulldogs dropped two games and were eliminated in 1959, 1962 and 1964.

"This makes our season no matter what else we do," said coach Bret Tovani, who played on the 1962 team. "We've done something no San Rafael team has done before."

"The difference was the shooting," Tovani added. San Rafael shot only 32 per cent from the field (22 of 67) in its 78-58 loss to Berkeley Thursday, but improved that to 45 per cent (31 of 68) yesterday.

Many of San Rafael's shots were easy ones, coming after steals off a full-court press. D'Ambra, Kevin Gallivan and Mike Farris mercilessly hawked the ball, forcing Hayward into 25 turnovers. Gallivan ahd five assists, Farris four and D'Ambra three.

Hayward (20-6) tried a press of its own, but San Rafael (18-9) repeatedly broke it and scored, often on layups by Byron Stewart, who had 16 points. Stewart also grabbed 14 rebounds as he helped San Rafael to a near-standoff (41-41, Hayward) against a much taller team.

Arthur Brooks, soaring on the offensive boards, had nine points and six rebounds. Tovani also lauded 6-1 Jim Grant for his hard work underneath, screening and struggling aginst the likes of 6-7 Paul Volasgis, 6-5 Ray Jackson and 6-4 Chip Jones.

But it was D'Ambra who wore the star's mantle yesterday, as he showed off a wide variety of moves — all of which appeared to have been taught to him by Bob Muster, the Bulldogs' football coach.

At 6-1 and 195 pounds, D'Ambra plays with the utter abandon one would expect out of a star fullback of linebacker, which he was for two seasons.

Obscured by Stewart all season long, D'Ambra has been having a brilliant tournament, leading San Rafael in socring both nights (15 against Berkeley). Most of his baskets have been a direct result of his aggression.

D'Ambra scored three straight baskets late in the first half as San Rafael stretched a 21-20 lead into a 29-22 halftime margin. The game stayed about that way until halfway through the fourth quarter, when D'Ambra hit five points during a nine-point surge which expanded a 56-46 lead, to 65-46.

San Rafael 9 20 12 30 - 71

Leapin' Lizards! This Man Jumps

THE TIPOFF:

The major league team to watch this year is the Pittsburgh Pirates because they've added pitchers Jerry Reuss and Ken Brett, a couple of winners who should push them back to the top.

Q. North Carolina State's David Thompson has to be one of the greatest leapers in basketball history. Has he ever competed in track and field and if he has, what are some of his better marks in the high jump and long jump? — Wes Overby, Reidsville, N.C.

Thompson, whose leaping has been measured at three and a half feet from a standstill, competed briefly in the triple jump after coming to NC State. In his second meet, he set a school record of 49'11'' and qualified for the NCAA finals but never competed again. He was a high school track star at Crest in his native Shelby, N.C., with best marks of 6-3 in the high jump and 22-8 in the long jump. Big question at State now is if he'll jump to the cage pros after this season, as a ''hardship'' case. He will.

Q. I would like to know why "Oakland" is not listed in the NBA standings in place of "Golden Gate." They would have more fans from the East Bay. Why not the Oakland Warriors??? — Harold Ford, a good Oakland sports fan, Oakland, Calif.

Why not the Anaheim Angels, Bloomington Twins, Arlington Rangers, New Haven Giants, Irving Cowboys, Orchard Park Bills, Foxboro Patriots, Salt Lake City Stars, Raleigh Cougars and Norfolk Squires? The truth is, Warriors owner Franklin Mieuli, who also owns a piece of the 49ers and Giants, still thinks San Francisco, and not Oakland, connotes big time and keeps the team offices in ''The City,'' as they call it.

Q. Could you find out what the Pirate intentions are for pitcher Jim McKee? Will he be a relief pitcher or even play for their Charleston farm team? I am a big fan of his. — Miss Mary, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Young Jim McKee should have big fans. He's a well-padded 6-7 himself. The young hurler came up briefly to the Pirates the last two years. A 6-0 streak last August at Charleston indicates he may be ready, with an outstanding curve and improved control, though the Pirate staff will be tough to crack. At Otterbein College, where he also starred in basketball, Jim led the nation's colleges in strikeouts. He pitched winter ball in Venezuela and is currently toiling at the Pirate camp in Bradenton, Fla.

Q. Who is the NBA's tallest player and how tall is he? Who is the ABA's tallest? Who is the tallest coach in all of basketball? — Gary Ross, Westlake, Ohio.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar of the Milwaukee Bucks and Artis Gilmore of the Kentucky Colonels are each listed at 7'2'' to top their leagues, though there's a suspicion Jabbar is fudging an inch or two (he may be taller). The coach closest to heaven, of course, is 7'1'' Wilt Chamberlain of the San Diego Conquistadors, who also refuses to be measured officially. And then, among the scholars, there is 7'4'' Tom Burleson of NC State.

Q. Now that Tommy Prothro is back in pro football as a coach, will he revive his old ideas about flip-flopping his offensive linemen and banning bedchecks? — Jordan Lansky, San Diego, Calif.

You can't say the old bridge master is inflexible. Tommy, whom I consider one of the most intelligent men in sports, will play it straight, based on his abortive experience with the LA Rams. He'll use orthodox line sets, and he'll bow to the establishment by having an assistant flash pen lights into all rooms at 11 P.M.

Thurmond Question Posed To Warriors

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — How long can the Golden State Warriors win on the road when their center is back home with an ailing foot?

The Warriors trailed Philadelphia 51-46 at the half but again fought through to a 106-96 victory last night with Rick Barry hitting 28 points and Jim Barnett adding 26, including 12 in the third quarter burst that broke it open.

Persistent Los Angeles also won so the Warriors still lead the National Baksetball Association Pacific Division by a half-game and a few percentage points moving into tomorrow's game with the Capital Bullets, who might be tired after hosting Portland tonight.

The Warriors are on an odyssey that is taking them to four cities for five games in six days and Philadelphia is the only non-playoff team scheduled.

Big center Nate Thurmond, meanwhile, returned to the Bay Area Friday so that team physician James J. Raggio could begin treatments on the foot. He said he would miss the road trip and would not speculate when he might return to the lineup.

"I've never had this trouble before so I don't know how long it will take me to recover. I'm going to see Dr. Raggio right away and there's a possibility I might go into the hospital so I can stay off it for three or four days."

Thurmond injured his foot three weeks ago and has played sparingly since, partly because he hurt his other foot when he had to play favoring it. Thurmond limped noticeably as he came off the plane yesterday.

"This is different from what the injury started out as. It's in the tissue next to the heel, not really in the arch. Last night it felt like a knife going through the bottom of my heel and I knew something was drastically wrong."

Thurmond said that his loss was not as serious for the team as it might have been in other seasons because young George Johnson has come into his own as a defensive star.

Meanwhile, back in Philadelphia, the Warriors trailed by 14 points in a disastrous first quarter but then produced a hero per quarter thereafter.

Barry hit 10 as the Warriors closed the margin to five, Barnett hit 12 as the Warriors took a 74-65 lead and Cazzie Russell added 10 as the Warriors salted it away. Russell, despite an injured ankle, scored 20.

Sonoma One Game Away

By PAUL DWORIN

SAN LUIS OBISPO — Just one team now stands between Sonoma State College and a berth in the National Collegiate Athletic Association College Division basketball championships next Wednesday through Friday.

That team is the University of California, Riverside, whom The Cossacks play here tonight at 9 o'clock in the title game of the NCAA Western Regionals.

The Far Western Conference co-champion Cossacks earned the right to meet Riverside tonight with a 73-66 victory last night over California Collegiate Athletic Association champion tournament host Cal Poly, San Luis Obispo.

CCAA runnerup Riverside beat FWC co-champion Chico State, 62-51, to reach the finals, holding former College of Marin star Joe Casteel to six points in the process.

The Highlanders will have history on their side going into tonight's battle. They have won two of the last three Western Regional tournaments and last year beat Sonoma, 70-68, in the first round.

When asked if he would do anything special to prepare him team for Riverside (20-6), Cossack coach Bill Trumbo said, "It's hard to prepare for just one game. We just have to play our best."

Last night, the Cossacks (18-9) played their best in avenging an earlier 78-68 defeat at the hands of Cal Poly.

Jumping out to a 6-0 lead on the outside shooting of Tom Fitchie, Sonoma was never behind except for a two-point deficit right after intermission. The Mustangs' Mark Dekker made two free throws to break a 28-28 halftime tie.

Despite the Cossacks' almost continous control of the lead, the outcome of the game was still in question until they ran off seven straight points to build up a 63-54 margin with 4:04 remaining in the contest.

Bob LeBrun came off the bench to help ignite the rally with key rebounds and two baskets.

From that point on, Sonoma went into a semi-stall, taking only sure shots and forcing numerous Mustang fouls. In the last two minutes alone, the Cossacks shot five free throws, making four.

Sonoma was outrebounded, 38-29, but made up for its inadequacy on the boards with 57 per cent field goal shooting — a torrid 63 per cent in the second half. The Mustangs could convert just 43.5 per cent of their shots.

Everyone contributed to the victory, but the standouts for the Cossacks were Fitchie and Bill Belander.

Fitcher hit eight of 11 shots and five of six free throws for 21 points. Belander, the FWC player of the year, scored 22 points and grabbed 11 rebounds to take game-high honors in both categories.

Cal Poly 28 38—66

"The difference was the shooting," Tovani added. San Rafael shot only 32 per cent from the field (22 of 67) in its 78-58 loss to Berkeley Thursday, but improved that to 45 per cent (31 of 68) yesterday.

Many of San Rafael's shots were easy ones, coming after steals off a full-court press. D'Ambra, Kevin Gallivan and Mike Farris mercilessly hawked the ball, forcing Hayward into 25 turnovers. Gallivan ahd five assists, Farris four and D'Ambra three.

Hayward (20-6) tried a press of its own, but San Rafael (18-9) repeatedly broke it and scored, often on layups by Byron Stewart, who had 16 points. Stewart also grabbed 14 rebounds as he helped San Rafael to a near-standoff (41-41, Hayward) against a much taller team.

Arthur Brooks, soaring on the offensive boards, had nine points and six rebounds. Tovani also lauded 6-1 Jim Grant for his hard work underneath, screening and struggling aginst the likes of 6-7 Paul Volasgis, 6-5 Ray Jackson and 6-4 Chip Jones.

But it was D'Ambra who wore the star's mantle yesterday, as he showed off a wide variety of moves — all of which appeared to have been taught to him by Bob Muster, the Bulldogs' football coach.

At 6-1 and 195 pounds, D'Ambra plays with the utter abandon one would expect out of a star fullback of linebacker, which he was for two seasons.

Obscured by Stewart all season long, D'Ambra has been having a brilliant tournament, leading San Rafael in socring both nights (15 against Berkeley). Most of his baskets have been a direct result of his aggression.

D'Ambra scored three straight baskets late in the first half as San Rafael stretched a 21-20 lead into a 29-22 halftime margin. The game stayed about that way until halfway through the fourth quarter, when D'Ambra hit five points during a nine-point surge which expanded a 56-46 lead, to 65-46.

Doral Leader's Incredible Run

Combined AP & UPI

MIAMI — It is an incredible hot streak for Jerry Heard.

Heard fired a 68 yesterday and put down a challenge by Tom Weiskopf to take a one-stroke second round lead in the $150,000 Doral Eastern Open golf's tournament. It was Heard's seventh straight sub-70 round and the fifth round in a row he had finished leading a tournament.

Weiskpf, who won seven tournaments in a banner 1973 but has fared poorly in three previous outings this year, scored six straight threes from the third through the ninth holes and four straight birdies on the sixth through the tenth.

Heard had a 133 total for the two days and Weiskopf, who shot a 65 yesterday, had a 134. Locked in a tie at eight-under-par 136 were defending champion Lee Trevino and Bruce Devlin.

Napa's Ron Cerrudo carded a 72 for the second day in a row to make the cut.

More Golf

HOUSTON — Clifford Ann Greed yesterday battled through wind and rain for a one-under-par 72 and the first-round lead in the $100,000 Laides' Professional Golf Association Tournament.

Bowling

Track-Field

GOTEBORG, Sweden — Poland's Michael Joachimowski opened the fifth European Indoor Track and Field Championships with an unofficial world indoor record of 55 feet, 11 inches in the triple jump today.

Joachimowski's leap was three inches better than Russian Viktor Sanejev's former mark.

Auto Racing

ONTARIO — For the second straight day, rain caused postponement of final carburetion tests yesterday for tomorrow's California 500 at Ontario Motor Speedway.

The 33 drivers competing in the $350,000 event will try again today. The carburetion tests give the drivers a chance to tune their cars and conduct final mileage readings. Following the tests, the crews may practice pit stop procedure, time permitting.

Football

PHILADELPHIA — The PhilEagles Eables acquired standout quarterback Mike Boryla of Stanford from the Cincinnati Bengals yesterday in a trade for undisclosed draft choices.

IT'S THE WATER — Tom Weiskopf yesterday held his shoes after blasting out of the water on the first hole in the second round of the Doral Open in Miami, Fla.

NEWPORT BEACH — Former Heisman Trophy winner John Huarte, who has played quarterback with five National Football League teams, yesterday signed a contract with the Toronto Northmen of the World Football League.

Hockey

ST. LOUIS — The St. Louis Blues of the National Hockey League announced yesterday they have traded a No. 1 draft choice for 1974 for Montreal's center Dave Gardner.

Basketball

GREENVILLE, N.C. — Tom Quinn, head basketball coach at East Carolina University, yesterday was fired after eight years with the school.

Tennis

BOGOTA — South Africa won yesterday the first two points over Chile in South American zone Davis Cup tennis competition as Bob Hewitt beat Jaime Fillol 6-2, 6-4, 6-4 and Cliff Drysdale downed Patricio Cornejo 1-6, 6-2, 6-2, 6-3.

HARTFORD, Conn. — Australia's John Newcombe yesterday defeated America's Arthur Ashe 6-2, 5-7, 6-4 to give the Aussies a 2-0 edge after the first two singles matches in the fifth annual World Cup Tennis Tournament.

DALLAS — Top-seeded Chris Evert yesterday overcame a strong comeback by Leslie Hunt of Australia to win 6-0, 6-7, 6-3 and advance to the semifinals of the Maureen Connolly Brinker Ladies Tennis Championships. Sausalito's Rosemary Casals lost to France's Francoise Durr, 6-3, 6-4.

HAMPTON, Va. — Ilie Nastase of Romania yesterday whipped Jurgen Fassbender of West Germany 6-3, 7-5 in the quarter-finals of the International Tennis championship.

Petaluma Continues Good Start

Petaluma High School's baseball team is off to a good start.

Petaluma exploded for five fifth-inning runs yesterday to trip visiting Berkeley, 7-4, and win its second non-league game without a loss.

John Finkbohner and Paul Sisler both doubled in the fifth for four of the Trojan runs. Dan Solis opened the scoring with a single to drive in Mike Masselli.

Masselli led off the game with a home run and scored again in the third inning on a Jim Wallmark fielder's choice after singling.

Tomales High's non-league opener with Cloverdale was halted at 1-1, after seven innings due to bad weather conditions at Tomales. Pitcher Sam Marsi struck out 14 for the Braves. Tomales' Ken Kehoe drove in the tying run on a single in the fifth inning.

A Bad Thing Ends For Tar Track Team

SAN PABLO — All bad things must come to an end.

College of Marin's track and field team yesterday scored its first victory over Contra Costa College since the Camino Norte Conference began, and did so in fine style, 94-47.

Tom Malvino won the 220-yard dash and pole vault, ran on the victorious mile relay team, and was second in the 100 and high jump to score 16 points as the Tars improved their conference record to 2-0.

Woes For Marin In Baseball

Five Marin baseball teams had their games called off yesterday due to rin or wet grounds. Two others didn't, but wish they did.

Tamalpais and San Marin high schools suffered agonizing one-run losses on the road, while Redwood, San Rafael, Terra Linda, Novato and Marin Catholic were washed out.

Tam (2-1) lost to John Swett of Crockett, 3-2, when relief pitcher Dave Haxton balked across the winning run with two out in the last of the ninth inning on a disputed call.

Haxton had saved Tam's first two victories, and did not pitch badly yesterday, either. He, starter Jim Beckham and reliever Ethan Winterling combined for a one-hitter. The lone hit came in the fifth inning off Winterling.

San Marin (1-1) gave up the winning run on a dropped fly ball with two out in the fifth inning in a 4-3 loss to Balboa in San Francisco.

Novato's home game against Riordan of San Francisco, San Rafael's home game with St. Ignatius (S.F.) and Marin Catholic's road game at Hogan (Vallejo) probably won't be made up. Redwood will visit Richmond Thursday at 3:30 p.m. and Terra Linda will play Napa at Albert Field next Saturday at 7:30 p.m.

Redwood Swimmers Triumph

A close meet between San Marin and Redwood high schools — won by the defending champion Giants, 91-82 — highlighted Marin County Athletic League swimming action yesterday.

The league's other two meets were not close. First place San Rafael whipped Novato, 106-47, and Terra Linda beat Tamalpais, 118-44. Drake drew a bye.

Redwood's Mike Lindstrom and San Marin's Art Morrill exchanged triple victories, including legs in winning relays, in the meet at Novato High. There were no other mulitple winners in the Giants' victory.

Host San Rafael (3-0) stayed in front of the Giants (2-0) in early league standings, sweeping all first places from Novato.

Terra Linda's Tom Olund and Mike Russo both won two races and swam in the winning 200 medley relay. The Trojans (1-1) swept all but one of the first places from the hosts.

Big Hitters Miss Giants' Opener Today

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — The San Francisco Giants open their Cactus League season against Cleveland today without some of their heaviest thumpers in the lineup.

First baseman Ed Goodson caught the flu yesterday to become the 28th member of the Giants and their families to be taken ill. Garry Maddox and Gary Matthews signed contracts this week and won't play until they have rounded into a little better shape.

Manager Charlie Fox said Steve Ontiveros, who batted .357 for Phoenix last season and then .242 in 24 games with the Giants, will bat ninth against Cleveland. In games against American League teams, National League teams can use designated hitters.

Bauers Hits Homer But Sonoma Loses

Wayne Bauers hit a two-run home run over the 374-foot mark in center field in the fifth inning, and also belted a triple in the ninth, but it wasn't enough to prevent Sonoma State College's 6-3 non-league baseball loss to visiting Hayward State yesterday.

SPOT STARTER

Barr Ready For Role As No. 5

By JACK HANLEY

PHOENIX — Jim Barr is not disturbed by the fact that he is listed No. 5 pitcher in the Giants' starting rotation and No. 1 long relief man of the bullpen. But he is concerned that those assignments will give him enough work.

Since the announced starting staff (Ron Bryant, Tom Bradley, John D'Acquisto and Mike Caldwell) is set up on a four-day rotation basis, Barr's only assignments as No. 5 man will be infrequent. A No. 5 man comes in handy for doubleheaders.

A long relief man gets emergency calls from the bullpen only when the starters are dealt quick kayos. If they're dealt too many fast kayos, a long reliever or No. 5 man usually is promoted to a regular starting role.

Barr won such a promotion in 1972 and last season became a regular starter. He was absolutely brilliant for short periods. There was the time in '72 that he spun back-to-back shutouts (a 2-hitter against Pittsburgh and a 3-hitter against St. Louis, retiring 41 consecutive batters for a new major league record).

Then, last season he flipped a 2-hit 5-0 shutout against St. Louis, needing only 96 pitches. That was on April 27 and at the time Barr's record was a smart 3-1. He won only one of his next seven decisions. So by mid-Hune his record read 4-7. One of his losses during this skid came on June 8 in Montreal when he walked three Expos in the first inning, two of them with the bases loaded.

"Nothing like that ever happened to me before," said Barr. "My control always has been good. When I get beat it's usually by hits, not walks. I just got behind the batters in that Montreal game and over-compensated by throwing too hard with the result I lost my rhythm and control. When my rhythm is smooth so is my control."

Following the mid-June dip to 4-7, Barr won five of his next seven decisions and his record was an even 9-9 at the end of July. His ninth victory was a superb demonstration of control pitching against the Dodgers in Dodger Stadium July 28. He needed only 84 pitches in a 4-hit 5-0 shutout.

Then, once again Barr went into a skid.

Obviously, Barr's problem is one of consistency, an elusive quality for some pitchers.

Cagers Seek 4 Tourney Berths

By United Press International

Four National Collegiate Athletic Association college basketball tourney berths will be up for grabs tonight in Western action while four members of the Pacific Eight will end their regular seasons."

Third-ranked UCLA and seventh-rated USC match shots in a classic confrontation tonight at 8:30 in the Sports Arena with the Pac-8 title and an NCAA berth going to the winner. (The game will be televised live on Channel 2.)

At San Luis Obispo, meanwhile, University of California Riverside and Sonoma ma State will go at it with the victor moving into the NCAA college division tourney at Evansville, Ind., as the Coast representative.

Riverside, now 20-7, used a harassing full-court press to down Chico State 62-51 last night with Bobby Walters and Keith Batiste combining for 34 points. Sonoma State shot a blazing 57 per cent to upset host Cal Poly San Luis Obispo 73-66 and run its record to 18-9.

The other two NCAA survivors will be determined in first-round NCAA action at Pocatello, Idaho, where New Mexico will face Idaho State in a battle between the Western Athletic Conference and Big Sky champions. Then it will be independent Dayton against PCAA representative Los Angeles State.

The two winners in Pocatello will join the UCLA-USC winner and West Coast Athletic Conference champ University of San Francisco in the Western regionals next weekend at Tucson, Ariz.

Oregon faces Oregon State and Washington meets Washington State in season-ending games tonight.

Redwood Triumphs Over Lowell Netters

Redwood High School won its second tennis match of the year and extended its undefeated streak to 56 yesterday by beating Lowell High, 5-2, in San Francisco, The Giants' Henry Jacobson won the No. 1 singles match from Jose Ragara, 6-2, 6-1.

In another non-league match, Drake opened its season by topping Montgomery in Santa Rosa, 5-2, as Gene Lachelt of the Pirates defeated Paul Navarin in first singles, 6-1, 6-3.

Doral Leader's Incredible Run

Combined AP & UPI

MIAMI — It is an incredible hot streak for Jerry Heard.

Heard fired a 68 yesterday and put down a challenge by Tom Weiskopf to take a one-stroke second round lead in the $150,000 Doral Eastern Open golf's tournament. It was Heard's seventh straight sub-70 round and the fifth round in a row he had finished leading a tournament.

Weiskpf, who won seven tournaments in a banner 1973 but has fared poorly in three previous outings this year, scored six straight threes from the third through the ninth holes and four straight birdies on the sixth through the tenth.

Heard had a 133 total for the two days and Weiskopf, who shot a 65 yesterday, had a 134. Locked in a tie at eight-under-par 136 were defending champion Lee Trevino and Bruce Devlin.

Napa's Ron Cerrudo carded a 72 for the second day in a row to make the cut.

More Golf

HOUSTON — Clifford Ann Greed yesterday battled through wind and rain for a one-under-par 72 and the first-round lead in the $100,000 Laides' Professional Golf Association Tournament.

Bowling

Track-Field

GOTEBORG, Sweden — Poland's Michael Joachimowski opened the fifth European Indoor Track and Field Championships with an unofficial world indoor record of 55 feet, 11 inches in the triple jump today.

Joachimowski's leap was three inches better than Russian Viktor Sanejev's former mark.

Auto Racing

ONTARIO — For the second straight day, rain caused postponement of final carburetion tests yesterday for tomorrow's California 500 at Ontario Motor Speedway.

The 33 drivers competing in the $350,000 event will try again today. The carburetion tests give the drivers a chance to tune their cars and conduct final mileage readings. Following the tests, the crews may practice pit stop procedure, time permitting.

Football

PHILADELPHIA — The PhilEagles Eables acquired standout quarterback Mike Boryla of Stanford from the Cincinnati Bengals yesterday in a trade for undisclosed draft choices.

(UPI Telephoto)

NEWPORT BEACH — Former Heisman Trophy winner John Huarte, who has played quarterback with five National Football League teams, yesterday signed a contract with the Toronto Northmen of the World Football League.

Hockey

ST. LOUIS — The St. Louis Blues of the National Hockey League announced yesterday they have traded a No. 1 draft choice for 1974 for Montreal's center Dave Gardner.

Basketball

GREENVILLE, N.C. — Tom Quinn, head basketball coach at East Carolina University, yesterday was fired after eight years with the school.

Tennis

BOGOTA — South Africa won yesterday the first two points over Chile in South American zone Davis Cup tennis competition as Bob Hewitt beat Jaime Fillol 6-2, 6-4, 6-4 and Cliff Drysdale downed Patricio Cornejo 1-6, 6-2, 6-2, 6-3.

HARTFORD, Conn. — Australia's John Newcombe yesterday defeated America's Arthur Ashe 6-2, 5-7, 6-4 to give the Aussies a 2-0 edge after the first two singles matches in the fifth annual World Cup Tennis Tournament.

DALLAS — Top-seeded Chris Evert yesterday overcame a strong comeback by Leslie Hunt of Australia to win 6-0, 6-7, 6-3 and advance to the semifinals of the Maureen Connolly Brinker Ladies Tennis Championships. Sausalito's Rosemary Casals lost to France's Francoise Durr, 6-3, 6-4.

HAMPTON, Va. — Ilie Nastase of Romania yesterday whipped Jurgen Fassbender of West Germany 6-3, 7-5 in the quarter-finals of the International Tennis championship.

Petaluma Continues Good Start

Petaluma High School's baseball team is off to a good start.

Petaluma exploded for five fifth-inning runs yesterday to trip visiting Berkeley, 7-4, and win its second non-league game without a loss.

John Finkbohner and Paul Sisler both doubled in the fifth for four of the Trojan runs. Dan Solis opened the scoring with a single to drive in Mike Masselli.

Masselli led off the game with a home run and scored again in the third inning on a Jim Wallmark fielder's choice after singling.

Tomales High's non-league opener with Cloverdale was halted at 1-1, after seven innings due to bad weather conditions at Tomales. Pitcher Sam Marsi struck out 14 for the Braves. Tomales' Ken Kehoe drove in the tying run on a single in the fifth inning.

A Bad Thing Ends For Tar Track Team

SAN PABLO — All bad things must come to an end.

College of Marin's track and field team yesterday scored its first victory over Contra Costa College since the Camino Norte Conference began, and did so in fine style, 94-47.

Tom Malvino won the 220-yard dash and pole vault, ran on the victorious mile relay team, and was second in the 100 and high jump to score 16 points as the Tars improved their conference record to 2-0.

Woes For Marin In Baseball

Five Marin baseball teams had their games called off yesterday due to rin or wet grounds. Two others didn't, but wish they did.

Tamalpais and San Marin high schools suffered agonizing one-run losses on the road, while Redwood, San Rafael, Terra Linda, Novato and Marin Catholic were washed out.

Tam (2-1) lost to John Swett of Crockett, 3-2, when relief pitcher Dave Haxton balked across the winning run with two out in the last of the ninth inning on a disputed call.

Haxton had saved Tam's first two victories, and did not pitch badly yesterday, either. He, starter Jim Beckham and reliever Ethan Winterling combined for a one-hitter. The lone hit came in the fifth inning off Winterling.

San Marin (1-1) gave up the winning run on a dropped fly ball with two out in the fifth inning in a 4-3 loss to Balboa in San Francisco.

Novato's home game against Riordan of San Francisco, San Rafael's home game with St. Ignatius (S.F.) and Marin Catholic's road game at Hogan (Vallejo) probably won't be made up. Redwood will visit Richmond Thursday at 3:30 p.m. and Terra Linda will play Napa at Albert Field next Saturday at 7:30 p.m.

Big Hitters Miss Giants' Opener Today

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — The San Francisco Giants open their Cactus League season against Cleveland today without some of their heaviest thumpers in the lineup.

First baseman Ed Goodson caught the flu yesterday to become the 28th member of the Giants and their families to be taken ill. Garry Maddox and Gary Matthews signed contracts this week and won't play until they have rounded into a little better shape.

Manager Charlie Fox said Steve Ontiveros, who batted .357 for Phoenix last season and then .242 in 24 games with the Giants, will bat ninth against Cleveland. In games against American League teams, National League teams can use designated hitters.

Redwood Swimmers Triumph

A close meet between San Marin and Redwood high schools — won by the defending champion Giants, 91-82 — highlighted Marin County Athletic League swimming action yesterday.

The league's other two meets were not close. First place San Rafael whipped Novato, 106-47, and Terra Linda beat Tamalpais, 118-44. Drake drew a bye.

Redwood's Mike Lindstrom and San Marin's Art Morrill exchanged triple victories, including legs in winning relays, in the meet at Novato High. There were no other mulitple winners in the Giants' victory.

Host San Rafael (3-0) stayed in front of the Giants (2-0) in early league standings, sweeping all first places from Novato.

Terra Linda's Tom Olund and Mike Russo both won two races and swam in the winning 200 medley relay. The Trojans (1-1) swept all but one of the first places from the hosts.

Bauers Hits Homer But Sonoma Loses

Wayne Bauers hit a two-run home run over the 374-foot mark in center field in the fifth inning, and also belted a triple in the ninth, but it wasn't enough to prevent Sonoma State College's 6-3 non-league baseball loss to visiting Hayward State yesterday.

SPOT STARTER

Barr Ready For Role As No. 5

By JACK HANLEY

PHOENIX — Jim Barr is not disturbed by the fact that he is listed No. 5 pitcher in the Giants' starting rotation and No. 1 long relief man of the bullpen. But he is concerned that those assignments will give him enough work.

Since the announced starting staff (Ron Bryant, Tom Bradley, John D'Acquisto and Mike Caldwell) is set up on a four-day rotation basis, Barr's only assignments as No. 5 man will be infrequent. A No. 5 man comes in handy for doubleheaders.

A long relief man gets emergency calls from the bullpen only when the starters are dealt quick kayos. If they're dealt too many fast kayos, a long reliever or No. 5 man usually is promoted to a regular starting role.

Barr won such a promotion in 1972 and last season became a regular starter. He was absolutely brilliant for short periods. There was the time in '72 that he spun back-to-back shutouts (a 2-hitter against Pittsburgh and a 3-hitter against St. Louis, retiring 41 consecutive batters for a new major league record).

Then, last season he flipped a 2-hit 5-0 shutout against St. Louis, needing only 96 pitches. That was on April 27 and at the time Barr's record was a smart 3-1. He won only one of his next seven decisions. So by mid-Hune his record read 4-7. One of his losses during this skid came on June 8 in Montreal when he walked three Expos in the first inning, two of them with the bases loaded.

"Nothing like that ever happened to me before," said Barr. "My control always has been good. When I get beat it's usually by hits, not walks. I just got behind the batters in that Montreal game and over-compensated by throwing too hard with the result I lost my rhythm and control. When my rhythm is smooth so is my control."

Following the mid-June dip to 4-7, Barr won five of his next seven decisions and his record was an even 9-9 at the end of July. His ninth victory was a superb demonstration of control pitching against the Dodgers in Dodger Stadium July 28. He needed only 84 pitches in a 4-hit 5-0 shutout.

Then, once again Barr went into a skid.

Obviously, Barr's problem is one of consistency, an elusive quality for some pitchers.

Cagers Seek 4 Tourney Berths

By United Press International

Four National Collegiate Athletic Association college basketball tourney berths will be up for grabs tonight in Western action while four members of the Pacific Eight will end their regular seasons."

Third-ranked UCLA and seventh-rated USC match shots in a classic confrontation tonight at 8:30 in the Sports Arena with the Pac-8 title and an NCAA berth going to the winner. (The game will be televised live on Channel 2.)

At San Luis Obispo, meanwhile, University of California Riverside and Sonoma ma State will go at it with the victor moving into the NCAA college division tourney at Evansville, Ind., as the Coast representative.

Riverside, now 20-7, used a harassing full-court press to down Chico State 62-51 last night with Bobby Walters and Keith Batiste combining for 34 points. Sonoma State shot a blazing 57 per cent to upset host Cal Poly San Luis Obispo 73-66 and run its record to 18-9.

The other two NCAA survivors will be determined in first-round NCAA action at Pocatello, Idaho, where New Mexico will face Idaho State in a battle between the Western Athletic Conference and Big Sky champions. Then it will be independent Dayton against PCAA representative Los Angeles State.

The two winners in Pocatello will join the UCLA-USC winner and West Coast Athletic Conference champ University of San Francisco in the Western regionals next weekend at Tucson, Ariz.

Oregon faces Oregon State and Washington meets Washington State in season-ending games tonight.

Redwood Triumphs Over Lowell Netters

Redwood High School won its second tennis match of the year and extended its undefeated streak to 56 yesterday by beating Lowell High, 5-2, in San Francisco. The Giants' Henry Jacobson won the No. 1 singles match from Jose Ragara, 6-2, 6-1.

In another non-league match, Drake opened its season by topping Montgomery in Santa Rosa, 5-2, as Gene Lachelt of the Pirates defeated Paul Navarin in first singles, 6-1, 6-3.

BOWLING NOTES

Singelmann Leader In 2 Houses

Bowler Rolf Singelmann gets around.

Examples: he recorded the top three-game series scores this week at both Country Club Bowl in San Rafael and Nave Lanes in Ignacio.

At Country Club Thursday, he bowled a 220-201-235—656 in the Guys and Dolls League. Singelmann recorded a 256-235-175—666 at Nave Lanes Friday night in the Moose League.

Singelmann, who has been without a right arm since childhood, is a custodian at Coleman School in San Rafael. He has a 187 average.

ACTION CONCLUDES this weekend in the 26th annual Marin County Bowling Association Tournament.

Bowlers compete today at 7 p.m. and tomorrow at 12:30, 3 and 6:30 p.m. Nave Lanes hosts the singles and doubles. Greenbrae has the team event.

Shortstop Pitches In Marin Win

REDWOOD CITY — A number of other strange things went on, so it hardly seemed odd that College of Marin's baseball victory yesterday was saved by the pitching of the shortstop.

Greg Mazeres moved over to the mound in the ninth inning and, after surrendering a two-run double, struck out the last two men to preserve a 9-8 Camino Norte Conference triumph over Canada College.

The game lasted four hours, and featured 19 hits, 20 walks and nine errors. Marin's four-run rally in the top of the ninth, which included a run-scoring double by Mazeres and an RBI single by Don Bianchini, provided enough isnurance to withstand Canada's five-run uprising in the bottom half.

Southern Cal Swimmers Lead; Record Broken

SEATTLE (UPI) — Despite a victorious performance by three Marin swimmers in the 800-yard freestyle relay, the University of Washington yielded the lead to Southern California and the headlines to Stanford yesterday.

John Hencken of Stanford set an American record of 56.23 seconds in the 100-yard breaststroke last night in the Pacific-8 swimming and diving championships.

USC took over the team lead with 264 points as Washington, the first-day leader, fell to third with 210. UCLa moved into second at 237.

That occurred despite the Huskies' narrow victory over USC in the 800 free relay, 6:47.27 to 6:47.58.

Doug Northway, Robin Backhaus and Rick DeMont, the Marin Aquatic Club's three Olympians, swam on the Washington relay team, along with Stan Carper.

Roger Dodger

PEBBLE BEACH (UPI) — Race car owner Roger Penske, after hooking a shot into the Pacific Ocean, was told by golf pro Dave Marr: "Roger, race drivers always turn left."

USC took over the team lead with 264 points as Washington, the first-day leader, fell to third with 210. UCLa moved into second at 237.

That occurred despite the Huskies' narrow victory over USC in the 800 free relay, 6:47.27 to 6:47.58.

Doug Northway, Robin Backhaus and Rick DeMont, the Marin Aquatic Club's three Olympians, swam on the Washington relay team, along with Stan Carper.

PASSENGER CAR TIRE GUARANTEE

Montgomery Ward guarantees each of its passenger car tires for a specified number of miles when used on passenger cars or station wagons, except taxis. If your tire does not give you this mileage because of:

- defects in material or workmanship,
- normal road hazard failure,
- premature tread wearout (2/32 inches or less remaining);

Montgomery Ward will:

1. During the first 10% of guaranteed mileage, replace the tire free.
2. During the remaining guaranteed mileage, replace it for a prorata charge based on mileage used.

Nail punctures repaired free during the entire guaranteed mileage.

Charge after first 10% of guaranteed mileage based on selling price in effect at the time of return at branch to which returned, including federal excise tax.

Passenger tires used on taxicabs, and motor vehicles other than passenger cars are guaranteed on the same basis against defects in materials and workmanship only.

WEEK IN BUSINESS

Market Makes Good Comeback

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stock prices rallied in stepped up trading on the New York Stock Exchange this week as Wall Street expressed optimism that the Arab oil embargo is nearly over.

With motor tourism, glamor and oil stocks leading the upswing, the Dow Jones industrial average rose 26.13 to 878.05. The gain was highlighted by a 19.24-point advance on Tuesday when the Saudi Arabian oil minister said the oil embargo had served its purpose, and should be lifted. It was the biggest single gain by the Dow in two months.

Although the rest of the week produced baffling contradictions on when, where and if Arab oil ministers would meet to discuss the ending of the oil stoppage, investors maintained their high hopes.

On Thursday, however, those hopes seemingly were dealt a blow by reports the Arabs might not necessarily agree on a joint resolution to lift the embargo. Further, Arab sources differed as to the time and place of a planned meeting to discuss the lifting of the embargo. The Dow suffered its

WEEK IN BUSINESS

Market Makes Good Comeback

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stock prices rallied in stepped up trading on the New York Stock Exchange this week as Wall Street expressed optimism that the Arab oil embargo is nearly over.

With motor tourism, glamor and oil stocks leading the upswing, the Dow Jones industrial average rose 26.13 to 878.05. The gain was highlighted by a 19.24-point advance on Tuesday when the Saudi Arabian oil minister said the oil embargo had served its purpose, and should be lifted. It was the biggest single gain by the Dow in two months.

Although the rest of the week produced baffling contradictions on when, where and if Arab oil ministers would meet to discuss the ending of the oil stoppage, investors maintained their high hopes.

On Thursday, however, those hopes seemingly were dealt a blow by reports the Arabs might not necessarily agree on a joint resolution to lift the embargo. Further, Arab sources differed as to the time and place of a planned meeting to discuss the lifting of the embargo. The Dow suffered its only loss of the week that day, tumbling 10.79 points.

WEEK IN BUSINESS

The latest reports, coming after the close Friday, indicated the meeting of Arab oil ministers, originally set for this Sunday, will begin next Wednesday in Tripoli, rather than Cairo. And there were signs of strong opposition in some Arab quarters to lifting the embargo at this time.

Since the beginning of the year, the Arab oil embargo has been Wall Street's most sensitive issue.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index climbed 2.39 to 97.78. The NYSE index added 1.38 to 52.38.

There were 1,238 gainers, 562 losers, among the 1,992 issues traded.

Volume picked up to 84,121,130 shares from 74,041,650 a week earlier, and 79,911,243 the year before.

Motor tourism stocks and auto makers dominated the week's active list, profiting from Wall Street's hopes Arab oil is on the way. Many of these issues have been hard hit since the oil embargo began late in 1973.

Ramada Inns, the volume leader, climbed 2 ¼ to 7 ⅞ on 1,310,500 shares. Howard Johnson was second, ahead 2 ½ to 11 ½ on 1,294,400 shares, and Walt Disney (ex-dividend) followed, spurting 8 ⅜ to 51 ⅞ on 940,400 shares.

Other active gainers in the group included Holiday Inns, up 3 ½, General Motors 2 ⅝, Ponderosa Systems 3, Ford 3 ¾, McDonald's Corp. 3 ¾, Ryder System 3, and Harrah's 2 ⅛.

Glamors were strong. Burroughs rose 9 ⅝, Johnson & Johnson 6 ¼, Polaroid 5 ⅞, Halliburton (ex-dividend) and Xerox 5 ¾ apiece, Upjohn 5 ¼, and Digital Equipment 4 ⅝.

Commercial Solvents, the target of two rival tender offers, added 3 ⅝. Beker Industries first offered $26.50 a share to Commercial Solvents shareholders, later exceeded by International Minerals & Chemical's offer of $30 a share.

MUTUAL FUNDS

NEW YORK (UPI) — Weekly Investing Companies showing the high, low, closing bid prices and net change from last week's close as quoted by the NASD Inc.

WEEK IN BUSINESS

only loss of the week that day, tumbling 10.79 points.

The latest reports, coming after the close Friday, indicated the meeting of Arab oil ministers, originally set for this Sunday, will begin next Wednesday in Tripoli, rather than Cairo. And there were signs of strong opposition in some Arab quarters to lifting the embargo at this time.

Since the beginning of the year, the Arab oil embargo has been Wall Street's most sensitive issue.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index climbed 2.39 to 97.78. The NYSE index added 1.38 to 52.38.

There were 1,238 gainers, 562 losers, among the 1,992 issues traded.

Volume picked up to 84,121,130 shares from 74,041,650 a week earlier, and 79,911,243 the year before.

Motor tourism stocks and auto makers dominated the week's active list, profiting from Wall Street's hopes Arab oil is on the way. Many of these issues have been hard hit since the oil embargo began late in 1973.

Ramada Inns, the volume leader, climbed 2 ¼ to 7 ⅞ on 1,310,500 shares. Howard Johnson was second, ahead 2 ½ to 11 ½ on 1,294,400 shares, and Walt Disney (ex-dividend) followed, spurting 8 ⅜ to 51 ⅞ on 940,400 shares.

Other active gainers in the group included Holiday Inns, up 3 ½, General Motors 2 ⅝, Ponderosa Systems 3, Ford 3 ¾, McDonald's Corp. 3 ¾, Ryder System 3, and Harrah's 2 ⅛.

Glamors were strong. Burroughs rose 9 ⅝, Johnson & Johnson 6 ¼, Polaroid 5 ⅞, Halliburton (ex-dividend) and Xerox 5 ¾ apiece, Upjohn 5 ¼, and Digital Equipment 4 ⅝.

Commercial Solvents, the target of two rival tender offers, added 3 ⅝. Beker Industries first offered $26.50 a share to Commercial Solvents shareholders, later exceeded by International Minerals & Chemical's offer of $30 a share.

Sausalito Condominium Decision Is Delayed

Sausalito planning commissioners heeding the wishes of tenants, have postponed until March 20 a decision on requests by two firms to convert their apartments into condominiums.

Asking for the conversions at a planning commision meting Wednesday were the J. H. Snyder Co., owner of the 90-unit Ardilla Towers apartments on Rodeo Avenue, and Kettco Management Corp. owner of the 78-unit Anchorage apartments on Butte Street.

Tenants of the buildings packed council chambers and won a delay when they asked for more information from the two companies on the cost of the proposed condominiums and the length of time they would be given to find other housing if they choose not to buy their apartments.

Commissioners told representatives of the owners to meet with tenants to answer the questions before the March 20 session, according to Planning Director Herb Case.

The population of the Caracas metropolitan area in Venezuela is over 2 million.

Reasons Behind Women's Clubs' Golden Gate Federation Resignations

By BETTY FROST

Three long-established Marin women's clubs have resigned from the Golden Gate District of California Federated Women's Clubs, and a fourth club is considering leaving the federation.

Four other county affiliates remain firmly in the federation fold, and Martha Thomson of Sausalito has just accepted the nomination as first vice president of the Golden Gate District.

Mrs. Thomson is a past president of the Sausalito Woman's Club which has voted to go it alone, however she also belongs to the Marin Legislative Council which is standing firm in the federation.

What is behind these differences of opinion?

SAUSALITO WOMAN'S Club, the Outdoor Art Club of Mill Valley, and the San Rafael Improvement Club are finding it increasingly difficult to maintain their clubhouses and grounds. The expense of membership in the federation entered into their decision-making.

Sausalito Woman's Club also decided to put the total efforts of the 250 membership into a program of specific assistance to the library, schools and city government of Sausalito.

Mrs. Thomson maintains that this kind of community service is very much in keeping with the purposes of the California federation. "I feel very strongly about the unity of women working together," she said. "I feel, for instance, that only by working with other women's clubs, were we able to get the bicycle path from Marin City to Sausalito."

The Outdoor Art Club, dedicated to conservation and cultural programs, is continually burdened with the responsibility of keeping its handsome clubhouse designed by architect Bernard Maybeck in 1902 in good repair

The federation fee, now raised from $1 to $1.50 per member per year, they decided would be put to better use for other needs. A contest for designing a president's pin to replace the federation pin is now under way.

The San Rafael Improvement Club, founded in 1902, is housed in a building which was used in the 1915 San Francisco Exposition. The membership considered dropping out of the federation at the February meeting. Mrs. Ragnar Thaning, president, says "I doubt that we will go out. It is good to have a parent organization." However she admits to some dissatisfaction with the three-county Golden Gate Council, which she avers gives unequal representation to Marin. San Mateo County and San Francisco City and County are also included.

THE TAMALPAIS Centre Women's Club has left the federation "because they don't represent us, the dues are raised, and it is costing us a lot to go to San Francisco for the meetings." Mrs. Alva N. Nipper is president.

Clubs which seem to be satisfied with the status quo are the Novato Federated Women's Club, Corte Madera Improvement Club, the Larkspur Women's Club and the Marin Legislative Council in San Anselmo.

Those who are discontent also cited "busy work" — making reports and keeping scrapbooks, and arranging yearly conventions which they complain involve more social exchange than serious endeavor.

The California Federation of Women's Clubs was founded in Los Angeles in 1900, and affiliated with the national General Federation of Women's Clubs. The Golden Gate District was formed 18 years ago. Before that Marin clubs were joined in an all-Marin Alliance, and a return to a Marin-oriented district has advocates among Marin clubwomen today.

With the growth of Marin County, many of the women's organizations see more responsibilities here at home.

Others find that primary concerns such as ecology, reforestation, bicycle safety, scholarships, health, the welfare of children, and community programs are also high priority concerns of the parent body.

Church Women Name Mrs. V. W. Marshall

The Episcopal Church Women of St. Francis of Assisi Church, Novato, have elected Mrs. Verling W. Marshall president. She has also served as recording secretary. A member of Novato for five years, she was formerly a member in Pomona for 61 years.

Margaret Marshall, the wife of a retired school administrator, is a retired dietitian. She was supervisor of the school lunch program in Chino.

She said she loves people, likes to travel, sewing, do stitchery and cook, adding, "after working 43 years I like to do all the things I didn't have time to do, and enjoy the beautiful scenery of Marin County."

She is also active in the social affairs at Los Robles Mobile Home Park and is a member of the Rebekah Lodge.

Projects planned by the church women are participation in the Novato Village Fair in April, a fashion show on May 15, United Thank Offering on May 24, a night meeting for all women of the church in April and expanding its outreach program to help the community and needy during the year.

Julia Child Will Greet Sponsors, Friends Prior To Cooking Series

By MOLLY MARIN

When Julia Child, the cooking expert, comes to San Francisco this month for a series of cooking demonstrations to benefit Presbyterian Hospital of Pacific Medical Center, she will greet sponsors and personal guests at a reception at 6 p.m. March 22 at the Kabuki Theater in the Japanese Cultural Center in San Francisco.

Planning to attend are Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Cousins Jr. of Sausalito. Dorothy Cousins is Julia Child's sister. She will attend the cooking demonstrations scheduled for March 25, 26, 28 and 29 at the Theater. The sisters, who grew up in Pasadena, attended Katharine Branson School in Ross as boarding students.

No special plans have been made for her sister's visit by Mrs. Cousins, who says the international cooking authority has a very full schedule during her "Bon Appetit, San Francisco" demonstrations. Mrs. Child will go on to Honolulu from the Bay Area.

PERSONS BUYING tickets for the "Great American Hamburger" social gathering Monday at Agatha Pubb's in Sausalito have a choice. Tickets can be used during the party or, for a reduced price, any other day in 1974. Either way, proceeds will benefit the Marin Association for Mental Health.

Planning to attend are Messrs. and Mmes. Richard Champe of Tiburon, Harold Collins of Novato, William Seeger of San Rafael, Ronald Bartells of Corte Madera, Walter Busse Jr. of San Anselmo, David Rose of Mill Valley and Robert McLaughlin of Ross, Misses Sydney Goldstein of San Francisco and Florine Miller of Mill Valley, Dr. and Mrs. William Manson of San Anselmo, Edward Krug of San Rafael and Drs. David Fisher of Sausalito, Virgil Hollis of Belvedere, Gilbert Guerin of San Rafael and Robert Lee Grant of Tiburon.

FORMER MARIN resident Laurence Tucker of Burlingame wed Ksenija Pernek of San Mateo Feb. 23 at St. Mathew's Catholic Church in San Mateo.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Pernek of San Mateo, and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. John Tucker of Burlingame, Corte Madera residents from 1950 to 1967.

CATHLEEN COX of San Francisco and Merritt Lambert Hewett Jr. of Kentfield were honored at a dinner and bar and wine shower last night at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Victor Richards in San Francisco.

Cathleen is the daughter of, Mr. and Mrs. John Parr Cox of San Francisco, and Ritt, as the future bridegroom is known, is the son of the senior Merritt Lambert Hewetts of Kentfield. The couple plans to be married April 7.

A dinner for the couple's families will be given March 16 by Cathy's aunt, Mrs. Fred Parr Cox Jr. of San Francisco.

MARIN ALUMNI of Stanford University will attend a reception Monday commemorating Founders' Day of Stanford University.

Chancellor J. E. Wallace Sterling will speak at 5:30 p.m. and a reception will follow in the Peacock Court of Mark Hopkins Hotel.

LISA FEDRICK, daughter of C. R. Fedrick of Novato, is spending a month's vacation in Washington, D. C., and New Jersey. She is visiting Mr. and Mrs. James Ritchie in Washington, and then will visit her uncle and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. James Fedrick in New Jersey.

On her return west, she will visit friends in Tucson, Ariz.

BRIDE-ELECT Kyung Soo Kim of Tongduchon, Korea, will be honored at a shower and luncheon to be given by Mrs. Douglas McMurtry at her home in Tiburon Friday.

Kyung Soo Kim and Thomas Samuel Fletcher of Mill Valley will be married in an afternoon ceremony March 30 at the Church of Our Saviour in Mill Valley. The future bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel A. Fletcher of Mill Valley.

Fourteen guests will attend the luncheon.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Sarasy of Belvedere will entertain friends at dinner at their home, with Dr. and Mrs. Paul Ogden as cohosts.

Dr. and Mrs. Richard Schoenbrun of Belvedere will give a supper for the senior high school members of the church's youth group before they go to hear the joyous music which has special appeal to the young.

ON THE AGENDA

'Great Women Artists' Will Be Saluted Monday By Novato AAUW

"Great Women Artists, Past and Present" will be presented at a public meeting of the Novato Branch, American Association of University Women at 7:30 p.m., Monday at the Sinaloa Junior High School Library in Novato.

J. J. Wilson, associate professor and English department coordinator of women's studies, and Karen Peterson, an English graduate student, both Sonoma State College, will present the program featuring slides of art work of 200 women.

The films will feature early American Art, weaving and painting by American Indians, Japanese embroidery, tapestries and embroidery from the Middle Ages and contemporary artists' work, including several by black women according to the program chairman, Mrs. Pam Rettig.

TWO EVENTS are planned by the Star of the Sea Institute 97, Young Ladies Institute next week.

The YLI members will meet at 8 p.m. Tuesday at the Parish Hall of the Star of the Sea Church, Sausalito. On Thursday they will give their annual St. Patrick's Day dinner for members and guests at 7 p.m. at the Alvarado Inn in Ignacio.

Mrs. Dolores Quadros is dinner chairman, and reservations chairman. Mrs. Agnes Ferrario is on the reservations committee.

HERB BURFORD of Marin Lights of San Rafael will be guest speaker at the Novato Garden Club meeting at noon Tuesday, at the Novato Community House. His topic will be "Lighting Your Garden."

Peace Corps Duty Provides Feeling Of Accomplishment

Marin Women

By KAREN PETERSON

One day about three years ago, Robert Morelli looked at his job with the San Luis Obispo Department of Corrections and guessed that if he didn't get out, he'd "wait forever for retirement."

So after lengthy discussions between Morelli, his wife, Joan, and their three teen-agers, the Petaluma family decided to pack up and go to Central America with the Peace Corps.

Today, after two-and-one-half years in El Salvador, the Morellis are back home on the 1,000-acre family ranch at the northern edge of Marin County, picking up where they left off but now with a whole new experience with life in a yet-to-be developed country behind them.

While some Peace Corps volunteers come home disillusioned, the Morellis feel that their years of work in the crowded tropical country has just begun. As an experienced dairyman who grew up on the family ranch, Morelli was entrusted with helping to establish a center for livestock research and development. The results of that program, he said, will begin to come in this year.

Mrs. Morelli, though not assigned to any specific work in the country, volunteered her time to a social service program in the capital city that supported hundreds of poor farmers with food and education.

"The young volunteer sets his sights too high," said Morelli. "He tries to correct the whole country and runs into discouragement. You have to focus on the little things. You can't go down there and turn that country into the United States."

Once the Morellis were accepted by the Peace Corps they were faced with learning the language, and that meant 24 hours of "fierce" study, said Mrs. Morelli. "You'd go out to work and no one spoke English — so you spoke Spanish.

THE MORELLIS also had to become close to the people and win their respect before any suggestions or programs could begin. Morelli said he solved it by being honest and by just being himself. "When I'd have meetings with the men, I'd say just what I thought. You don't have to worry if you're honest."

"The people are afraid of the American senors," added Mrs. Morelli. "They put you on a pedestal."

Even though El Salvador has one of the most stable governments in Central America, the Morellis were spectators during several political coups. "We never knew when there would be a coup. They were kind of fun little things," he said.

To Mrs. Morelli, it was somewhat disappointing to see that native pottery had given way to American plastic. American influence is strong in El Salvador, she said, adding that a week after they moved there, an American hamburger chain opened in San Salvador.

The Morellis lived in a Salvadoran community and their children, Jim, 17, Jeanie, 16, and Don, 15, went to Spanish-speaking schools. "The schools were outstanding," she said, "the people bent over backward and helped them with their Spanish homework. The first year they were lenient on their grades, but the second year . . . bam."

Teen-agers in El Salvador have less freedom than their American peers, she said, and she believes it was good for her children "to grow up in a controlled area." But she's also glad they're back on the ranch.

"The boys needed work to do," she said, and the schools are different here. "There's a lot of freedom and students here are much more mature."

"El Salvador is overcrowded, with wall to wall people. The poor are very poor, the middle class is similar to ours, and the wealthy are extremely wealthy," she said.

"Nearly one-half of the population is poor. They're undereducated and underfed, and in a desperate situation," she said.

The agency she worked with was privately run, through donations. "The idea was if you help yourself, we'll help you. If you don't, tough luck." As coordinator and administrator of the scholarship fund, she saw more than 300 children from poor families get scholarships.

"They couldn't have gone to school without it," she said. "In El Salvador, students have to pay for uniforms, shoes, supplies, examinations, and sometimes, their own tables and chairs."

MRS. MORELLI often went out to the homes where she saw situations "beyond belief." "Education means a great deal to the students and the family," she stated.

Morelli worked with the farmers and the Ministry of Agriculture teaching classes, making suggestions, and giving advice on practical agricultural techniques, as well as developing a program to make the country self-sufficient in its dairy and meat production.

His program included the first government import of American cattle. The facilities they had and the lack of coordination made it an ideal setting for a research center on livestock development and how to best utilize it, cross breeding and how to cope with parasites and grass lacking in high nutritive value, said Morelli.

"Our government pours so much money into El Salvador for programs. It could cost nothing. It just needs organization and I was in seventh heaven," said Morelli, who believes the money put into the program will start coming back in four to five years.

"Volunteers shouldn't feel like they should go down there and be a success. There's no measure of success," he said.

"IT WAS an equal exchange," said Mrs. Morelli of their experiences in El Salvador. "We learned a great many things and imparted a lot too." It was also good for the children, she added. They look at things now with a broader view. "They respect people more . . . they respect inadequacies and accept shortcomings."

"I never enjoyed anything so much," added Morelli, "I'd like to go back. After the kids are grown, I'd like to get back to a Central American country."

Status Of Women Committee To Meet

The ad hoc committee for a county commission on the status of women will meet at 7:30 p.m. Monday at the meeting room of Corte Madera Chrysler-Plymouth for final planning of presentation of its proposal.

The committee will present the proposal for formation of a Marin County Commission on the Status of Women to the Board of Supervisors Tuesday afternoon at the supervisors chambers, Marin Civic Center, with the backing of many of Marin's women's organizations, according to Glenna Shelby, committee coordinator.

Son Of Novatans

The parents were incorrectly listed for David Wayne Fedrick in the engagement story of David and Laurie Ann Henson of Novato in the Independent-Journal Wednesday. David is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Fedrick of Novato.

Marin Women

THE LAST WORD

Reasons Behind Women's Clubs' Golden Gate Federation Resignations

By BETTY FROST

Three long-established Marin women's clubs have resigned from the Golden Gate District of California Federated Women's Clubs, and a fourth club is considering leaving the federation.

Four other county affiliates remain firmly in the federation fold, and Martha Thomson of Sausalito has just accepted the nomination as first vice president of the Golden Gate District.

Mrs. Thomson is a past president of the Sausalito Woman's Club which has voted to go it alone, however she also belongs to the Marin Legislative Council which is standing firm in the federation.

What is behind these differences of opinion?

SAUSALITO WOMAN'S Club, the Outdoor Art Club of Mill Valley, and the San Rafael Improvement Club are finding it increasingly difficult to maintain their clubhouses and grounds. The expense of membership in the federation entered into their decision-making.

Sausalito Woman's Club also decided to put the total efforts of the 250 membership into a program of specific assistance to the library, schools and city government of Sausalito.

Mrs. Thomson maintains that this kind of community service is very much in keeping with the purposes of the California federation. "I feel very strongly about the unity of women working together," she said. "I feel, for instance, that only by working with other women's clubs, were we able to get the bicycle path from Marin City to Sausalito."

The Outdoor Art Club, dedicated to conservation and cultural programs, is continually burdened with the responsibility of keeping its handsome clubhouse designed by architect Bernard Maybeck in 1902 in good repair

The federation fee, now raised from $1 to $1.50 per member per year, they decided would be put to better use for other needs. A contest for designing a president's pin to replace the federation pin is now under way.

The San Rafael Improvement Club, founded in 1902, is housed in a building which was used in the 1915 San Francisco Exposition. The membership considered dropping out of the federation at the February meeting. Mrs. Ragnar Thaning, president, says "I doubt that we will go out. It is good to have a parent organization." However she admits to some dissatisfaction with the three-county Golden Gate Council, which she avers gives unequal representation to Marin. San Mateo County and San Francisco City and County are also included.

THE TAMALPAIS Centre Women's Club has left the federation "because they don't represent us, the dues are raised, and it is costing us a lot to go to San Francisco for the meetings." Mrs. Alva N. Nipper is president.

Clubs which seem to be satisfied with the status quo are the Novato Federated Women's Club, Corte Madera Improvement Club, the Larkspur Women's Club and the Marin Legislative Council in San Anselmo.

Those who are discontent also cited "busy work" — making reports and keeping scrapbooks, and arranging yearly conventions which they complain involve more social exchange than serious endeavor.

The California Federation of Women's Clubs was founded in Los Angeles in 1900, and affiliated with the national General Federation of Women's Clubs. The Golden Gate District was formed 18 years ago. Before that Marin clubs were joined in an all-Marin Alliance, and a return to a Marin-oriented district has advocates among Marin clubwomen today.

With the growth of Marin County, many of the women's organizations see more responsibilities here at home.

Others find that primary concerns such as ecology, reforestation, bicycle safety, scholarships, health, the welfare of children, and community programs are also high priority concerns of the parent body.

Church Women Name Mrs. V. W. Marshall

The Episcopal Church Women of St. Francis of Assisi Church, Novato, have elected Mrs. Verling W. Marshall president. She has also served as recording secretary. A member of Novato for five years, she was formerly a member in Pomona for 61 years.

Margaret Marshall, the wife of a retired school administrator, is a retired dietitian. She was supervisor of the school lunch program in Chino.

She said she loves people, likes to travel, sewing, do stitchery and cook, adding, "after working 43 years I like to do all the things I didn't have time to do, and enjoy the beautiful scenery of Marin County."

She is also active in the social affairs at Los Robles Mobile Home Park and is a member of the Rebekah Lodge.

MRS. VERLING W. MARSHALL
Church club president

Projects planned by the church women are participation in the Novato Village Fair in April, a fashion show on May 15, United Thank Offering on May 24, a night meeting for all women of the church in April and expanding its outreach program to help the community and needy during the year.

Officers service with Mrs. Marshall are Mmes. Richard Brown, vice president; Robert Black, recording secretary; Bruce Scott, corresponding secretary; and committee chairmen, Mmes. Ronald Harris, rummage room; Bradford Allen, United Thank Offering; Rodney Kaufman, Christian outreach; and Robert Williams, Church World Serivce.

Couple Is Making Home In Novato

Heidi Anne Ostern of Terra Linda and Dr. Roger E. Minkow were married March 2 in Santa Rosa and will make their home there.

Heidi, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leif Ostern of Terra Linda, is a graduate of Terra Linda High School and attended the University of California at Berkeley. She spent her junior year in an education abroad program at the University of Bergen in Norway. She is currently working toward a nursing degree.

Heidi is the sister of Mrs. Dwight Oberholtzer Jr. of Tacoma, Wash., and the granddaughter of Mrs. Bertha Syvertsen of Oslo, Norway.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Roslyn High School in Roslyn Heights, N.Y., and the University of California at Berkeley and U.C. Medical Center. He is a resident physician at Community Hospital in Santa Rosa.

Roger is the son of Julius Minkow of Roslyn Heights and he is the twin brother of Peter Minkow of Denver, Colo.

BACK ON A Marin ranch, Robert and Joan Morelli use a saddle they brought back from the family's two-and-one-half years in El Salvador with the Peace Corps. "It was an equal exchange," Mrs. Morelli says of their El Salvador experience.

Peace Corps Duty Provides Feeling Of Accomplishment

By KAREN PETERSON

One day about three years ago, Robert Morelli looked at his job with the San Luis Obispo Department of Corrections and guessed that if he didn't get out, he'd "wait forever for retirement."

So after lengthy discussions between Morelli, his wife, Joan, and their three teen-agers, the Petaluma family decided to pack up and go to Central America with the Peace Corps.

Today, after two-and-one-half years in El Salvador, the Morellis are back home on the 1,000-acre family ranch at the northern edge of Marin County, picking up where they left off but now with a whole new experience with life in a yet-to-be developed country behind them.

While some Peace Corps volunteers come home disillusioned, the Morellis feel that their years of work in the crowded tropical country has just begun. As an experienced dairyman who grew up on the family ranch, Morelli was entrusted with helping to establish a center for livestock research and development. The results of that program, he said, will begin to come in this year.

Mrs. Morelli, though not assigned to any specific work in the country, volunteered her time to a social service program in the capital city that supported hundreds of poor farmers with food and education.

"The young volunteer sets his sights too high," said Morelli. "He tries to correct the whole country and runs into discouragement. You have to focus on the little things. You can't go down there and turn that country into the United States."

Once the Morellis were accepted by the Peace Corps they were faced with learning the language, and that meant 24 hours of "fierce" study, said Mrs. Morelli. "You'd go out to work and no one spoke English — so you spoke Spanish.

THE MORELLIS also had to become close to the people and win their respect before any suggestions or programs could begin. Morelli said he solved it by being honest and by just being himself. "When I'd have meetings with the men, I'd say just what I thought. You don't have to worry if you're honest."

"The people are afraid of the American senors," added Mrs. Morelli. "They put you on a pedestal."

Even though El Salvador has one of the most stable governments in Central America, the Morellis were spectators during several political coups. "We never knew when there would be a coup. They were kind of fun little things," he said.

To Mrs. Morelli, it was somewhat disappointing to see that native pottery had given way to American plastic. American influence is strong in El Salvador, she said, adding that a week after they moved there, an American hamburger chain opened in San Salvador.

The Morellis lived in a Salvadoran community and their children, Jim, 17, Jeanie, 16, and Don, 15, went to Spanish-speaking schools. "The schools were outstanding," she said, "the people bent over backward and helped them with their Spanish homework. The first year they were lenient on their grades, but the second year . . . bam."

Teen-agers in El Salvador have less freedom than their American peers, she said, and she believes it was good for her children "to grow up in a controlled area." But she's also glad they're back on the ranch.

"The boys needed work to do," she said, and the schools are different here. "There's a lot of freedom and students here are much more mature."

"El Salvador is overcrowded, with wall to wall people. The poor are very poor, the middle class is similar to ours, and the wealthy are extremely wealthy," she said.

"Nearly one-half of the population is poor. They're undereducated and underfed, and in a desperate situation," she said.

The agency she worked with was privately run, through donations. "The idea was if you help yourself, we'll help you. If you don't, tough luck." As coordinator and administrator of the scholarship fund, she saw more than 300 children from poor families get scholarships.

"They couldn't have gone to school without it," she said. "In El Salvador, students have to pay for uniforms, shoes, supplies, examinations, and sometimes, their own tables and chairs."

MRS. MORELLI often went out to the homes where she saw situations "beyond belief." "Education means a great deal to the students and the family," she stated.

Morelli worked with the farmers and the Ministry of Agriculture teaching classes, making suggestions, and giving advice on practical agricultural techniques, as well as developing a program to make the country self-sufficient in its dairy and meat production.

His program included the first government import of American cattle. The facilities they had and the lack of coordination made it an ideal setting for a research center on livestock development and how to best utilize it, cross breeding and how to cope with parasites and grass lacking in high nutritive value, said Morelli.

"Our government pours so much money into El Salvador for programs. It could cost nothing. It just needs organization and I was in seventh heaven," said Morelli, who believes the money put into the program will start coming back in four to five years.

"Volunteers shouldn't feel like they should go down there and be a success. There's no measure of success," he said.

"IT WAS an equal exchange," said Mrs. Morelli of their experiences in El Salvador. "We learned a great many things and imparted a lot too." It was also good for the children, she added. They look at things now with a broader view. "They respect people more . . . they respect inadequacies and accept shortcomings."

"I never enjoyed anything so much," added Morelli. "I'd like to go back. After the kids are grown, I'd like to get back to a Central American country."

Status Of Women Committee To Meet

The ad hoc committee for a county commission on the status of women will meet at 7:30 p.m. Monday at the meeting room of Corte Madera Chrysler-Plymouth for final planning of presentation of its proposal.

The committee will present the proposal for formation of a Marin County Commission on the Status of Women to the Board of Supervisors Tuesday afternoon at the supervisors chambers, Marin Civic Center, with the backing of many of Marin's women's organizations, according to Glenna Shelby, committee coordinator.

Son Of Novatans

The parents were incorrectly listed for David Wayne Fedrick in the engagement story of David and Laurie Ann Henson of Novato in the Independent-Journal Wednesday. David is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Fedrick of Novato.

Julia Child Will Greet Sponsors, Friends Prior To Cooking Series

By MOLLY MARIN

When Julia Child, the cooking expert, comes to San Francisco this month for a series of cooking demonstrations to benefit Presbyterian Hospital of Pacific Medical Center, she will greet sponsors and personal guests at a reception at 6 p.m. March 22 at the Kabuki Theater in the Japanese Cultural Center in San Francisco.

Planning to attend are Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Cousins Jr. of Sausalito. Dorothy Cousins is Julia Child's sister. She will attend the cooking demonstrations scheduled for March 25, 26, 28 and 29 at the Theater. The sisters, who grew up in Pasadena, attended Katharine Branson School in Ross as boarding students.

The Women's Board of Pacific Medical Center is a sponsor of the cooking series. Marin board members planning to meet her at the cocktail reception are Mrs. Robert Menzies of Kentfield and Mrs. Gregory Solon of Ross.

No special plans have been made for her sister's visit by Mrs. Cousins, who says the international cooking authority has a very full schedule during her "Bon Appetit, San Francisco" demonstrations. Mrs. Child will go on to Honolulu from the Bay Area.

PERSONS BUYING tickets for the "Great American Hamburger" social gathering Monday at Agatha Pubb's in Sausalito have a choice. Tickets can be used during the party or, for a reduced price, any other day in 1974. Either way, proceeds will benefit the Marin Association for Mental Health.

Planning to attend are Messrs. and Mmes. Richard Champe of Tiburon, Harold Collins of Novato, William Seeger of San Rafael, Ronald Bartells of Corte Madera, Walter Busse Jr. of San Anselmo, David Rose of Mill Valley and Robert McLaughlin of Ross, Misses Sydney Goldstein of San Francisco and Florine Miller of Mill Valley, Dr. and Mrs. William Manson of San Anselmo, Edward Krug of San Rafael and Drs. David Fisher of Sausalito, Virgil Hollis of Belvedere, Gilbert Guerin of San Rafael and Robert Lee Grant of Tiburon.

FORMER MARIN resident Laurence Tucker of Burlingame wed Ksenija Pernek of San Mateo Feb. 23 at St. Mathew's Catholic Church in San Mateo.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Pernek of San Mateo, and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. John Tucker of Burlingame, Corte Madera residents from 1950 to 1967.

CATHLEEN COX of San Francisco and Merritt Lambert Hewett Jr. of Kentfield were honored at a dinner and bar and wine shower last night at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Victor Richards in San Francisco.

Cathleen is the daughter of, Mr. and Mrs. John Parr Cox of San Francisco, and Ritt, as the future bridegroom is known, is the son of the senior Merritt Lambert Hewetts of Kentfield. The couple plans to be married April 7.

A dinner for the couple's families will be given March 16 by Cathy's aunt, Mrs. Fred Parr Cox Jr. of San Francisco.

MARIN ALUMNI of Stanford University will attend a reception Monday commemorating Founders' Day of Stanford University.

Chancellor J. E. Wallace Sterling will speak at 5:30 p.m. and a reception will follow in the Peacock Court of Mark Hopkins Hotel.

LISA FEDRICK, daughter of C. R. Fedrick of Novato, is spending a month's vacation in Washington, D. C., and New Jersey. She is visiting Mr. and Mrs. James Ritchie in Washington, and then will visit her uncle and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. James Fedrick in New Jersey.

On her return west, she will visit friends in Tucson, Ariz.

BRIDE-ELECT Kyung Soo Kim of Tongduchon, Korea, will be honored at a shower and luncheon to be given by Mrs. Douglas McMurtry at her home in Tiburon Friday.

Kyung Soo Kim and Thomas Samuel Fletcher of Mill Valley will be married in an afternoon ceremony March 30 at the Church of Our Saviour in Mill Valley. The future bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel A. Fletcher of Mill Valley.

Fourteen guests will attend the luncheon.

SEVERAL TIBURON peninsula couples have planned gatherings in their homes tonight before the Sufi Choir concert at St. Stephen's Church in Belvedere.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Sarasy of Belvedere will entertain friends at dinner at their home, with Dr. and Mrs. Paul Ogden as cohosts.

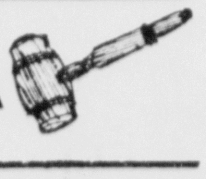
Dr. and Mrs. Richard Schoenbrun of Belvedere will give a supper for the senior high school members of the church's youth group before they go to hear the joyous music which has special appeal to the young.

ON THE AGENDA



'Great Women Artists' Will Be Saluted Monday By Novato AAUW

"Great Women Artists, Past and Present" will be presented at a public meeting of the Novato Branch, American Association of University Women at 7:30 p.m., Monday at the Sinaloa Junior High School Library in Novato.

J. J. Wilson, associate professor and English department coordinator of women's studies, and Karen Peterson, an English graduate student, both Sonoma State College, will present the program featuring slides of art work of 200 women.

The films will feature early American Art, weaving and painting by American Indians, Japanese embroidery, tapestries and embroidery from the Middle Ages and contemporary artists' work, including several by black women according to the program chairman, Mrs. Pam Rettig.

TWO EVENTS are planned by the Star of the Sea Institute 97, Young Ladies Institute next week.

The YLI members will meet at 8 p.m. Tuesday at the Parish Hall of the Star of the Sea Church, Sausalito. On Thursday they will give their annual St. Patrick's Day dinner for members and guests at 7 p.m. at the Alvarado Inn in Ignacio.

Mrs. Dolores Quadros is dinner chairman, and reservations chairman. Mrs. Agnes Ferrario is on the reservations committee.

HERB BURFORD of Marin Lights of San Rafael will be guest speaker at the Novato Garden Club meeting at noon Tuesday, at the Novato Community House. His topic will be "Lighting Your Garden."

Mrs. Bunny Anderson is chairman of the hostess committee for the dessert luncheon.

SAN RAFAEL Guild of the Boyd Marin Museum of Science will hold an informational and membership coffee Wednesday at 9:30 a.m. at the home of Mrs. John Shook of San Rafael.

Cheeses, fresh fruit and coffee cakes will be served for the coffee, at which Bruce Blake, the museum executive director, will speak on the museum's programs.

Mrs. Richard Barry, guild president, will explain membership responsibilities.

Mrs. Ross Cobb is chairman of the coffee. Prospective new members may contact Mrs. Barry.

GENERATION RAP

by Helen and Sue Bottel

Though Many Didn't Care For The Sixties, Some Others Did

RAP:

I feel somewhat different than your other correspondents about my generation.

What happened to these great kids? The late sixties were a fantastic time for me. Kids were so involved with life. Back-packers set out to discover America, and found other friendly people. Communes sprang up, where people lived and learned together. Kids held rap sessions and would get into just sitting, talking to friends in a park or wherever. Concerts were great just because you were there and everyone was happy and digging it. Clothes were simple, nice looking yet comfortable. You could have fun almost anywhere. Two people could actually meet on a street and become friends. Life was good.

This isn't so now. My age group doesn't travel like it used to. The good people and places aren't there. Energy crisis? Maybe. But I think it's a personality crisis. The communes sit like dead ghost towns. Concerts turn into fighting brawls from pushing to get better seats.

Teen-agers go to bars and clubs now, dress in bright flashy clothes with feathers and sequins, and wear an ounce of makeup. They sit and play games with their false friendliness and altogether funky personalities.

Why can't we be natural and open and throw off this phonyness? It seems like everyone just drew themselves into their shells. I hope someday people will learn to forget each others' faults and open up again. Maybe that will end our "personality crisis." — DISENCHANTED

DEAR DIS:

Maybe these great kids traded their backpacks and sandals for jobs and wedding rings. It's sad to see the old free-and-easy gang settling down to responsibilities, when you're not yet ready to settle. — HELEN

DISENCHANTED:

As for the new crop of kids, I guess they look as silly and funky to the sixties grads as the sixties grads looked to the fifties generation.

"No one is as critical of an age-group as the person who has just outgrown it." I read that about five years ago in one of Mom's column answers. At age 19, I'm just discovering how true it is! — SUE

RAP:

I would like to respond to those letters whose authors describe themselves as part of that aimless, lost, and jilted class of the late sixties. I am shaken by their free use of criticism as a cover for their inability to find something meaningful in their lives.

The events described by "Still Searching" may be everything he feels about them, but so were the events of the previous decades to their children . . . just as future crises will affect the children of future decades. These happenings however, do not make our lives: we do —you and I! So don't blame everyone and everything else.

Our lives are what we make them, no more, no less. We need to stop searching for some elusive satisfaction and begin searching ourselves. Consider what you've put into this life — and if you don't come up with anything very valuable, maybe that's why you're not getting anything very valuable out of it.

When we've come to terms with ourselves we will be able to meet these emotional events with increasing courage and, perhaps, instead of them controlling our lives we will be able to control them!

Want this world to become more personal? Try being more of a person! — CLASS OF '69 AND SATISFIED

Gather Sleeve And Lining Together

By EUNICE FARMER
Distributed by the Register and Tribune Syndicate

DEAR EUNICE,

I have encountered a problem that doesn't seem to work the way the pattern instructions show. The coat has a shirt-type sleeve and it is to be lined. According to the pattern, the sleeve should be gathered before applying the cuff, and the lining should be gathered separately (then the two sections are to be basted together and the cuff applied). This has made the gathered area very full and difficult to work with. Why can't the sleeve and lining be gathered at the same time? — MRS. T. E. T.

DEAR MRS. T. E. T.,

I don't see any reason why it can't, and the more you sew, the more you will have the courage to change many of the methods given on patterns for construction. I would suggest basting the lining to the garment fabric at the cuff area. Machine stitch the two edges together with a longer stitch and gather. Lastly, apply the cuff. It will result in a much smoother cuff.

DEAR EUNICE,

I completed a dress that had lots of top stitching, which I did with buttonhole twist. After the dress was washed, it pulled where it had been top-stitched and the thread faded a little. What kind of thread should I have used? — MRS. M. G.

DEAR MRS. M. G.,

If you are going to wash a garment, everything you use for that garment must be washable. I am assuming you used the silk buttonhole twist for your top stitching. I am happy to report that there is a new buttonhole twist available that is made of 100 per cent polyester fibers. It comes in beautiful colors and is definitely washable.

If you can't find this, you will probably have to continue simply using your polyester thread for the top stitching. You may use a double thread if your sewing machine can handle it. There is a trend to lots of top stitching details today, but you must be very careful about the thread you use or you will have disastrous results.

DEAR MRS. FARMER,

I am a working woman, and therefore, most of my wardrobe consists of easy-to-care-for double knits. My problem is the perspiration stains and odor that lingers on these clothes. My friends seem to have the same problem. Do you have a solution for removing or lessening the stains and odor? — MRS. R. M.

DEAR MRS. R. M.,

If the climate is excessively hot and humid where you live, you should try to find knits that are made of cotton instead of polyester (or a blend of fibers). 100 per cent polyesters don't breathe and are hot and clammy to wear and will retain odors longer than other fibers.

The obvious answer is to try to prevent the perspiration in the first place, using a deodorant often (you may find it necessary to try several of them before finding one that works for you).

Try spraying new fabrics with Scotch Guard, a water repellant spray). You may spray twice, at the underarm area. I know that this will work on almost all fabrics and will prevent perspiration from absorbing into the fabrics. This has also worked beautifully for wedding gowns, bridesmaids' dresses or for anyone who is under a nervous strain and the perspiration problem pops up.

Sorry about clothes that already have the stain and odor, but it usually can't be eliminated once it is there. You may try soaking your clothes in a solution of baking soda, but this is

GENERATION RAP

by Helen and Sue Bottel

Though Many Didn't Care For The Sixties, Some Others Did

RAP:

I feel somewhat different than your other correspondents about my generation.

What happened to these great kids? The late sixties were a fantastic time for me. Kids were so involved with life. Back-packers set out to discover America, and found other friendly people. Communes sprang up, where people lived and learned together. Kids held rap sessions and would get into just sitting, talking to friends in a park or wherever. Concerts were great just because you were there and everyone was happy and digging it. Clothes were simple, nice looking yet comfortable. You could have fun almost anywhere. Two people could actually meet on a street and become friends. Life was good.

This isn't so now. My age group doesn't travel like it used to. The good people and places aren't there. Energy crisis? Maybe. But I think it's a personality crisis. The communes sit like dead ghost towns. Concerts turn into fighting brawls from pushing to get better seats.

Teen-agers go to bars and clubs now, dress in bright flashy clothes with feathers and sequins, and wear an ounce of makeup. They sit and play games with their false friendliness and altogether funky personalities.

Why can't we be natural and open and throw off this phonyness? It seems like everyone just drew themselves into their shells. I hope someday people will learn to forget each others' faults and open up again. Maybe that will end our "personality crisis." — DISENCHANTED

DEAR DIS:

Maybe these great kids traded their backpacks and sandals for jobs and wedding rings. It's sad to see the old free-and-easy gang settling down to responsibilities, when you're not yet ready to settle. — HELEN

DISENCHANTED:

As for the new crop of kids, I guess they look as silly and funky to the sixties grads as the sixties grads looked to the fifties generation.

"No one is as critical of an age-group as the person who has just outgrown it." I read that about five years ago in one of Mom's column answers. At age 19, I'm just discovering how true it is! — SUE

RAP:

I would like to respond to those letters whose authors describe themselves as part of that aimless, lost, and jilted class of the late sixties. I am shaken by their free use of criticism as a cover for their inability to find something meaningful in their lives.

The events described by "Still Searching" may be everything he feels about them, but so were the events of the previous decades to their children . . . just as future crises will affect the children of future decades. These happenings however, do not make our lives: we do —you and I! So don't blame everyone and everything else.

Our lives are what we make them, no more, no less. We need to stop searching for some elusive satisfaction and begin searching ourselves. Consider what you've put into this life — and if you don't come up with anything very valuable, maybe that's why you're not getting anything very valuable out of it.

When we've come to terms with ourselves we will be able to meet these emotional events with increasing courage and, perhaps, instead of them controlling our lives we will be able to control them!

Want this world to become more personal? Try being more of a person! — CLASS OF '69 AND SATISFIED

Got a problem? Or a subject for discussion, two-generation style? Direct your questions to either Sue or Helen Bottel —or both, c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, 1040 B St., San Rafael, Ca. 94902, if you want a combination mother-daughter answer.

Gather Sleeve And Lining Together

By EUNICE FARMER
Distributed by the Register and Tribune Syndicate

DEAR EUNICE,

I have encountered a problem that doesn't seem to work the way the pattern instructions show. The coat has a shirt-type sleeve and it is to be lined. According to the pattern, the sleeve should be gathered before applying the cuff, and the lining should be gathered separately (then the two sections are to be basted together and the cuff applied). This has made the gathered area very full and difficult to work with. Why can't the sleeve and lining be gathered at the same time? — MRS. T. E. T.

DEAR MRS. T. E. T.,

I don't see any reason why it can't, and the more you sew, the more you will have the courage to change many of the methods given on patterns for construction. I would suggest basting the lining to the garment fabric at the cuff area. Machine stitch the two edges together with a longer stitch and gather. Lastly, apply the cuff. It will result in a much smoother cuff.

DEAR EUNICE,

I completed a dress that had lots of top stitching, which I did with buttonhole twist. After the dress was washed, it pulled where it had been top-stitched and the thread faded a little. What kind of thread should I have used? — MRS. M. G.

DEAR MRS. M. G.,

If you are going to wash a garment, everything you use for that garment must be washable. I am assuming you used the silk buttonhole twist for your top stitching. I am happy to report that there is a new buttonhole twist available that is made of 100 per cent polyester fibers. It comes in beautiful colors and is definitely washable.

If you can't find this, you will probably have to continue simply using your polyester thread for the top stitching. You may use a double thread if your sewing machine can handle it. There is a trend to lots of top stitching details today, but you must be very careful about the thread you use or you will have disastrous results.

DEAR MRS. FARMER,

I am a working woman, and therefore, most of my wardrobe consists of easy-to-care-for double knits. My problem is the perspiration stains and odor that lingers on these clothes. My friends seem to have the same problem. Do you have a solution for removing or lessening the stains and odor? — MRS. R. M.

DEAR MRS. R. M.,

If the climate is excessively hot and humid where you live, you should try to find knits that are made of cotton instead of polyester (or a blend of fibers). 100 per cent polyesters don't breathe and are hot and clammy to wear and will retain odors longer than other fibers.

The obvious answer is to try to prevent the perspiration in the first place, using a deodorant often (you may find it necessary to try several of them before finding one that works for you).

Try spraying new fabrics with Scotch Guard, a water repellant spray). You may spray twice, at the underarm area. I know that this will work on almost all fabrics and will prevent perspiration from absorbing into the fabrics. This has also worked beautifully for wedding gowns, bridesmaids' dresses or for anyone who is under a nervous strain and the perspiration problem pops up.

Sorry about clothes that already have the stain and odor, but it usually can't be eliminated once it is there. You may try soaking your clothes in a solution of baking soda, but this is

Church Guild In Tiburon Picks Officers

MRS. RICHARD D. RIDER
Guild president

Mrs. Richard D. Rider is the new president of the Rector's Guild of the Episcopal Church of Our Saviour in Mill Valley.

Constance Rider has been a member of the guild for 15 years. The original guild was started 22 years ago to raise money for the rectory. The women decided to hold an antiques show. Now known as the Marin Antiques Show and Sale, the annual event has become a Marin institution, and will be held April 18, 19, and 20 in IDESST Hall, Sausalito.

The guild hopes to use proceeds of the 22nd year sale to redecorate the interior of the church, according to Mrs. Rider. Mrs. Rider was chairman of the antiques show in 1972.

She is also active in the Franklin Hospital Auxiliary, and is a past president of that organization, and belongs to the Marin Charitable Foundation, the Outdoor Art Club in Mill Valley and Daughters of the British Empire.

She is a native of the Province of Quebec, Canada, and received the registered nurse degree at Montreal General Hospital. Her husband is a surgeon. They have lived in Marin County for 18 years. Their children are Mrs. Warren Glass, Vicci, Richard, Suzanne and Paul.

The new president's hobbies are playing tennis, mah jong, gardening, reading, skiing, horseback riding and travel.

DEAR EUNICE,

My latest skirt has a center front pleat which was made with a separate "underlay" section. I simply can't seem to press this pleat nice and smooth. It wants to pop out and in my opinion, it looks very "homemade." — LUCILLE G.

DEAR LUCILLE,

When there is a seam within the pleat, it is much easier to solve this problem than where there is no seam. When stitching the underlay to the skirt fronts, end your stitching about 8 inches above the hemline. Next, have the length of the skirt marked from the correct length, and actually complete the hem (the front sections will be hemmed in three separate sections). After the hem is completed, you are ready to finish the seams.

Pin the underlay to the fronts and machine stitch through the hem, up to the point where your stitching ended (always begin at the hem and work up). These seams should not be pressed open. Overcast the seams if they tend to ravel. At the lower edge of the hem, you may wish to turn under the corner of the raw edges at an angle and whip to the hem by hand.

Feature Story On Photographer Straightened Out

The headline on the feature story of portrait photographer Georgia Longini was incorrect in the Thursday Independent-Journal Women's Section.

The headline incorrectly stated, "Photographer of Children Sees Adults as the Enemy," misconstruing Mrs. Longini's statement in the story that she sometimes finds that to adults she, the photographer, is the enemy and she must deal with that. Mrs. Longini further stated that it is then up to the photographer to bring the adult camera subject to a relaxed state for a portrait.

Fight On Indoor Air Pollution Gains

ONE OF TODAY'S minor enigmas is how we can have so many people battling to end outdoor air pollution, while we have so few opposed to the pollution of indoor air by tobacco smoke.

Perhaps the imbalance is more apparant than real. Protectors and would-be purifiers of our outdoor air, water, countryside are highly organized, well financed, and of late very effective in making their weight felt.

Those who would like to see indoor air kept free of poisonous tobacco smoke thus far are not so tightly organized nor yet so visible.

There are only 50 Marin names on the membership rolls of the San Francisco chapter of GASP (Group Against Smoking Pollution). Thus far, Marin does not even have a chapter, although one may be organized soon, with at least some of the Marin members of the San Francisco chapter as founders here.

ELSEWHERE, GASP and similar organizations already are on the move. They are beginning to make some progress.

Sacramento and Oakland are among the most recent to adopt "Smoke Control" ordinances.

"The city council," say these ordinances, "finds and declares that tobacco smoke is a hazard to the health of the general public.

"Smoking shall be prohibited in the following places within the city . . .

"(a) Elevators in buildings generally open to the public.

"(b) Waiting rooms or public hallways of every private or public health care facility . . .

"(c) Chambers of the city council . . .

"(d) Within every room, chamber, place of meeting or public assembly . . . during such time as a public meeting is in progress . . .

"(e) Within any building not open to the sky which is primarily used for or designed for the primary purpose of exhibiting any motion picture, stage drama, lecture, musical recital or other similar performance . . .

"(f) Within every restaurant . . .

"(g) In the halls, reading and viewing rooms of museums and libraries . . .

"(h) Buses . . .

"(i) Within retail stores . . ."

The ordinances contain a sprinkling of exceptions which make them workable. They provide for fines of up to $25 per violation.

SMOKING IS DEFINED in these ordinances as "the carrying of a lighted pipe or lighted cigar or lighted cigarette of any kind, of the lighting of a pipe, cigar or cigarette of any kind."

What a blessing for those non-smokers who otherwise find themselves overpowered by the offensive tobacco smoke in such places as elevators, doctors' waiting rooms, theater and restaurants!

San Francisco has approached the problem from a different angle. The board of supervisors there adopted a fire ordinance which requires the posting of "NO SMOKING" signs in certain places, including public elevators, gas stations and garages, retail stores where the floor area exceeds 10,000 square feet, parts of buildings used to house a circus, stock show or horse show, and school buildings.

These prohibitions were put on the books in 1965 but have gone into effect very slowly.

Department stores, it is said, welcomed the regulations. Careless smoking customers cause thousands of dollars damage each year to merchandise, rugs and furniture in retail establishments. Store owners do not wish to antagonize smoking customers by unilateral prohibition of smoking. It is much simpler to post signs reading "NO SMOKING, Smoking Prohibited by Sect. 24.05 of the S.F. Fire Code."

Violation of the San Francisco smoking prohibition can result in fines up to $500 or six months in jail, or both.

NON-SMOKERS of Marin, take heart! Before the year 1974 passes into history, somewhere in the county, Marin's first smoking control ordinance will go on the books. This probably will be preceded by the formal establishment of a Marin chapter of GASP, or some similar group opposed to smoking pollution.

Then we will be on the way toward keeping our indoor air as pure as outdoor air.

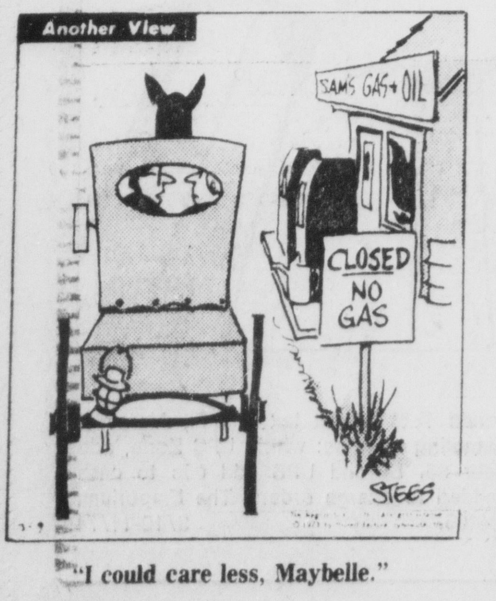
Gardeners Versus Nature Lovers

Visting a friend in Mill Valley recently, we called his attention to a tannish-buff, four-inch long slug moving slowly up his garden wall. "Yes, isn't it a handsome thing," he said.

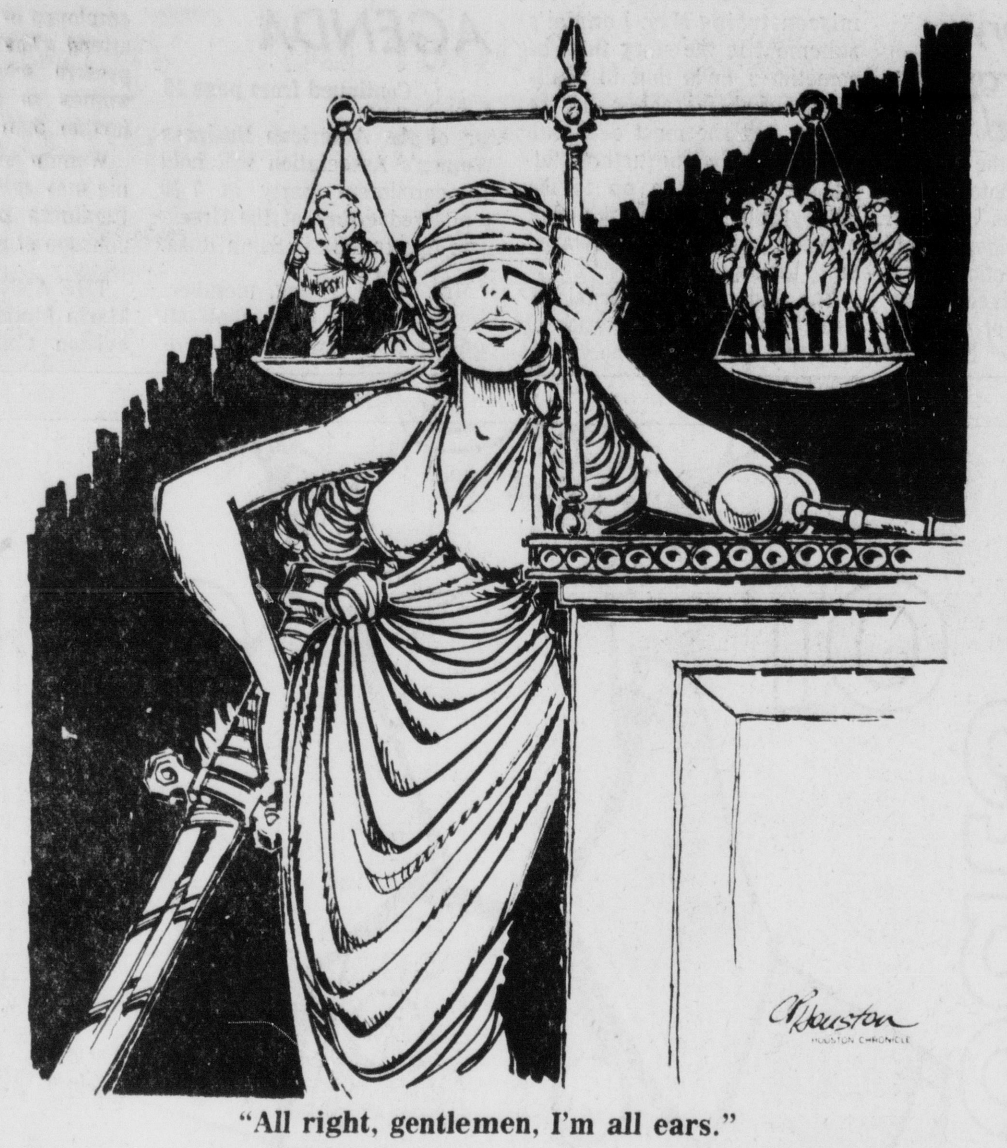
Indeed it was. But our friend's reaction was that of a nature-lover, not a gardener. As Californians become more limited for space, gardeners and nature-lovers find themselves more and more at odds. Deer, rabbits, raccoons, sparrows — all can do great damage to a garden. And it is very difficult to pass judgments because people have various values and by his lights each is right.

The Newcomer Conservationists

Like converts to a religious faith or reformed alcoholics, newcomers to Marin are often so taken by our county's beauty that they want to save it all in its natural state from the hands of more development. Doubtless, this has been going on since the second group of Indians moved here and told the first bunch that this is such a nice place we'll have to be careful or we'll soon be overrun with people. We all hate to see the county lose much of its rural quality. But the beauty will continue to draw people as relentlessly as a magnet. We must accept the fact that no visa is required to enter here, and that other people will continue to fall in love with Marin and want to live here. Accept this fact and work with it, and seek realistic solutions.



"I could care less, Maybelle."



"All right, gentlemen, I'm all ears."

Abortion Violates Rights Of Another

Although Arlene Frees (I-J, Feb. 27) made several untrue statements about the pro-life supporter, I would rather address myself to the issue itself. Mrs. Frees states that a woman syould not be forced into a life shaping decision and suggests that a woman should be given the legal right to kill her own cyild if she has "thought carefully about her decision." Every pro-life supporter would agree that a woman has a right to control her own body and reproduction. This is a matter of private morality. But if a woman becomes pregnant, then there is another human life involved and we are dealing with a newly formed set of rights, the baby's. It then becomes a matter of public morality to protect this life from harm. None of us has unqualified rights. They are always subject to the question: "Do my rights interfere with the rights of others?"

Abortion, sold to the American woman under the guise of personal rights, is extremely difficult to resist by many, since it offers a quick solution for some very personal problems. However, in our quest for greater freedom of choice, we have overstepped safe bounds when including destruction of unborn children as one condition of a true democracy.

Late Political Ad Called Poor Policy

Most concerned citizens hoped they had seen the last of Watergate "dirty tricks" — but they were back in Fairfax in full force last weekend in the form of a full-page advertisement in the I.J.

'Chairperson' Explains Democrats' Mixup

As chairperson of the Democratic Central Committee of Marin I would like to respond to the recent news stories and political advertisement that appeared in the I-J regarding the Democrats allegedly locating their headquarters in the campaign headquarters of a candidate for Congress (John Burton).

I was directed by the central committee to hire a person to direct a voter registration drive and locate a suitable quarters to work out of, not a Democratic headquarters. I asked Land Investors Research Co. of Larkspur if they had any office space that was available. I was informed that the Burton Headquarters (1011 Magnolia Street, Larkspur) might be willing to give up some of their space, and if it were agreeable with that organization, then it would be agreeable with the landlord to lease space to the DCC. I then contacted the Burton people and was told that they indeed did not need all the space and were happy to let part of it go as long as any arrangement was between the DCC and the landlord and not between the DCC and the Burton campaign. The arrangements were thus made.

At the next DCC meeting there was some concern voiced but it was voted (by a vote of nine to seven) to go along with this proposal. Because of the adverse publicity, by the I-J and the Reeves for Congress advertisement, it was decided to try and reconcile the problem. This we did, by a unanimous decision, and decided to have all Democratic campaign headquarters in the county serve as registration points. . .

Unnecessary Mixup At Humane Society

I hope that you will publish this so that someone else will not have the anguish this lady did.

Her little three-pound, six-year-old dog wandered out of the yard and was picked up. The owner contacted the Humane Society, giving a detailed description, and went up to the Humane Society every other day except Saturday and Sunday, only to be told her dog had not been found. She looked through the kennels thoroughly on each visit. Finally on the seventh day she found her little dog there. The Humane Society said that the dog had been brought in seven days ago and charged her board for the seven days, in spite of the fact that she had called so often and even listed the dog in the "lost" book. The owner went to a lot of expense advertising, besides suffering terrible anguish not knowing if her little pet was dead or alive, due to the stupidity of the society's employees.

Britain's Labor Government Must Act Quickly To Survive

LONDON — Harold Wilson's week-old new government is rushing toward the earliest possible end to the coal strike and the short work week, to the general approval of almost the entire British population. The pits are expected to be open and the factories working full time Monday. The price does not seem to matter. Getting Britain back to work does.

Of course, coal miners are going to get higher wages. That has been inevitable ever since this country took a shocked look at the possibility of a general strike which had been raised by the rigidity of the previous Conservative government. The very spectre of such a strike was probably one of the main reasons why the electorate so decisively declined to give the Conservatives a majority in the House of Commons.

But business and financial communities seem so pleased by early back-to-work prospects that they are concerned about the possible consequences of a higher pay round for the miners.

MOST CONSERVATIVE newspapers seemed to be satisfied with Mr. Wilson's cabinet choices and willing to give the new government the benefit of the doubt. The Financial Times calls on other parties "to support the government in sensible policies to meet the national emergency." The conservative Daily Telegraph says that "most people, whatever their persuasion, will want to give the government a fair chance, and will wish it well in its unenviable task."

The essential fact behind this restrained view among Conservatives of a Labor government including some very left-leaning figures on the fringes is that Britain has been stagnant for too long and must get itself going. The Conservatives proposed to do it by a confrontation with the trade unions. Right and left were digging in for a showdown which, in the process, would of course have meant weeks, perhaps months, of idle factories. The question now is whether the gentle approach to the unions and obviously more concern for consumers can make Britain more productive than a policy of confrontation.

THE TASK OF SELLING the idea of wage restraint to the union falls on Michael Foot, the leader of the Labor left. Will the unions take from their friend what they would never accept from a Conservative? The bargaining has begun. The miners, of course, make the most of the opportunity to bargain with friends. Yet they must also know that if they push their advantage too hard, they can quickly and easily destroy a Labor government. The miners, and all other unions, have a stake now in the survival of a government which has exactly five more seats in the House than the Conservatives and can be voted out on any issue which would cause the Liberals, with 14 swing votes, to side with the Conservatives.

Wilson and his new cabinet have two enormous assets. The first is the narrowness of their lead over the Conservatives. It causes their own supporters to be more careful and restrained then they would be with a fat majority. The second is the background fact that inflation grew far worse during the last three years of Conservative rule than ever before.

So people who would normally be made miserable by the fact of a labor government must regard this one as a last best chance for salvaging Britain's economy. Wilson really has nowhere to go but up. It is ironic, yet true, that his country now looks to him for what the Conservatives failed to do — restore the country to financial and economic health.

So Wilson has an excellent chance of a reasonably long honeymoon. There is too much at stake for them to start snapping at his heels for quite a while yet.

What Veto-Proof Pro-Union Congress Might Mean In U.S.

By RICHARD L. STROUT

WASHINGTON — The other day in a hard-hitting political speech in Cincinnati, Vice President Gerald Ford blamed "labor outsiders" for Republican by-election losses in Pennsylvania and Michigan.

Recently I heard House minority leader John Rhodes, speaking at the National Press Club here, respond to a question from the floor by attacking what he called "labor dominance in the Democratic Party."

The question put to him was, suppose the Democrats this fall got a "veto-proof" House majority in Congress, what did he think they would do with it?

WELL, FOR ONE THING, he said, the Democrats might finance welfare and Social Security direct from the Treasury instead of from special taxes; another would be a power play by trade unionists to take over the Democrats, with possible repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act (present code for employer-employee relationships).

Trade unions have nearly always helped bankroll the Democrats. More often than not they wind up with Democrats at election time. There has always been academic speculation about an "American Labor Party," like England's.

Now the Ford-Rhodes comment makes one wonder if the militant campaign of the AFL-CIO for impeachment isn't going to bring a strong counterattack from Republican leaders.

WHAT WOULD ORGANIZED labor do if it were in power as a political party?

Well, the current issue of the Federationist (official monthly magazine of the AFL-CIO) gives an idea. Its theme is "Congress: Time for Decision."

Several goals appear. There would be a tremendous amount of social welfare legislation. A comprehensive national health program would be passed. The government would intervene to build more houses, end tax loopholes, make more jobs, control corporate wealth, and perhaps declare the oil industry a public utility.

Congress would "regain its position as a coequal branch of the government" and the power of the White House would be curbed.

Many of these proposals have a middle-class quality. The AFL-CIO doesn't worry much about federal interference in a free market economy; it is pragmatic, not ideological; it has bread-and-butter issues and goes after them: better pay, shorter hours, and a fairer shake. There's no nonsense here about a proletarian revolution.

BITTEREST AFL-CIO disappointment in the last session was the failure of Congress to override Mr. Nixon's veto of the bill to raise the minimum wage to $2.20 an hour.

Mr. Nixon wants a provision in the bill to allow youngsters to be apprenticed at less than the going wage.

The unemployment rate of black youngsters in the cities is appalling; mostly they are unskilled. Many progressive countries provide lower pay for beginners; many sociologists recommend it. The AFL-CIO is adamantly opposed. Mr. Nixon's insistence on this provision is dismissed as "heartless bias against the poor" and "vindictive."

IN THE MATTER of international trade, a lot of idealists would wonder; the AFL-CIO sounds protectionist and neoisolationist. It wants trade legislation "that will effectively halt the export of American jobs, industry, and technology."

It would "place quotas on imports threatening U.S. products, regulate the outflow of capital, equipments, patents and technology." It would withhold trade favors to Russia until Russian citizens have "the right to emigrate."

David Steinberg, director of the Committee for a National Trade Policy, a free trade organization, held up his hands in horror a few days ago at the AFL-CIO for what he called its "shift to protectionism." He thinks protectionism right now could send the world economy into a tailspin.

In short, the AFL-CIO seems a lot closer to the old protectionist policy of the Republicans, when it comes to trade, than to the Democrats. It's not very easy to characterize its ideology.

Fight On Indoor Air Pollution Gains

ONE OF TODAY'S minor enigmas is how we can have so many people battling to end outdoor air pollution, while we have so few opposed to the pollution of indoor air by tobacco smoke.

Perhaps the imbalance is more apparant than real. Protectors and would-be purifiers of our outdoor air, water, countryside are highly organized, well financed, and of late very effective in making their weight felt.

Those who would like to see indoor air kept free of poisonous tobacco smoke thus far are not so tightly organized nor yet so visible.

There are only 50 Marin names on the membership rolls of the San Francisco chapter of GASP (Group Against Smoking Pollution). Thus far, Marin does not even have a chapter, although one may be organized soon, with at least some of the Marin members of the San Francisco chapter as founders here.

ELSEWHERE, GASP and similar organizations already are on the move. They are beginning to make some progress.

Sacramento and Oakland are among the most recent to adopt "Smoke Control" ordinances.

"The city council," say these ordinances, "finds and declares that tobacco smoke is a hazard to the health of the general public.

"Smoking shall be prohibited in the following places within the city . . .

"(a) Elevators in buildings generally open to the public.

"(b) Waiting rooms or public hallways of every private or public health care facility . . .

"(c) Chambers of the city council . . .

"(d) Within every room, chamber, place of meeting or public assembly . . . during such time as a public meeting is in progress . . .

"(e) Within any building not open to the sky which is primarily used for or designed for the primary purpose of exhibiting any motion picture, stage drama, lecture, musical recital or other similar performance . . .

"(f) Within every restaurant . . .

"(g) In the halls, reading and viewing rooms of museums and libraries . . .

"(h) Buses . . .

"(i) Within retail stores . . ."

The ordinances contain a sprinkling of exceptions which make them workable. They provide for fines of up to $25 per violation.

SMOKING IS DEFINED in these ordinances as "the carrying of a lighted pipe or lighted cigar or lighted cigarette of any kind, of the lighting of a pipe, cigar or cigarette of any kind."

What a blessing for those non-smokers who otherwise find themselves overpowered by the offensive tobacco smoke in such places as elevators, doctors' waiting rooms, theater and restaurants!

San Francisco has approached the problem from a different angle. The board of supervisors there adopted a fire ordinance which requires the posting of "NO SMOKING" signs in certain places, including public elevators, gas stations and garages, retail stores where the floor area exceeds 10,000 square feet, parts of buildings used to house a circus, stock show or horse show, and school buildings.

These prohibitions were put on the books in 1965 but have gone into effect very slowly.

Department stores, it is said, welcomed the regulations. Careless smoking customers cause thousands of dollars damage each year to merchandise, rugs and furniture in retail establishments. Store owners do not wish to antagonize smoking customers by unilateral prohibition of smoking. It is much simpler to post signs reading "NO SMOKING, Smoking Prohibited by Sect. 24.05 of the S.F. Fire Code."

Violation of the San Francisco smoking prohibition can result in fines up to $500 or six months in jail, or both.

NON-SMOKERS of Marin, take heart! Before the year 1974 passes into history, somewhere in the county, Marin's first smoking control ordinance will go on the books. This probably will be preceded by the formal establishment of a Marin chapter of GASP, or some similar group opposed to smoking pollution.

Then we will be on the way toward keeping our indoor air as pure as outdoor air.

The unemployment rate of black youngsters in the cities is appalling; mostly they are unskilled. Many progressive countries provide lower pay for beginners; many sociologists recommend it. The AFL-CIO is adamantly opposed. Mr. Nixon's insistence on this provision is dismissed as "heartless bias against the poor" and "vindictive."

IN THE MATTER of international trade, a lot of idealists would wonder; the AFL-CIO sounds protectionist and neoisolationist. It wants trade legislation "that will effectively halt the export of American jobs, industry, and technology."

It would "place quotas on imports threatening U.S. products, regulate the outflow of capital, equipments, patents and technology." It would withhold trade favors to Russia until Russian citizens have "the right to emigrate."

David Steinberg, director of the Committee for a National Trade Policy, a free trade organization, held up his hands in horror a few days ago at the AFL-CIO for what he called its "shift to protectionism." He thinks protectionism right now could send the world economy into a tailspin.

In short, the AFL-CIO seems a lot closer to the old protectionist policy of the Republicans, when it comes to trade, than to the Democrats. It's not very easy to characterize its ideology.

ART REVIEW

Visions Of A Primitive Painter

By ADA GARFINKEL

A visit to the gallery at the Mill Valley Library this month is like a reentry to the wondrous land of elves and fairies, unicorns, and peaceable lions.

This is the whimsical vision of young primitive artist Anna Silks of San Anselmo, and this is the first showing of her oil paintings.

Miss Silks is mostly self-taught. Her colors are fresh and right, and her approach is direct and amusing.

She loves trees — especially "enchanted ones." Hers seem to have an inner phosphorescent glow. Her "Tree of Life" is a gleaming, androgynous, proliferating cluster like a banyan tree.

The trees in "Swamp" are as grotesque as gargoyles. And in two of her works, "Unicorns" and "Lions and Cubs" which were inspired by the works of the French primitive painter, Henri Rousseau, each leaf and flower is carefully and fully detailed.

One of her paintings was inspired by her readings. "Lothborien" — the "home of elves and the magical mallorn trees" — is from Tolkien's "Trilogy of the Ring," an adult fantasy.

Both her trees and her rocks and stones are organic — soft, rather than hard, round rather than planar. And in her painting titled "Winter," the huge mounds of snow piled up against a river bank are more like huge and sleeping polar bears.

Too, in "Unicorns" the reflections of the animals gazing at themselves in the water are not reflections at all, but flattened self-portraits.

Each of these paintings has its own appeal. They may be seen on Monday through Thursday from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. and 7 p.m. to 9 p.m., and on Friday and Saturday from 2 p.m. to 6 p.m. through March 30.

DRAMA REVIEW

The Rainbow Players Make Big Points With 'Mary Sunshine'

By GERALD GENESE

"LITTLE MARY SUNSHINE" — A two-act musical by Rick Besoyan. Directed by Michael Brian. Produced by Kristi LaBianca for the Rainbow Players of Mill Valley. Set, Tony LaBianca; costumes, Kristi La Bianca, lighting, Tom Shipp. The cast: Little Mary Sunshine, Emily Newton; Captain "Big Jim" Warington, Mark Grover; Cpl. Billy Jester, Dana Kelly; Nancy Twinkle, Kristi La Bianca; MME. Ernestine von Liebdich, Mancy MacLean; General Oscar Fairfax, Tom Shipp; Chief Brown Bear, Michael Brian; Fleet Foot, William Harris; Yellow Feather, Jim Hooks; Cora, Jenny Shipp; Maud, Susan Geary; Gwendoly, Donna Gubbins; Henrietta, Marla Burr; Mable, Susan Baldwin; Pete, Jim Hooks; Tex, Bill Radford; Slim, John Dillingofski; Buster, Al Ford, and Hank, Louis Parnell.

Set in the Rocky Mountains of Colorado, "Little Mary Sunshine", is a delightful spoof of the old Jeanette MacDonald-Nelson Eddy film musicals. Instead of the Northwest Mounties coming to the rescue, the forest rangers fight injustice, government bureaucracy, the Red Men and their own flaming passions for the man hungry young ladies of the Eastchester Finishing School.

The leads, Emily Newton as Little Mary Sunshine and Mark Grover as Capt. "Big Jim" Warington, got off to a shaky beginning, but recovered nicely in the middle of the first act.

Miss Newton has a lovely soprano in the upper register, but is a bit unsteady in the lower register. This may have been due to her initial nervousness.

Grover does need more work on his voice, but he is so physically perfect for the role that one can overlook this.

Mary and "Big Jim" are at their best as he sets out to apprehend the renegade, Yellow Feather. Their duet, "Colorado Love Call", which precedes Jim's mission, is a gem.

A great deal of attention was given the choral work of the Rangers and the young ladies of the Eastchester Finishing School.

The young laides are particularly good in two numbers. Their initial song, "Playing Croquet", is beautifully choreographed by James Piersall, and quite well sung by the girls. In Act II they outdo themselves in the song, "Mata Hari". Their characterizations are separate and distinct, yet they sing as one.

Nancy MacLean, as Ernestine von Liebedich, the robust Viennese opera singer, has the best voice in the company. When she is on stage, Miss MacLean combines poise, a great command of her voice, and a presence that has a very nice unifying quality.

As the bumbling Cpl. Billy Jester, Dana Kelly is at all times funny and occasionally hilarious.

The production has a rousing finale which includes "My Country Tis Of Thee" and more American flags than in Washington, D.C.

The Rainbow Players artistic director, Miss LaBianca has amassed an impressive array of talent.

It is unusual to find a new company with so many good singers who can act and so many good actors who can sing.

"Little Mary Sunshine", will be performed at the Old Mill School in Mill Valley today at 8 p.m., next Thursday at 7 p.m. and next Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m.

Prisons In Texas A Valuable Asset

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (UPI) — Prisons are big business in Texas, primarily due to the 101,000 acres of land operated by the Texas Department of Corrections.

All of the land, buildings and equipment are valued at some $63 million.

Boat Launch Ramp Permit Is Approved

The Marin County Environmental Protection Committee yesterday approved a tidelands permit for construction of a 72-foot boat launching ramp at 4950 Ranch Road near Tiburon.

The permit, requested by Dr. Varon F. Smith of that address, will be valid if no appeal is filed on the county's decision not to require an environmental impact report.

Smith's neighbor, William F. O'Keefe, spoke against the proposed pier yesterday saying it would be too long and too close to his property line.

According to public works officials, O'Keefe has a 154-foot pier on his property. They said portions of it were built without benefit of building and tidelands permits.

O'Keefe in 1972 sought county permission to build a seaplane platform at the end of his pier but was turned down. Smith and other neighbors vigorously opposed the platform.

Marin Catholic To Have Reunion

Marin Catholic High School will hold a reunion for the school's 2,500 graduates April 20 to commemorate the 25th anniversary of the school.

The occasion will include a dinner-dance beginning at 7 p.m. in the school auditorium, according to Patricia Ritchie Pearson, coordinator of the event.

Mrs. Pearson said it is hoped the reunion will be a springboard for the formation of an alumni organization for Marin Catholic which began in 1949 and had its first graduating class in 1950.

Filings Close For June 4 Primary

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

Filing for 17 seats on the Marin ballot in the June 4 primary election closed yesterday with 46 candidates in congressional, legislative, state, county and district contests.

Also filing yesterday were 47 candidates for county central committees for the four political parties.

County Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere escaped opposition in his candidacy for a four-year term in the First District, thus will be reelected automatically. And a last-minute entry assured a contest in the Tamalpais High School District.

Turning in his nomination papers shortly before the 5 p.m. deadline was Dr. Darrell F. Smith of Kentfield, an ophtalmologist. Elaine S. Brockbank of Kentfield previously field for the same seat, to replace trustee Frank L. Miller, who resigned.

In another move to seek the Republican nomination for U.S. Senate, Dr. S. I. Hayakawa of Mill Valley got the elections office to accept his filing for the nomination pending the outcome of new litigation over his challenge to a state law barring him because he has been a member of the party for less than a year. Hayakawa yesterday won an agreement from U.S. District Court Judge Robert F. Peckham to have a three-judge panel of the court hear his case on Thursday in San Francisco.

Hayakawa's challenge previously was turned down by the California Supreme Court, a decision he said yesterday was made by four Republican justices who voted against him and three Democratic justices who voted to uphold his challenge of the law.

The scene in the closing minutes before the deadline to file was controlled pandemonium, with a solid wall of candidates and their wives and children confronting a patient wall of election clerks processing the nomination papers.

Elections Officer Peter C. Meyer said the tabulation of names supplied the Independent-Journal "was subject to human error," and would be double checked Monday. Also to be checked is the validity of the registrations of those signing nomination papers.

Filing closes at 5 p.m. Wednesday for remaining offices on the ballot: county clerk, Divisions 1, 3, 4 and 5 in Marin Municipal Water District, and Almonte, Ross Valley and Novato sanitary districts.

In the state Board of Equalization's Second District, incumbent Democrat William M. Bennett of Kentfield filed for reelection late yesterday. The attorney is seeking a second term. Other local contestants for the seat are Republican Tally P. Mastrangelo of Sausalito, a financial and management consultant, and Edward J. Sullivan of San Anselmo, a real estate broker.

The Sonoma County elections office reported the filing of a campaign statement by Joyce W. Stancliffe for the seat, but had no other information. The district has 28 counties.

Also on the June ballot will be contenders for governor, lieutenant governor, secretary of state, controller, treasurer, attorney general and state superintendent of schools. Running for state office from Marin are William Matson of Roth, candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor, and Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, seeking his party's nomination for controller.

Other candidates in the primary election are:

CONGRESS — Nine persons are seeking the Fifth District seat held many years by Republican William S. Mailliard. The district includes Marin, rural Petaluma and roughly the northern half of San Francisco.

Democratic candidates are: Assemblyman John L. Burton, an attorney, Alan F. Reeves, management consultant, and Alan D. French, carpenter, all of San Francisco, and Terence V. McGuire of San Rafael, owner of a real estate business. Announced Democratic candidates George C. Kiskaddon of San Francisco and Lloyd F. Harolds of Novato did not file, nor did possible candidate Roger Boas of San Francisco.

Republican candidates are: Jean Margaret Wall, attorney and teacher, Thomas O. Caylor, writer, both of San Francisco, and Sean McCarthy of San Rafael. Seeking the Peace and Freedom Party nomination are Rev. Raymond Broshears, who runs a community center, and Anne Fibush.

SENATE — Incumbent Republican Peter H. Behr, of Tiburon, an attorney, is opposed by Sonoma County Supervisor Robert Theiller of Santa Rosa, former owner of a real estate business.

Democratic candidates are Mendocino County Supervisor Ernest F. Banker of Ukiah, who is in the real estate and insurance businesses, and Leslie A. Grant of San Rafael, retired accountant.

Grant, however, filed a pauper's oath that he could not pay the $211 fee, and will not appear on the ballot unless the issue of such oaths is settled before March 28 in a similar case before the U.S. Supreme Court. Unopposed for the Peace and Freedom Party nomination is Toni Novak-Sutley of Penngrove.

ASSEMBLY — Ten candidates are seeking the Ninth Assembly District seat being vacated by Bagley. It includes Marin and Southern Sonoma.

Democratic candidates are: Deputy Marin County Counsel George J. Silvestri of Novato; Marin County Supervisor Michael Wornum of Mill Valley, architect and planner; Jack R. Felson of Forest Knolls, a director of Marin Municipal Water District and owner of a children's camp; Harry J. Moore of Novato, principal of a junior high school, and Louis D. Saselli of Corte Madera, insurance broker and vice president of an automated management systems firm.

Republican candidates are A. Alan Hill of San Rafael, deputy secretary of the state Agriculture and Services Agency; Mill Valley City Councilman Gerald J. Hood, a real estate investment counselor; Susan A. Delaplane of Tiburon, writer, and Albert J. Schloegel of Rohnert Park, business consultant.

BOARD OF SUPERVISORS — Incumbent Arnold M. Baptiste of Novato, deputy director and cost analyst for Pacific Maritime Association, is challenged for reelection in the Fifth District by Betty Machado of Novato, long active in civic affairs.

COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS — Incumbent Virgil S. Hollis of Tiburon is challenged for reelection by Joseph D. Gargiulo of Novato, principal of Novato Adult Evening High School.

DISTRICT ATTORNEY — Incumbent Bruce B. Bales of San Rafael is challenged by attorney Harry A. Connick of San Rafael and Edward M. Krug of San Rafael, a deputy district attorney in Sonoma County.

CORONER — The incumbent, Dr. Donovan O. Cooke of Belvedere, is challenged for reelection by Dr. Ervin J. Jindrich of Mill Valley, acting chief medical examiner for the City and County of San Francisco.

TREASURER-TAX COLLECTOR — Incumbent Stanley J. Fontez of Novato is unopposed for reelection. Corte Madera Town Treasurer Frank Bigley had announced he would oppose Fontez, but decided to run for county clerk.

COUNTY RECORDER — Incumbent Noel T. Giacomini of San Rafael is challenged for reelection by Klaus Martin of San Rafael, a draftsman and carpenter.

Voters also will ballot in three santiary districts. Only in the Homestead Valley Sanitary District will there be no election. Incumbents James G. MacNichols, a manufacturers representative, and Kenyon Spaulding, retired utility engineer, were the only candidates to file for their expiring terms.

With 22 seats each for their county central committees, the Republicans had 31 candidates and the Democrats only 16. The new committees will fill vacancies resulting from the lack of candidates.

No candidates filed for either the Peace and Freedom of American Indepencent partys' central committees.

Filing for the Republican committee in the first Supervisorial District, with five seats, were Edward A. Medvic, Sesto F. Lucchi, Edmund A. Duggan, William S. Richards, John T. Schmitz, James A. Rowen, Barbara D. Stidham, Mark C. Riordan and Michael Djordjevich.

In the Second District, with five seats, candidates are Sally W. Cockle, Kirk A. Pessner, Jane S. Alexander, Jeanne P. Wellinger, Peter Brekhus, Bert Inman, William G. Fleckles, Ada J. Chater and Ruby E. Streiff.

In the Fourth District, only three candidates filed for three seats — Helen Gardner, Howard C. Harvey and James Dougan.

Fifth District Republicans also will have no contest since only four filed for the four seats: Edward V. Lathrop, Ruth A. Smith, Bernice M. Rueger and George C. Quesada.

The only contest for seats on the central Democratic central committee will be in the Third Supervisorial District, where seven filed for six seats: Thomas B. Birch, S. Robert Politzer, Helen H. Womack, Catherine J. Waycott, Kim Kruglick, Lynn M. Roth and Susan M. Bradley.

Mary Henry was the only person to file in the Fourth District, which has four seats.

No one filed for the three seats in the Fifth District.

Filing For Clerk Closes Wednesday

Filing for the county clerk position will close Wednesday under a new provision of state law applicable to county and state positions when the incumbent is not seeking reelection.

The Independent-Journal erred yesterday in saying the filing deadline was 5 p.m. yesterday.

Four County Contests Shape Up For Voters In Southern Sonoma

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — Southern Sonoma voters yesterday were assured of four contests for county offices on June 4 by the 5 p.m. niling deadline for the election.

Incumbent Supervisor Philip L. Joerger of Petaluma will face challenges by Rohnert Park Councilman Louis G. Beary and Petaluman William H. Kortum.

Challenging Dist. Atty. John W. Hawkes of Santa Rosa will be assistant public defender Gene L. Tunney of Glen Ellen, brother of U.S. Sen. John V. Tunney, D-Calif., and son of former heavyweight boxing champion Gene Tunney.

Sheriff Don Striepeke of Sebastopol faces competition from Paul A. Neuer, a Santa Rosa lawyer.

A three-way race has developed for the county recorder position, with incumbent Herb Snyder Jr. of Santa Rosa being challenged by Larry O. Schultz of Forestville and Raymond Raffaini.

North Coast Republican Rep. Don Clausen will be challenged by M. John Boskovich of Santa Rosa, a Democrat, and Carole J. Glass of Cotati, Peace and Freedom candidate.

All the county offices are nonpartisan. If a candidate receives a majority of the votes cast on June 4, he is elected. Otherwise the two candidates receiving the highest number of votes will compete in the Nov. 5 general election.

Six Consultant Interviews Set

Six San Francisco firms, selected as finalists for two consulting positions for San Rafael redevelopment planning, will be interviewed by the city council acting as the redevelopment agency March 19.

Selection of economic and physical planning consultants may be made that night, according to Ralph H. Neal, assistant executive director of the city's redevelopment agency.

Finalists selected Thursday night by the citizens advisory committee on redevelopment were: economic planning, Lord and Associates and Kaiser-Marston Associates; physical planning, Odermatt, Mountjoy and Amis, Wurster, Bernardi, Emmons Inc., Hall and Goodhue Community Design Group, and Wallace McHarg, Roberts and Todd.

No one filed for the three seats in the Fifth District.

Filing For Clerk Closes Wednesday

Filing for the county clerk position will close Wednesday under a new provision of state law applicable to county and state positions when the incumbent is not seeking reelection.

The Independent-Journal erred yesterday in saying the filing deadline was 5 p.m. yesterday.

Four County Contests Shape Up For Voters In Southern Sonoma

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — Southern Sonoma voters yesterday were assured of four contests for county offices on June 4 by the 5 p.m. niling deadline for the election.

Incumbent Supervisor Philip L. Joerger of Petaluma will face challenges by Rohnert Park Councilman Louis G. Beary and Petaluman William H. Kortum.

Challenging Dist. Atty. John W. Hawkes of Santa Rosa will be assistant public defender Gene L. Tunney of Glen Ellen, brother of U.S. Sen. John V. Tunney, D-Calif., and son of former heavyweight boxing champion Gene Tunney.

Sheriff Don Striepeke of Sebastopol faces competition from Paul A. Neuer, a Santa Rosa lawyer.

A three-way race has developed for the county recorder position, with incumbent Herb Snyder Jr. of Santa Rosa being challenged by Larry O. Schultz of Forestville and Raymond Raffaini.

North Coast Republican Rep. Don Clausen will be challenged by M. John Boskovich of Santa Rosa, a Democrat, and Carole J. Glass of Cotati, Peace and Freedom candidate.

All the county offices are nonpartisan. If a candidate receives a majority of the votes cast on June 4, he is elected. Otherwise the two candidates receiving the highest number of votes will compete in the Nov. 5 general election.

Six Consultant Interviews Set

Six San Francisco firms, selected as finalists for two consulting positions for San Rafael redevelopment planning, will be interviewed by the city council acting as the redevelopment agency March 19.

Selection of economic and physical planning consultants may be made that night, according to Ralph H. Neal, assistant executive director of the city's redevelopment agency.

Finalists selected Thursday night by the citizens advisory committee on redevelopment were: economic planning, Lord and Associates and Kaiser-Marston Associates; physical planning, Odermatt, Mountjoy and Amis, Wurster, Bernardi, Emmons Inc., Hall and Goodhue Community Design Group, and Wallace McHarg, Roberts and Todd.

Unless you mean business . . . We are now considering qualified applicants in your area to become a working part of our National "Hot Food" Distributor System. You are not applying for a job! You are applying for a very high profit business of your own. NO EXPERIENCE NECESSARY—NO SELLING INVOLVED. This business can be started part time—no need to quit your job. Can be expanded full time with company financing. We need people we can depend on. Our products are nationally famous "Hot Food" items. We have over 36 varieties of Hot Soups and Hot Entrees, such as Beef Stew, Chicken & Dumplings, Chili & Beans, and on and on. We have all of America's favorites. All these delicious products are sold from the latest in automatic vending equipment. Your route will be established and installed by us. Your age is not a factor if you qualify. Perfect for a nice couple to operate as a family business.

INVITATION FOR PROPOSAL

Sealed bids will be received in the office of Marin Municipal Water District, 220 Nellen Avenue, Corte Madera, California 94925, until 10:00 a.m., Tuesday, Mar. 26, 1974, at which time they will be opened and read in the Board of Directors room by the Secretary or her designated representative for the construction of the Chula Vista Pumphouse.

The general prevailing rate of wages in the locality in which work is to be performed has been ascertained by the District and published under the provisions of Section 1773 of the California Labor Code.

Copies of the prevailing wage rates are on file in the office of the Secretary of the District at 220 Nellen Avenue, Corte Madera, and in the office of the Marin County Clerk, and are available upon request from the Secretary at the above address and also from the Marin County Department of Public Works, Civic Center, Room 304, San Rafael, California.

Sundays and holidays shall not be less than two (2) times the above rates. The holidays upon which such rates shall be paid shall be all holidays recognized in the collective bargaining agreement applicable to the particular craft, classification or type of workman employed on the project.

It shall be mandatory upon the contractor to whom the contract is awarded and upon any subcontractor under him to pay not less than the said specified rates to all laborers, workmen and mechanics employed by them in the execution of the contract.

Proposals will be considered for the complete job only. The proposal must be submitted on the form provided and must be accompanied by a Certified Check, Cash, Post Office Money Order or Bid Bond as a guarantee that the bidder will, if successful, promptly execute a satisfactory contract and furnish bonds as required by these specifications. The Certified Check, Cash, Post Office Money Order or Bid Bond shall be not less than ten (10) per cent of the total amount of the bid and shall be made payable to the Treasurer of the Marin Municipal Water District.

Proposals must be submitted in a sealed envelope addressed to the attention of Mrs. Norma L. Smith, Secretary, with the words "Proposal for Construction of Chula Vista Pumphouse, Contract No. 588," clearly marked on the outside of the envelope.

Specifications may be obtained at 220 Nellen Avenue, Corte Madera, the office of the District. The $25.00 deposit required for each set of specifications will be refunded when specifications are returned to the District. It is requested that those Contractors wishing a Water District representative to accompany them on their first visit to the site of the work, notify the District sufficiently in advance so that necessary arrangements may be made.

Progress payments will be made.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that, subject to confirmation by the above entitled Superior Court, on March 13, 1974, at 9:00 A.M., or thereafter within the time allowed by law, the undersigned, as executor of the will of CHARLES E. TROSTEL, deceased, will sell at private sale to the highest and best net bidder on the terms and conditions hereinafter mentioned all right, title, and interest of CHARLES E. TROSTEL, deceased, at the time of his death and all right, title and interest that the estate has acquired in addition to that of decedent at the time of his death, in the real property located in the County of Marin, State of California, described as follows:

PARCEL ONE:

PARCEL A, as shown on that certain map entitled, "Record of Survey, Portion of Lot 163, Subdivisions A and B of the Novato Ranch, filed October 15, 1963 in Book 3 of Surveys at page 54, Marin County Records.

PARCEL TWO:

That certain 40 foot easement for ingress and egress and utility purposes as shown over Parcel B, as shown on that certain map entitled, "Record of Survey, Portion of Lot 163, Subdivisions A and B of the Novato Ranch", filed October 15, 1963 in Book 3 of Surveys at page 54, Marin County Records.

The property is commonly referred to as 734 McClay Road, Novato, California.

The sale is subject to current taxes, covenants, conditions, restrictions, reservations, rights, rights of way, and easements of record, the purchaser to assume any encumbrances of record.

Bids or offers are invited for this property and must be in writing and will be received at the office of PALMER, GRUNDSTROM & DUCKWORTH, attorneys for said executor, at 1001 Fourth Street, P.O. Box 26, Novato, California, or may be filed with the clerk of said Superior Court or delivered to PALMER, GRUNDSTROM & DUCKWORTH personally, at any time after first publication of this notice and before making of said sale.

The property will be sold on the following terms: Cash or part cash and part credit, the terms of such credit to be acceptable to the undersigned and to the Superior Court, ten percent (10%) of the amount bid to accompany the offer by certified check, and the balance to be paid on confirmation of sale by the Superior Court. Taxes, rents, operating and maintenance expenses, and premiums on insurance acceptable to the purchaser shall be prorated as of the date of recording of conveyance. Examination of title, recording of conveyance, and any title insurance policy shall be at the expense of the purchaser or purchasers.

The undersigned reserves the right to reject any and all bids prior to entry of an order confirming the sale.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Parasitosis Sufferers Usually Have An Emotional Disturbance

From time to time our readers send us strange items. We have received a bottle or box containing bits of lint, dead skin, crumbs, and other debris. These people write that the enclosures were rubbed off or dug out from under the skin. We've even received a bottle filled with ants. No wonder my secretaries are a bit squeamish about opening small containers.

Parasitosis is a delusion that live organisms such as insects or mites are present in or under the skin. Victims of this peculiar condition sue various agents to extract their imaginary parasites. Some resort to fingernails, scissors, tweezers, knives, wire brushes, or pins. Others apply strong antiseptics or insecticides.

THE ENSUING mutilation may leave scars that are especially ugly on exposed parts of the body. The wounds heal slowly, particularly when they are irritated or become infected.

It is understandable how some oldsters acquire this delusion. The brain is softening and the aging skin is dry and itchy. The victim cannot understand what is wrong because the skin looks normal; he concludes that some tiny parasite has gone underground. Scratching fails to relieve distress so he goes deeper. Other patients with parasitosis have an ordinary mental disorder. But instead of hearing voices or seeing imaginary people or animals, they are convinced there are ants or beetles under the skin.

NOW AND then a phobia is responsible. The victims have an abnormal fear of contamination and can't be convinced that the crawling sensation is not due to bug infestation. They even recognize the irrational nature of their fears but can do nothing about it.

Physicians have learned to go through the process of examining these patients in a search for the crawlers. Occasionally, the skin is infested with lice or mites. Centuries ago, the problem was complicated by the fact that almost everyone harbord a few lice or other insects on their skin or scalp. In general, however, the basic cause of parasitosis is an emotional disturbance.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies reqest c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, 1040 B St., San Rafael, Ca. 94902. Telephone inquiries will not be answered.

LOVED HIS BATH

Mrs. B. writes: Up until six months ago, my 2-year-old son loved his bath. At that time I bought a washing machine and since then he has become afraid of water. The machine vibrates quite a lot and makes the floor and kitchen shake. He runs away when the water drains out into the sink. Should I continue baths, or just sponge him down every night?

REPLY

Continue the baths if you want him clean. Stop fussing and don't make a federal project of the daily bath. Be firm but gentle. Give him a small plastic toy to play with in the tub.

CERVICAL RIB

S. J. writes: Should anything be done about a cervical rib?

REPLY

No, unless it presses upon the nerves or blood vessels in the neck and is painful or distrubs circulation to the upper extremities.

BABY HAS ASTHMA

N. R. writes: My 6-month-old baby was born with bronchial asthma. I have seen older prople suffer from this condition and am worried about the kind of life my child will lead. Is there any chance of her outgrowing it?

REPLY

Time will tell, but bronchial asthma at this age requires a thorough investigation of the breathing apparatus as well as allergy studies. Send stamped self-addressed envelope for leaflet on bronchial asthma.

ADVERTISEMENT FOR BIDS

Notice is hereby given that the Board of Trustees of the Laguna Joint School, Marin County, California, will receive bids for furnishing all labor, materials, transportation and services for the REHABILITATION OF LAGUNA JOINT SCHOOL on the property of the School District at Laguna Joint School, Marin County, California; each bid to be in accordance with plans, specifications and other Contract Documents now on file with Engle and Engle, Structural Engineers, 1539 Fourth Street, San Rafael, California. Plans may be examined and copies obtained at the office of Engle and Engle. Plans shall be returned in good condition within five (5) days after bids are opened.

Bidders are hereby notified that pursuant to the statutes of the State of California, or local laws thereto applicable, the Board of Trustees of the Laguna Joint School, has ascertained the general prevailing rate of wages and rates for legal holiday and overtime work in the locality in which this work is to be performed, for each craft or type of workman or mechanic needed to execute the Contract which will be awarded to the successful bidder.

A schedule of the Prevailing rates so determined is on file in the office of the Superintendent of Schools, Marin County, California.

It shall be mandatory upon the Contractor to whom the Contract is awarded, and upon any subcontractor under him, to pay not less than the said specified rates to all laborers, workmen and mechanics employed by them in the execution of the Contract.

Notice is hereby given that all bidders may submit with their bids, a sworn statement of their financial responsibility, technical ability and experience. Such sworn statement may be required to be furnished before award is made to any particular bidder.

Bids shall be made out on forms to be obtained at the office of Engle and Engle, 1539 Fourth Street, San Rafael, California; shall be accompanied by a certified cashier's check or bid bond for ten per cent (10%) of the amount of the bid made payable to the Laguna Joint School; shall be sealed and clearly marked: REHABILITATION OF LAGUNA JOINT SCHOOL and filed with Engle and Engle at 1539 Fourth Street, San Rafael, California, on or before 4:00 p.m. March 22, 1974 at San Rafael, California, and will be opened and publicly read aloud at that hour on that date in the office of Engle and Engle, 1539 Fourth Street, San Rafael, California.

The above mentioned check or bond shall be given as a guarantee that the bidder will enter into the Contract if awarded to him and will be declared forfeited if the successful bidder refuses to enter into said Contract after being requested to do so by the Laguna Joint School.

The Laguna Joint School reserves the right to reject any and all bids or waive any informality in the bid.

No bidder may withdraw his bid for a period of thirty (30) days after the date set for the opening thereof.

INVITATION FOR PROPOSAL

Sealed bids will be received in the office of Marin Municipal Water District, 220 Nellen Avenue, Corte Madera, California 94925, until 10:00 a.m., Tuesday, Mar. 26, 1974, at which time they will be opened and read in the Board of Directors room by the Secretary or her designated representative for the construction of the Chula Vista Pumphouse.

The general prevailing rate of wages in the locality in which work is to be performed has been ascertained by the District and published under the provisions of Section 1773 of the California Labor Code.

Copies of the prevailing wage rates are on file in the office of the Secretary of the District at 220 Nellen Avenue, Corte Madera, and in the office of the Marin County Clerk, and are available upon request from the Secretary at the above address and also from the Marin County Department of Public Works, Civic Center, Room 304, San Rafael, California.

Sundays and holidays shall not be less than two (2) times the above rates. The holidays upon which such rates shall be paid shall be all holidays recognized in the collective bargaining agreement applicable to the particular craft, classification or type of workman employed on the project.

It shall be mandatory upon the contractor to whom the contract is awarded and upon any subcontractor under him to pay not less than the said specified rates to all laborers, workmen and mechanics employed by them in the execution of the contract.

Proposals will be considered for the complete job only. The proposal must be submitted on the form provided and must be accompanied by a Certified Check, Cash, Post Office Money Order or Bid Bond as a guarantee that the bidder will, if successful, promptly execute a satisfactory contract and furnish bonds as required by these specifications. The Certified Check, Cash, Post Office Money Order or Bid Bond shall be not less than ten (10) per cent of the total amount of the bid and shall be made payable to the Treasurer of the Marin Municipal Water District.

Proposals must be submitted in a sealed envelope addressed to the attention of Mrs. Norma L. Smith, Secretary, with the words "Proposal for Construction of Chula Vista Pumphouse, Contract No. 588," clearly marked on the outside of the envelope.

Specifications may be obtained at 220 Nellen Avenue, Corte Madera, the office of the District. The $25.00 deposit required for each set of specifications will be refunded when specifications are returned to the District. It is requested that those Contractors wishing a Water District representative to accompany them on their first visit to the site of the work, notify the District sufficiently in advance so that necessary arrangements may be made.

Progress payments will be made.

NOTICE OF INTENTION TO SELL REAL PROPERTY AT PRIVATE SALE
NO. 21240

Superior Court of the State of California, County of Marin

Estate of CHARLES E. TROSTEL, Deceased.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that, subject to confirmation by the above entitled Superior Court, on March 13, 1974, at 9:00 A.M., or thereafter within the time allowed by law, the undersigned, as executor of the will of CHARLES E. TROSTEL, deceased, will sell at private sale to the highest and best net bidder on the terms and conditions hereinafter mentioned all right, title, and interest of CHARLES E. TROSTEL, deceased, at the time of his death and all right, title and interest that the estate has acquired in addition to that of decedent at the time of his death, in the real property located in the County of Marin, State of California, described as follows:

PARCEL ONE:
PARCEL A, as shown on that certain map entitled, "Record of Survey, Portion of Lot 163, Subdivisions A and B of the Novato Ranch, filed October 15, 1963 in Book 3 of Surveys at page 54, Marin County Records.
PARCEL TWO:
That certain 40 foot easement for ingress and egress and utility purposes as shown over Parcel B, as shown on that certain map entitled, "Record of Survey, Portion of Lot 163, Subdivisions A and B of the Novato Ranch", filed October 15, 1963 in Book 3 of Surveys at page 54, Marin County Records.

The property is commonly referred to as 734 McClay Road, Novato, California.

The sale is subject to current taxes, covenants, conditions, restrictions, reservations, rights, rights of way, and easements of record, the purchaser to assume any encumbrances of record.

Bids or offers are invited for this property and must be in writing and will be received at the office of PALMER, GRUNDSTROM & DUCKWORTH, attorneys for said executor, at 1001 Fourth Street, P.O. Box 26, Novato, California, or may be filed with the clerk of said Superior Court or delivered to PALMER, GRUNDSTROM & DUCKWORTH personally, at any time after first publication of this notice and before making of said sale.

The property will be sold on the following terms: Cash or part cash and part credit, the terms of such credit to be acceptable to the undersigned and to the Superior Court, ten percent (10%) of the amount bid to accompany the offer by certified check, and the balance to be paid on confirmation of sale by the Superior Court. Taxes, rents, operating and maintenance expenses, and premiums on insurance acceptable to the purchaser shall be prorated as of the date of recording of conveyance. Examination of title, recording of conveyance, and any title insurance policy shall be at the expense of the purchaser or purchasers.

The undersigned reserves the right to reject any and all bids prior to entry of an order confirming the sale.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Parasitosis Sufferers Usually Have An Emotional Disturbance

From time to time our readers send us strange items. We have received a bottle or box containing bits of lint, dead skin, crumbs, and other debris. These people write that the enclosures were rubbed off or dug out from under the skin. We've even received a bottle filled with ants. No wonder my secretaries are a bit squeamish about opening small containers.

Parasitosis is a delusion that live organisms such as insects or mites are present in or under the skin. Victims of this peculiar condition sue various agents to extract their imaginary parasites. Some resort to fingernails, scissors, tweezers, knives, wire brushes, or pins. Others apply strong antiseptics or insecticides.

THE ENSUING mutilation may leave scars that are especially ugly on exposed parts of the body. The wounds heal slowly, particularly when they are irritated or become infected.

It is understandable how some oldsters acquire this delusion. The brain is softening and the aging skin is dry and itchy. The victim cannot understand what is wrong because the skin looks normal; he concludes that some tiny parasite has gone underground. Scratching fails to relieve distress so he goes deeper. Other patients with parasitosis have an ordinary mental disorder. But instead of hearing voices or seeing imaginary people or animals, they are convinced there are ants or beetles under the skin.

NOW AND then a phobia is responsible. The victims have an abnormal fear of contamination and can't be convinced that the crawling sensation is not due to bug infestation. They even recognize the irrational nature of their fears but can do nothing about it.

Physicians have learned to go through the process of examining these patients in a search for the crawlers. Occasionally, the skin is infested with lice or mites. Centuries ago, the problem was complicated by the fact that almost everyone harbord a few lice or other insects on their skin or scalp. In general, however, the basic cause of parasitosis is an emotional disturbance.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies reqest c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, 1040 B St., San Rafael, Ca. 94902. Telephone inquiries will not be answered.

LOVED HIS BATH

Mrs. B. writes: Up until six months ago, my 2-year-old son loved his bath. At that time I bought a washing machine and since then he has become afraid of water. The machine vibrates quite a lot and makes the floor and kitchen shake. He runs away when the water drains out into the sink. Should I continue baths, or just sponge him down every night?

REPLY

Continue the baths if you want him clean. Stop fussing and don't make a federal project of the daily bath. Be firm but gentle. Give him a small plastic toy to play with in the tub.

CERVICAL RIB

S. J. writes: Should anything be done about a cervical rib?

REPLY

No, unless it presses upon the nerves or blood vessels in the neck and is painful or distrubs circulation to the upper extremities.

BABY HAS ASTHMA

N. R. writes: My 6-month-old baby was born with bronchial asthma. I have seen older prople suffer from this condition and am worried about the kind of life my child will lead. Is there any chance of her outgrowing it?

REPLY

Time will tell, but bronchial asthma at this age requires a thorough investigation of the breathing apparatus as well as allergy studies. Send stamped self-addressed envelope for leaflet on bronchial asthma.

ADVERTISEMENT FOR BIDS

Notice is hereby given that the Board of Trustees of the Laguna Joint School, Marin County, California, will receive bids for furnishing all labor, materials, transportation and services for the REHABILITATION OF LAGUNA JOINT SCHOOL on the property of the School District at Laguna Joint School, Marin County, California; each bid to be in accordance with plans, specifications and other Contract Documents now on file with Engle and Engle, Structural Engineers, 1539 Fourth Street, San Rafael, California. Plans may be examined and copies obtained at the office of Engle and Engle. Plans shall be returned in good condition within five (5) days after bids are opened.

Bidders are hereby notified that pursuant to the statutes of the State of California, or local laws thereto applicable, the Board of Trustees of the Laguna Joint School, has ascertained the general prevailing rate of wages and rates for legal holiday and overtime work in the locality in which this work is to be performed, for each craft or type of workman or mechanic needed to execute the Contract which will be awarded to the successful bidder.

A schedule of the Prevailing rates so determined is on file in the office of the Superintendent of Schools, Marin County, California.

It shall be mandatory upon the Contractor to whom the Contract is awarded, and upon any subcontractor under him, to pay not less than the said specified rates to all laborers, workmen and mechanics employed by them in the execution of the Contract.

Notice is hereby given that all bidders may submit with their bids, a sworn statement of their financial responsibility, technical ability and experience. Such sworn statement may be required to be furnished before award is made to any particular bidder.

Bids shall be made out on forms to be obtained at the office of Engle and Engle, 1539 Fourth Street, San Rafael, California; shall be accompanied by a certified cashier's check or bid bond for ten per cent (10%) of the amount of the bid made payable to the Laguna Joint School; shall be sealed and clearly marked: REHABILITATION OF LAGUNA JOINT SCHOOL and filed with Engle and Engle at 1539 Fourth Street, San Rafael, California, on or before 4:00 p.m. March 22, 1974 at San Rafael, California, and will be opened and publicly read aloud at that hour on that date in the office of Engle and Engle, 1539 Fourth Street, San Rafael, California.

The above mentioned check or bond shall be given as a guarantee that the bidder will enter into the Contract if awarded to him and will be declared forfeited if the successful bidder refuses to enter into said Contract after being requested to do so by the Laguna Joint School.

The Laguna Joint School reserves the right to reject any and all bids or waive any informality in the bid.

No bidder may withdraw his bid for a period of thirty (30) days after the date set for the opening thereof.

STREAKERS IN THE NIGHT — The international streaking fad came to Marin last night as three young men, wearing goose pimples, shoes and masks, dashed down Broadway in Fairfax. Independent-Journal photographer Alfred Arn, acting on an anonymous tip, was at the scene at 8:30 p.m. when the three, reportedly Sir Francis Drake High School students, ran by and darted into an alley near the Fairfax Theater.

They Streak From Kansas To Paris

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Remember the song that went, "birds do it, bees do it...," and applied to falling in love?

A new one may have to be written now for streaking—the newest spring ritual of the American student set that spread around the world yesterday.

From the gleaming girders of the Eiffel Tower in Paris to the stolid chambers of the Kansas State House, men and women appeared in the buff, with reactions running the gamut.

In Heidelberg, Germany, two streakers, wearing only neckties and tennis shoes, dashed into the U.S. officers club Rathskeller, around the tables and then back outside.

"Ties are not required there," said a U.S. Army public relations officer.

Thirteen streakers wearing oly University of Illinois signs on their bare backs dashed through a park in the shadow of the Parisian landmark, and in Sydney, Australia, more than 20 streakers were sighted running through everything from libraries to Kentucky Fried Chicken stands.

In the United States, a half-dozen nude collegians flashed within a block of Vice President Gerald F. Ford in Tampa, Fla., while one fully clothed picket carried a sign berating: "Tampa U streakers want the naked truth about Watergate."

About 25 streakers brought rush hour traffic to a standstill on San Francisco's Golden Gate Bridge. Observers said the group apparently was composed mainly of men believed to be students at Stanford University.

Four streakers sprinted and yelled their way through the Kansas State House in Topeka as stunned visitors, secretaries and officials watched in amazement or turned away in embarrassment. One of the streakers, a woman, was arrested outside the Capitol by police.

"I'm really mad," said one Kansas assistant attorney general, asking not to be identified. "It's really dumb to arrest her. people are having fun.

"This thing has caught attention and for a change people are laughing. Then the police do a dumb thing and arrest one of them."

About 75 streakers, followed by a 10-piece brass band and a crowd of spectators, ran 1.5 miles across the Princeton University campus and ended their jog by interrupting a televised swim meet.

About a dozen of the streakers, most of whom wore only shoes, jumped into the pool at the Eastern Seaboard Intercollegiate swim meet, delaying the 100-year breast stroke briefly.

In a more somber note, streaking took its first two fatalities.

A student at East Central State College in Ada, Okla., died Friday of injuries received Tuesday night when he rode a motorcycle into two parked automobiles wearing nothing but a crash helmet and a gas mask.

A nude man was struck and killed as he darted across the busy, five-lane Dallas-Fort Worth Turnpike in Texas, but police said a bottle of codeine-spiked cough syrup may have had more to do with it than streaking.

Assembly Candidate Opens 'Truth-In-Energy' Policy Drive

Jack R. Felson of Forest Knolls, candidate for the Democratic nomination in the Ninth Assembly District, has launched a petition drive asking the attorney general and governor to begin antitrust proceedings against California oil companies.

They also ask the Legislature to appropriate funds to operate an "energy task force" within the attorney general's office, a proposal made earlier by Felson. A "truth-in-energy" bill is asked by the petitions to require oil companies to disclose their supplies, deliveries, allocations, costs, prices and profits.

Felson's petition urges legislation to protect independent oil producers, refiners, suppliers and dealers "from predatory business practices and unfair competition by major California oil companies."

The petitions will be delivered to the governor by mid-May. Copies are available for circulation at Felson's headquarters, 1414 Fourth Street, San Rafael.

BURTON — Assemblyman John L. Burton, D-San Francisco, candidate for his party's nomination in the Fifth Congressional District, had pledged that if elected he would maintain a district office to serve Marin and Southern Sonoma. The former incumbent, Republican William S. Mailliard, did the same thing for the past two years.

MEYER — Coffees for Peter C. Meyer of San Rafael, candidate for Marin County clerk, will be at 8 p.m. Tuesday at the San Rafael home of Frederick E. Trupp, 63 Jewell Street, and 10 a.m. on Thursday at the San Rafael home of Richard P. Godwin, 229 Summit Avenue.

Jury Convicts On Two Drug Charges

A construction worker charged with four drug counts was convicted yesterday of two of them.

After more than 20 hours of deliberation over four days, a Marin Superior Court jury found William Reid Lane, 39, guilty of possessing cocaine and marijuana, both felonies.

But on three other charges — selling cocaine, possessing hashish oil for sale and possessing a firearm silencer — the jury deadlocked.

On March 18 Judge Henry J. Broderick, who presided over the 14 days of testimony, will set a new trial date on the three counts in which there was no verdict.

Jurors said they voted 11 to 1 for conviction on the cocaine sale count, 7 to 5 for conviction on the hashish oil and 8 to 4 for conviction on the silencer possession charge.

The jurors said they believed the testimony of star prosecution witness Wesley Schlagel, a paid narcotics informant.

Schlagel testified that he negotiated with Lane for the purchase of two pounds of cocaine, a deal never consummated.

Defense attorney J. Tony Serra presented a rebuttal witness who described Schlagel as a homosexual who used drugs during his investigation into narcotics activities. In prior testimony, Schlagel denied being a homosexual or using drugs.

Lane was one of five persons arrested in connection with a raid on a house on Belvedere's Corinthian Island last July and the seizure of four gallons of hashish oil. Marijuana, coacine and a pistol equipped with a silencer also were seized.

Of the other four, Robert Lee Burton, 27, was not charged and Randee Lou Lindersmith, 27, was released following a preliminary hearing. Carol Millikin, age unknown, failed to appear for arraignment. Stephen Mallon Royce, 36, was to have gone to trial with Lane but dropped out of sight about two months ago. Authorities are seeking him and Miss Millikin.

Broderick delayed sentencing Lane on the convictions until Deputy Dist. Atty. Girard R. Courteau, who prosecuted the case, decides whether to refile the three deadlocked counts.

San Rafael, air quality yesterday:
Oxidants, clean air.
Nitrogen, clean air.
Carbon monoxide, clean air.
Smoke particles, clean air.
Other areas:
San Francisco, clean air.
San Jose, clean air.

Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources but the other three come primarily from motor vehicles.

San Rafael, air quality yesterday:
Oxidants, clean air.
Nitrogen, clean air.
Carbon monoxide, clean air.
Smoke particles, clean air.
Other areas:
San Francisco, clean air.
San Jose, clean air.

Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources but the other three come primarily from motor vehicles.

Teen-Agers Booked In Racing Probe

Three teen-agers were arrested Thursday by Larkspur police after an alleged sports car race on the Redwood High School football field and running track that did $781.36 damage.

Booked into Marin County Jail for malicious mischief were William Buccholz, 18, of 2 Jones Way, Larkspur, and Randolph Clark Sims, 19, of 1875 Centro West Street, Tiburon. Both are Redwood studnets.

Booked for malicious mischief and trespassing was Larry Muhlenberg, 18, of 134 Ward Street, Larkspur. All were released on their promise to appear in Marin Municipal Court on March 15.

Police said the teen-agers, all driving expensive foreign sports cars, held their race and tore up the recently resurfaced running track about 11:30 p.m.

Combatant In Fistfight Is Wounded

What began as a fistfight in Marin City Thursday ended in gunfire and the shooting of one of the combatants, Marin sheriff's deputies reported.

Frederick Washington, 28, of 69 Cole Drive, Marin City, suffered bullet wounds in the right thigh and left forearm in the altercation at about 10 p.m. at Cole Drive and Drake Avenue. He was treated at Marin General Hospital, deputies said.

Deputies said Washington and a man identified as Terry Lee Grinner, age and address unknown, were fighting when someone in a crowd that had gathered threw on the street a .22-caliber automatic pistol.

Police said witnesses reported that Grinner scooped up the weapon and fired three times, hitting Washington, then fled. He was still at large this morning.

Concert Tickets Can Be Exchanged

Marin residents who held tickets to last night's canceled concert of the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra at the Opera House may exchange the tickets to attend the concert tonight in Marin.

The orchestra will perform at 8 p.m. in the Marin Veterans' Memorial Building.

Today is Saturday, March 9, the 68th day of 1974 with 297 to follow.

The moon is between its full phase and last quarter. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus and Jupiter. The evening stars are Mars and Saturn.

Italian navigator Amerigo Vespucci was born March 9, 1451.

On this day in history:

In 1822, the first patent for artificial teeth was awarded to Charles Graham of New York City.

In 1947, after 440 days, the United Auto Workers reached an agreement with the Case Manufacturing Company in Racine, Wis., to end one of the longest strikes on record.

In 1962, 31 men were killed in a coal mine explosion in West Germany.

In 1967, Russian Communist Dictator Josef Stalin's daughter, Svetlana defected to the United States.

A thought for the day: President Calvin Coolidge said, "There is no right to strike against the public safety by anybody, anywhere, anytime."

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

When Setting Trap Be Wary You're Not One Who's Caught

Some suits are booby-trapped. Whoever touches them first gets a few scars to show to his grandchildren. Part of the art of playing bridge successfully is to make the opponents touch such suits first.

If declarer tackles diamonds first, he can take the ace and king but must then give up a diamond trick to one defender or the other. If a defender leads the first diamond, his side doesn't get a diamond trick.

For example, suppose West leads a low diamond. Declarer plays low from dummy and East must put up the jack. South wins with the ace and then finesses with dummy's ten.

It works much the same way if East leads the first diamond. This time South plays low, and West must play the queen. Dummy wins with the king, and now dummy leads another diamond to let South finesse with the nine.

GET OUT OF WAY

When you set a trap you must get out of the way to avoid getting caught yourself. In this case you take the ace of hearts, ruff a heart, and draw trumps with the ace and jack. This puts you in position to ruff dummy's last heart.

Now you get out of the way by leading a club.

The defenders can safely take their three club tricks, but then they are in trouble. If they lead a fourth club or a fourth heart, dummy can ruff while South discards a low diamond. If, instead, they lead a diamond, they set off the booby-trap.

Remember this position: three to the ace opposite three to the king, with both the ten and the nine. Make the opponents tackle such a suit first.

DAILY QUESTION

With both sides vulnerable, partner bids one heart and the next player doubles.

You hold:
♠- 8
♥- 9 8 4 2
♦- J 8 3 2
♣- K Q J 8.

What do you say?

ANSWER:

Bid four hearts. This promises four or more trumps, a singleton or void suit, and not more than 9 points in high cards.

WALTER STARKE
Gospel of relativity

Writer Sets Lecture And Seminar

Walter Starke, successful Broadway actor, writer, industrialist, and co-producer of "I Am a Camera," the play from which the musical "Cabaret" was taken, will be conducting a lecture and seminar at the Howard Johnson Motor Lodge, Mill Valley, Friday, March 15 and 16, at 8 p.m.

The lecture will deal with the spiritual gospel of relativity. The all-day seminar Saturday, March 16, beginning at 9:30 a.m. will be concerned with the principles of meditation, healing, and supply. Starke was an associate and disciple of Joel Goldsmith for 18 years.

Starke spends much time traveling and lecturing, sharing insights he has gained on more practical methods for deeper meditation. A proponent of daily meditation, he has found meditation to be highly complementary to an active business life.

Further information is available at 454-5776.

A world traveler on a spiritual journey, Starke has been to Zen temples in Japan, the temples of Ankor Watt in Cambodia, the Holy Land, pyramids in Yucatan, and numerous other places. This year he is on a 35-city lecture tour to promote his new book, "The Gospel of Relativity."

"Relativity," the key to Tibetan religious secrets, is a way of combining the various parts of life into a higher unity or wholeness. Starke sees the Christian message as the highest expression of this truth in that it demonstrates practical ways to relate the spiritual and the material.

After his lecture tour Starke will begin to form an artist's colony on the Hawaiian island of Maui. All the crafts will be represented: ceramics, painting, screening, etc. The focus of the group will be daily meditation.

Jewish Center Plans Special Purim Events

The Marin Jewish Community Center will mark the festival of Purim tomorrow with arts and crafts activities for children, a reading of the story of Purim, music and celebration for all, and a buffet dinner with the traditional Hamentaschen for dessert.

As a special treat for the whole family, the Magic Window Puppet Theatre will present "The Maiden and the Monster," its members' own original play.

The festivities will take place at Temple Rodef Sholom, 170 North San Pedro Road in San Rafael, from 5 to 7:30 p.m.

Baptists Planning A Workshop Dealing With Public Relations

Registration is underway for the 20th annual Baptist Public Relations Association Workshop, to be held March 19-21 at the Sheraton-Palace Hotel in San Francisco.

Theme for the three-day conference is, "The Dynamics of Communications." Noted educators, public relations officials from a number of Bay Area companies and journalists will interpret the theme. BPRA members from throughout the Southern Baptist Convention will be in San Francisco for the meeting.

Registration will be held in the Sheraton-Palace South Lobby from 1-5 p.m., Tuesday, March 19, with a dinner meeting in the Concert Room at 6 p.m. Dr. Harold K. Graves, president of Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary in Mill Valley, will welcome BPRA members to the Bay Area at the dinner.

Sightseeing tours in the Bay Area and shop tours of various Bay Area firms are being planned for the registrants, in addition to the workshop sessions.

Some of the subjects to be covered are the dynamics of the printed word, design, direct mail, feature writing, self-improvement, news, film, video and photographs.

Devotional sessions will be, "The Spiritual Dynamic," and "The Dynamic of Work," led by the Rev. F. D. Haynes, Jr., pastor of San Francisco's Third Baptist Church.

Don Fabun, director of publications in the public relations department of Kaiser Aluminum and Chemical Corp.; Robert R. Gros, vice president of public relations for Pacific Gas and Electric Company; W. C. Fields Jr., public relations director for the Southern Baptist Convention; and Dr. James Staples, president of California Baptist College in Riverside, will be among program personalities.

Others include Wolfgang Lederer, professor and director of design at California College of Arts and Crafts in Oakland; Vernon Graham, Western regional representative of Kennedy Sinclaire, Inc.; Carol Levene, president of Levene Productions; Edwin C. Bliss, specialist in time management; William Chapin, assistant professor of journalism at San Francisco State College and former editor of the San Francisco Chronicle; Wayne Miller, photographer associated with Edward Steichen who put together the "Family of Man" exhibit; and Richard B. Doughty, president and producer of Telezap Productions, Inc., producer of films and audio-visuals for a number of national companies.

The workshop will conclude with an awards luncheon at 12:30 p.m., Thursday, March 21, followed by tours of the Bay Area.

Faculty At Seminary Fetes Dr. Elmer Gray

The faculty and staff of Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary honored Dr. Elmer L. Gray, dean and professor of religious education, at a dinner party March 5. Dr. Gray is moving to Fresno, to become editor of the California Southern Baptist, the official news publication of the Southern Baptist General Convention of California.

Dr. Fred L. Fisher, professor of New Testament interpretation and chairman of the advanced studies committee at the seminary, was chairman of the event.

Dr. Gray served as professor of church administration at Golden Gate from 1959-67, then returned as academic dean in 1970.

As a farewell gift, Dr. Harold K. Graves, seminary president, presented a silver buffet server to Dr. and Mrs. Gray from the faculty and staff.

"We are grateful for Dr. Gray's contribution both as a member of the faculty and administration and for his emphasis on both academic excellence and professional competence," Dr. Graves said. "I have been aware of his love for writing and the demands that have continually come to him to provide curriculum materials and articles for our denominational publications. I feel he will continue to serve us well as editor of our state paper."

Calvary Baptist Church Encouraging Car Pools

Members and friends of Calvary Baptist Church of Larkspur are being asked to cut down on fuel consumption by forming car pools for church attendance, with a special "Car Pool Sunday" scheduled tomorrow. At the same time, the church has cut its own energy consumption by over 40 per cent in the past month.

Tomorrow's "Car Pool Sunday" will be highlighted by a contest, with prizes awarded to the largest car pools in attendance in both Sunday school (9:45 a.m.) and the morning worship service (11 a.m.). Three vehicle size categories will be considered: Compact, standard, and "maxi."

The pastor, Rev. David A. Tucker, said: "This contest is being held both to show our concern for conservation, and to openly invite the community to visit and attend a local church which sincerely cares and does something about real needs in this world and the next." Messages Sunday will be, "The God of All Power" (11 a.m.) and "Scriptural Solutions to the Spiritual Energy Crisis" (7 p.m.).

The 40 per cent reduction in energy use at the church was accomplished by replacing recessed incandescent lighting with surface-mounted fluorescent fixtures in the much-used fellowship hall, cutting energy use in half yet providing up to 60 per cent more usable illumination; reducing convenience lighting in non-critical areas was by an average of 30 per cent; heating church buildings only during the days they were used, with thermostats off at other times. Pianos are protected from damage by special low-energy heaters. This resulted in a 60 percent saving, while still providing a comfortable environment for all regular services.

Lenten Service Set Wednesday

The third of six mid-week Lenten services will be held at Shepherd of the Hills Lutheran Church, 9 Shepherd Way, Tiburon, at 7:30 p.m., Wednesday.

The film "Angry Jungle", a story of high adventure of an American father and son who are caught in a Communist attempt to conquer Southeast Asia, will be shown.

Noted Priest Will Visit St. Hilary's

Father William McNamara, OCD, distinguished Carmelite hermit, lecturer and retreat master, will visit St. Hilary's Church, 761 Hilary Drive, Tiburon, on March 17, for a four-day series of talks.

Father McNamara is the founder of The Spiritual Life Institute of America, begun near Sedona, Ariz., over a decade ago and recently established in Nova Scotia, Canada. He will preach at all the masses (Saturday, March 16, 5 p.m.; Sunday, March 17, 7:30, 9:00, 10:30 a.m., and noon).

His first lecture, sponsored by St. Hilary's Parent's Guild, will be Monday evening, March 18, at 7:45 p.m. He will speak also on Wednesday morning, March 20, at 11 a.m., followed by a salad luncheon, sponsored by St. Hilary's Women's Club. Then Wednesday evening, at 7:45 p.m., his talk, sponsored by the Regis Club of Marin County, will be directed to young adults. All the lectures will be given in Lydon Hall.

The men of the parish will meet Father McNamara at an informal reception in St. Hilary's Rectory sunday, March 17, at 3 p.m.

Church To Honor Jan Blaauws At Reception

A special reception will be held at 11 a.m. following morning worship at the First Presbyterian Church of Sausalito tomorrow in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Jan Blaauw.

The Blaauws have been members of the church family for 12 years and have participated actively in many aspects of the church's program. Jan served for many years as chief gardener and was also a member of the board of deacons.

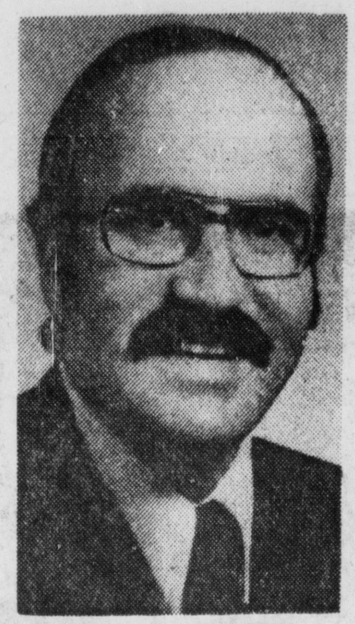
The Blaauw's daughter, visiting from Casper, Wyo., will be a special guest.



REV. R. L. HYMERS
Series on exorcism

Sermons On Exorcism Are Planned

Rev R. L. Hymers will speak on the currently popular subject of demon possession and exorcism in a special series of Sunday morning sermons at The Church of the Open Door. Rev. Hymers said he has spent several years studying the field of Biblical demonology and has personally conducted several exorcisms.

He is an ordained Baptist minister and a graduate of Los Angeles City College, California State University at Los Angeles, and Golden Gate Seminary. He is currently completing a doctoral degree at the California Graduate School of Theology.

Titles of the sermons in the series, which begins tomorrow, include, "The Exorcist, Demons, and You," "What is Satan Like?" "Demons: Who They are and What They Do," "How to Deal with the Devil," and "The Defeat of the Demonic." Each sermon will be preached during the 11 a.m. service of the church, which is located at 177 E. Blithedale, in Mill Valley.

Consecration Of Mill Valley Church Planned

Mill Valley's Episcopal Church of Our Saviour will be consecrated in special services Palm Sunday, April 7, at 10 a.m.

Bishop C. Kilmer Myers will conduct the service, assisted by Rector Rev. D. Murray Hammond; rector emeritus Rev. S. Reginald Hammond; Rev. Fred Cleaveland, and seminarian Steve Tyson.

Following the service, a luncheon will be held at the Outdoor Art Club. Information is available through the church.

The consecration was made possible when the church mortgage was paid off in September. Episcopal canon requires a church to be debt-free before it can be consecrated.

Linfield Choir To Give Concert

The Linfield Choir will perform at the Church of All Faiths in Corte Madera Monday at 8 p.m.

The Church is at 5461 Paradise Drive in Corte Madera.

RELIGION IN AMERICA

Catholic Group Putting Pressure On Brazil, Chile

By DAVID E. ANDERSON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — American church-goers, accustomed to a large measure of religious freedom and tolerance, do not usually pay a great deal of attention to the state of religion overseas.

Some specific cases do attract attention. The long and lonely stand of Cardinal Jozsef Mindzenty against the Communist regime in Hungary and the outspoken stance of Methodist bishop Abel T. Muzorewa against the apartheid policies of Ian Smith's Rhodesian regime are both examples of exceptions that have caught the attention of American church people.

But American Roman Catholics, with the leadership of Philadelphia's Cardinal John Krol, president of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops, and Bishop James Rausch, general secretary of the bishops' action arm, the United States Catholic Conference, are being pressed to change that indifference.

The administrative committee of the USCC, for the first time in history, has criticized the governments of Brazil and Chile, protesting alleged violations of human rights in the two countries and urging an end to American foreign aid if their policies do not change.

The committee, made up of 28 bishops, said it was "compelled to focus attention" on the situation in Brazil because of the "level to which respect for human rights has deteriorated in that country."

In making their charges against Brazil, the bishops said the Brazilian government has made "continuous efforts" to eliminate sources of dissent "in the public sector —in youth groups, politiical parties, labor unions, peasant associations."

"One of the last remaining organizing voices in Brazil's society with power to speak in oppoeition to repressive government tactics is the church and this obviously places it in a most vulnerable position," the committee said.

The bishops called on the U.S. government to "examine closely" economic and military assistance to Brazil "to be certain they are not used in the denial of human rights."

They also called on the private sector, especially policy makers in multinational corporations and financial institutions, to "assess the social consequences of their present or contemplated investments in Brazil."

In terms of Chile, where a military coup took place last September, the bishops said they were "deeply distressed" by violatios of human rights.

"We are also concerned," they said, "that in the face of these violations our government is escalating its financial aid to the Chilean government junta."

With the exception of humanitarian aid, the bishops said the United States should "condition its financial aid and military assistance to Chile upon the demonstration that human and civil rights have been restored in that country."

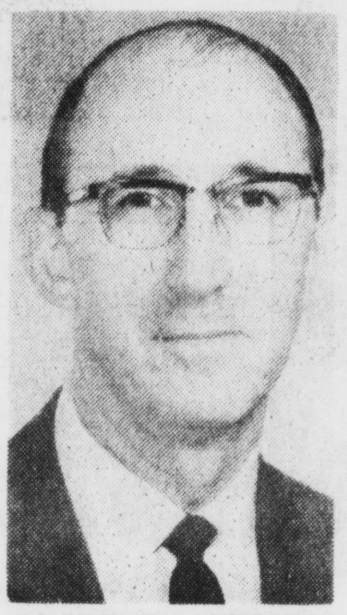
The statements on Chile and Brazil were issued in support and solidarity with the Catholic churches in those countries and both noted a previous resolution celebrating the 25th anniversary of the United Nations' Universal Declaration of Human Rights.

Rausch has been one of the primary forces pushing for an increased international awareness —especially with regard to the United Nations' Human Rights Declaration —on the part of American Catholics.

James Cotter, assistant director of the USCC's Division for Latin America, told a reporter the American Catholic church has "long had the language of social justice."

He added:"Now it is moving into the sphere of action."

Dr. Strempke Named As Temporary Pastor



DR. VERNON L. STREMPKE
Interim supply pastor

Dr. Vernon L. Strempke, an eminent theologian, is taking over as interim supply pastor at Faith Lutheran Church, 355 Los Ranchitos Road, San Rafael, while the church is seeking a new permanent pastor.

Dr. Strempke will conduct the 10 o'clock Sunday morning worship services and will assist the congregation in its continuing mission of religious education, music and worship and youth adult activities.

He is planning a series of sermons on the meaning of Lent as it corresponds to Faith's continuing ministry between pastorates. He preached last Sunday on "Observing Lent" and tomorrow his sermon will be "Let's Keep the New Covenant."

Dr. Strempke is professor of pastoral theology at Pacific Lutheran Seminary in Berkeley, where he has been a member of the faculty since 1967. He was born in Jesup, Iowa, and is a graduate of Wartburg Theological Seminary in Dubuque. In addition, he has an MA in sociology from the University of Wisconsin and a PhD in the psychology of religion from Boston University.

Assisting Dr. Strempke during this transition period at Faith Lutheran Church will be four other pastors. Pastor O. T. Erickson, Faith's assistant pastor for many years, will conduct a series of Lenten services each Wednesday evening at 8 p.m. at the church. Pastor Bliss W. Bellinger, the previous pastor of Faith Lutheran Church, will continue with his confirmation class. Pastor John Darrah of Grace Lutheran Church in Richmond has consented to act as vice pastor to advise the church council on the day-today business of the parish. Pastor John Sutter of First United Lutheran Church in San Francisco, a resident of Mill Valley, will be available for consultation with members of the congregation.

Assembly Of God Performance Set

The Assembly of God - Central, 1675 Grand Avenue, San Rafael, will present the Chapel Notes, gospel singers and recording artists, at 6 p.m. tomorrow.

The group consists of eight members of various age levels and combines old favorites with the contemporary style of today. The band consists of piano, drums, electric bass and pedal-steel guitar.

WALTER STARKE
Gospel of relativity

Writer Sets Lecture And Seminar

Walter Starke, successful Broadway actor, writer, industrialist, and co-producer of "I Am a Camera," the play from which the musical "Cabaret" was taken, will be conducting a lecture and seminar at the Howard Johnson Motor Lodge, Mill Valley, Friday, March 15 and 16, at 8 p.m.

The lecture will deal with the spiritual gospel of relativity. The all-day seminar Saturday, March 16, beginning at 9:30 a.m. will be concerned with the principles of meditation, healing, and supply. Starke was an associate and disciple of Joel Goldsmith for 18 years.

Starke spends much time traveling and lecturing, sharing insights he has gained on more practical methods for deeper meditation. A proponent of daily meditation, he has found meditation to be highly complementary to an active business life.

Further information is available at 454-5776.

A world traveler on a spiritual journey, Starke has been to Zen temples in Japan, the temples of Ankor Watt in Cambodia, the Holy Land, pyramids in Yucatan, and numerous other places. This year he is on a 35-city lecture tour to promote his new book, "The Gospel of Relativity."

"Relativity," the key to Tibetan religious secrets, is a way of combining the various parts of life into a higher unity or wholeness. Starke sees the Christian message as the highest expression of this truth in that it demonstrates practical ways to relate the spiritual and the material.

After his lecture tour Starke will begin to form an artist's colony on the Hawaiian island of Maui. All the crafts will be represented: ceramics, painting, screening, etc. The focus of the group will be daily meditation.

Church To Honor Jan Blaauws At Reception

A special reception will be held at 11 a.m. following morning worship at the First Presbyterian Church of Sausalito tomorrow in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Jan Blaauw.

The Blaauws have been members of the church family for 12 years and have participated actively in many aspects of the church's program. Jan served for many years as chief gardener and was also a member of the board of deacons.

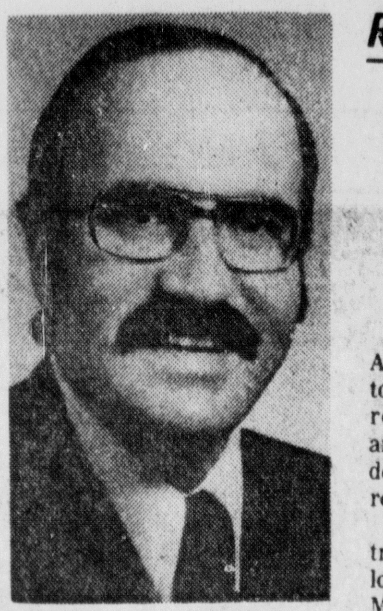
The Blaauw's daughter, visiting from Casper, Wyo., will be a special guest.



REV. R. L. HYMERS
Series on exorcism

Sermons On Exorcism Are Planned

Rev R. L. Hymers will speak on the currently popular subject of demon possession and exorcism in a special series of Sunday morning sermons at The Church of the Open Door. Rev. Hymers said he has spent several years studying the field of Biblical demonology and has personally conducted several exorcisms.

He is an ordained Baptist minister and a graduate of Los Angeles City College, California State University at Los Angeles, and Golden Gate Seminary. He is currently completing a doctoral degree at the California Graduate School of Theology.

Titles of the sermons in the series, which begins tomorrow, include, "The Exorcist, Demons, and You," "What is Satan Like?" "Demons: Who They are and What They Do," "How to Deal with the Devil," and "The Defeat of the Demonic." Each sermon will be preached during the 11 a.m. service of the church, which is located at 177 E. Blithedale, in Mill Valley.

Consecration Of Mill Valley Church Planned

Mill Valley's Episcopal Church of Our Saviour will be consecrated in special services Palm Sunday, April 7, at 10 a.m.

Bishop C. Kilmer Myers will conduct the service, assisted by Rector Rev. D. Murray Hammond; rector emeritus Rev. S. Reginald Hammond; Rev. Fred Cleaveland, and seminarian Steve Tyson.

Following the service, a luncheon will be held at the Outdoor Art Club. Information is available through the church.

The consecration was made possible when the church mortgage was paid off in September. Episcopal canon requires a church to be debt-free before it can be consecrated.

Linfield Choir To Give Concert

The Linfield Choir will perform at the Church of All Faiths in Corte Madera Monday at 8 p.m.

The Church is at 5461 Paradise Drive in Corte Madera.

RELIGION IN AMERICA

Catholic Group Putting Pressure On Brazil, Chile

By DAVID E. ANDERSON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — American church-goers, accustomed to a large measure of religious freedom and tolerance, do not usually pay a great deal of attention to the state of religion overseas.

Some specific cases do attract attention. The long and lonely stand of Cardinal Jozsef Mindzenty against the Communist regime in Hungary and the outspoken stance of Methodist bishop Abel T. Muzorewa against the apartheid policies of Ian Smith's Rhodesian regime are both examples of exceptions that have caught the attention of American church people.

But American Roman Catholics, with the leadership of Philadelphia's Cardinal John Krol, president of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops, and Bishop James Rausch, general secretary of the bishops' action arm, the United States Catholic Conference, are being pressed to change that indifference.

The administrative committee of the USCC, for the first time in history, has criticized the governments of Brazil and Chile, protesting alleged violations of human rights in the two countries and urging an end to American foreign aid if their policies do not change.

The committee, made up of 28 bishops, said it was "compelled to focus attention" on the situation in Brazil because of the "level to which respect for human rights has deteriorated in that country."

In making their charges against Brazil, the bishops said the Brazilian government has made "continuous efforts" to eliminate sources of dissent "in the public sector —in youth groups, politiical parties, labor unions, peasant associations."

"One of the last remaining organizing voices in Brazil's society with power to speak in oppoeition to repressive government tactics is the church and this obviously places it in a most vulnerable position," the committee said.

The bishops called on the U.S. government to "examine closely" economic and military assistance to Brazil "to be certain they are not used in the denial of human rights."

They also called on the private sector, especially policy makers in multinational corporations and financial institutions, to "assess the social consequences of their present or contemplated investments in Brazil."

In terms of Chile, where a military coup took place last September, the bishops said they were "deeply distressed" by violatios of human rights.

"We are also concerned," they said, "that in the face of these violations our government is escalating its financial aid to the Chilean government junta."

With the exception of humanitarian aid, the bishops said the United States should "condition its financial aid and military assistance to Chile upon the demonstration that human and civil rights have been restored in that country."

The statements on Chile and Brazil were issued in support and solidarity with the Catholic churches in those countries and both noted a previous resolution celebrating the 25th anniversary of the United Nations' Universal Declaration of Human Rights.

Rausch has been one of the primary forces pushing for an increased international awareness —especially with regard to the United Nations' Human Rights Declaration —on the part of American Catholics.

James Cotter, assistant director of the USCC's Division for Latin America, told a reporter the American Catholic church has "long had the language of social justice."

He added: "Now it is moving into the sphere of action."

Dr. Strempke Named As Temporary Pastor

DR. VERNON L. STREMPKE
Interim supply pastor

Dr. Vernon L. Strempke, an eminent theologian, is taking over as interim supply pastor at Faith Lutheran Church, 355 Los Ranchitos Road, San Rafael, while the church is seeking a new permanent pastor.

Dr. Strempke will conduct the 10 o'clock Sunday morning worship services and will assist the congregation in its continuing mission of religious education, music and worship and youth adult activities.

He is planning a series of sermons on the meaning of Lent as it corresponds to Faith's continuing ministry between pastorates. He preached last Sunday on "Observing Lent" and tomorrow his sermon will be "Let's Keep the New Covenant."

Dr. Strempke is professor of pastoral theology at Pacific Lutheran Seminary in Berkeley, where he has been a member of the faculty since 1967. He was born in Jesup, Iowa, and is a graduate of Wartburg Theological Seminary in Dubuque. In addition, he has an MA in sociology from the University of Wisconsin and a PhD in the psychology of religion from Boston University.

Assisting Dr. Strempke during this transition period at Faith Lutheran Church will be four other pastors. Pastor O. T. Erickson, Faith's assistant pastor for many years, will conduct a series of Lenten services each Wednesday evening at 8 p.m. at the church. Pastor Bliss W. Bellinger, the previous pastor of Faith Lutheran Church, will continue with his confirmation class. Pastor John Darrah of Grace Lutheran Church in Richmond has consented to act as vice pastor to advise the church council on the day-to-day business of the parish. Pastor John Sutter of First United Lutheran Church in San Francisco, a resident of Mill Valley, will be available for consultation with members of the congregation.

Assembly Of God Performance Set

The Assembly of God - Central, 1675 Grand Avenue, San Rafael, will present the Chapel Notes, gospel singers and recording artists, at 6 p.m. tomorrow.

The group consists of eight members of various age levels and combines old favorites with the contemporary style of today. The band consists of piano, drums, electric bass and pedal-steel guitar.

MARIN LIVING

featuring SPRING GARDENING

SAN RAFAEL, CALIFORNIA, SATURDAY, MARCH 9, 1974

A Return To Time Of Victory Gardens In The Backyards

By WAT TAKESHITA

Remember the World War II Victory Gardens of the 1940s?

That's what many of Marin's backyards will look like this year as residents attempt to augment their meals with home-grown fruits and vegetables to cope with soaring food prices.

"Judging from the calls we've been getting," said Donald Brittsan, Marin County farm adviser and 4-H youth adviser, "many Marinites are revitalizing the old Victory gardens of the forties. With food prices increasing and short gas supplies keeping people close to home on weekends, a vegetable garden might be an appropriate hobby for many with a little room in the backyard."

MANY POTENTIAL gardeners, however, become discouraged when they examine the "potter's clay" soil so often found in Marin County. While the clay soils cannot be made ideal, they can be improved. Brittsan gave these tips on soil management:

Animal manures, green plant material, compost and leaf mold are excellent sources of organic matter that is so necessary to clay-soil improvement. Organic matter causes clay particles to form small granules and crumbs, and the improved condition may remain long after the organic matter has disappeared.

Materials which decay more slowly are somewhat less desirable because they do not aggregate the soil as well. They may also tie up available nitrogen temporarily, requiring an additional source of nitrogen.

TILLAGE IS A very important part of successful gardening in clay soil. Moist clay soil should be dug with a spading fork rather than a shovel or spade, and the large clods broken up.

Clods that remain should be exposed to air and sun. After they have crumbled some, they can then be wetted down with a fine spray and raked when sufficiently dry. The air-drying, wetting and raking should break up most of the clods.

A mulch or thin layer of organic matter can eliminate frequent cultivation and reduce water loss from evaporation. It can also reduce the formation of a soil crust and prevent water droplets from eroding the soil.

AFTER THE SOIL has been prepared, the garden planted, and the vegetables, flowers, or weeds have sprouted, the home-gardener faces the problem of pesticides.

Any discussion of pesticide use in home gardens stirs up controversy, with opinions varying from "Share your garden with your insects" to overkill. Practical insect control for the home gardener lies somewhere in between these two extremes, said Brittsan, the county farm adviser. Brittsan gave these tips to gardeners who decide to use insecticides:

Determine the nature of the insect problem, select a pesticide best suited for elimination of the particular pest, and READ THE LABEL!!

BRITTSAN SAID gardeners occasionally express the time-to-spray approach to insecticides, insisting on spraying on April 15 regardless of the insect population. This approach is all right for certain plant diseases, but insect population buildups depend on temperature, moisture, predators, etc.

The "shotgun" approach, using an all-purpose insect killer in an effort to wipe out all garden pests, may not be the best method, Brittsan explained. "Identify the insect problem and treat for that particular problem."

Another mistake made by the overly anxious gardener is to use the "If one teaspoon is recommended, two must be better" approach. "Pesticide manufacturers have spent years in determining the effective amounts of pesticide to use, so follow the label instructions," Brittsan advised.

AGRICULTURAL Commissioner R. Allan Ballard and his assistant, Philip Economon, added that proper temperatures are important during spray or dust applications of chemicals. Many plants are damaged when temperatures exceed 80 degrees Fahrenheit. Plants should be irrigated thoroughly before applications are made, as this will minimize injury to foliage, said Economon.

This year's trend toward Victory gardens is confirmed by Marin's nurserymen, who report a run on fruit trees and vegetables.

"Everyone seems to be fruit and vegetable-minded," said one nurseryman. "We sold so many fruit trees that we were out of them a month earlier than usual."

FRUIT TREES best suited to Marin seem to be peaches and apricots, although these trees need well-drained soil. Other popular fruit trees are apples, plums, pears and cherries. Citrus fruits continue to be popular, although they tend to be more susceptible to frost damage.

Nurserymen report that the time is ripe for planting of tomatoes and beans, to be followed by squash, cucumbers and corn. For those who like ornamentals, this is the time to plant petunias, marigolds, verbenas, begonias and lobelias.

WITH A BURST of bloom this flowering plum tree in San Rafael helped to signal the early start of Marin County's annual outdoors color spectacular. Other blooming things have since joined the show, with more soon to follow, and the best yet to come. But this year floral color is sharing the gardening spotlight with edible fruits and vegetables that are enjoying a significant renaissance of interest. Admiring the beauty of the plum tree blossoms above is Christine Frazer of San Anselmo, a College of Marin student who makes her own pulchritudinous contribution to the color photograph.

Landscaping Should Start With A Plan

While a good number of home owners contemplate remodeling their gardens, the undertaking seems overwhelming, and usually nothing happens.

Not knowing what to do and how to do it is the chief contributor of inaction. A step in the right direction is to start with a plan.

This is true, too, for the new-home owner who is starting from scratch. Nothing can lead to disappointment faster than an unplanned landscape. Conversely, nothing leads to greater enjoyment of the home than a well-planned garden — a garden where the degree of maintenance desired is considered and where plant materials work together to create some kind of continuity, and unity.

THE PLAN CAN be a simple one, or as elaborate and extensive as you wish to make it. However, it should reflect your interest and family needs, and be achievable.

Whether remodeling or landscaping a new property, seeking a professional landscaper's assistance in planning will help to guarantee the expected results. Many of the nurseries also offer special services in landscaping and, certainly, your nurseryman's experience and knowledge of plants and plantings under local conditions can get you off to a good start.

One of the primary reasons for seeking a professional's help is that he can predict what a planting will look like in future years.

A misplaced shrub or tree can overgrow its bounds; certain plants may require less sun in your areas than elsewhere; a tendency is to over-plant and a professional can recommend the correct number of plants, or trees, to set out in areas of the landscape. Professional help at the outset can avoid these pitfalls.

IF YOU ARE a do-it-yourself type, there are publications available which will serve as guidelines for creating your own plan. Make certain the book is written for California or Western gardens.

In implementing the plan, landscape from the house out. Start with the foundation planting and work out to the borders.

New houses need this foundation planting to tie down the structure — not to hide it. Creating the proper relationship is important in reflecting the desired image.

Many older homes require a renovation of the foundation planting because plant materials are overgrown and overpower the landscape. Plants should be selected for their individuality, modest growth and form. Here's another reason for seeking professional help.

NEXT, CONSIDER the areas for outdoor work and play. A service area, where trash can be removed to, compost pile, clothesline, or potting of plants can be done. A play area surfaced or not, is desirable for families with small children. Also, the outdoor living area — to accommodate the family's enjoyment of leisure spring and summer hours.

The lawn comes next, and there's nothing more beautiful than a carpet of green. If you've limited time to devote to the lawn, consider using a suitable groundcover in certain locations, and devote a smaller space to the lawn.

When you plant the lawn, solicit your nurseryman's recommendations on the type turf to use — taking into consideration your soil, the foot traffic it will have to handle. He can outline installation procedures, as well.

BORDERS ARE next, and here more than in any other area of the landscape, a professional's help in planning will be of value. Generally, one seeks a minimum of effort and a maximum of color. There are many willing candidates to fill these areas — annuals, perennials, flowering shrubs, ground covers and bulbs — and it becomes a matter of matching the right plant material for the location.

Your nurserymen can quickly recommend several choices which will provide seasonal beauty and enjoyment.

Trees can make or break the landscape. It cannot be emphasized enough to plant the right tree in the right place. A tree, or a grouping of them, can be an everlasting delight when properly selected and placed.

Of the many lovely tree varieties available in our area, your nurseryman can assist you in selecting those which will create the beauty and effect you desire.

When you plant the lawn, solicit your nurseryman's recommendations on the type turf to use — taking into consideration your soil, the foot traffic it will have to handle. He can outline installation procedures, as well.

BORDERS ARE next, and here more than in any other area of the landscape, a professional's help in planning will be of value. Generally, one seeks a minimum of effort and a maximum of color. There are many willing candidates to fill these areas — annuals, perennials, flowering shrubs, ground covers and bulbs — and it becomes a matter of matching the right plant material for the location.

Your nurserymen can quickly recommend several choices which will provide seasonal beauty and enjoyment.

Trees can make or break the landscape. It cannot be emphasized enough to plant the right tree in the right place. A tree, or a grouping of them, can be an everlasting delight when properly selected and placed.

Of the many lovely tree varieties available in our area, your nurseryman can assist you in selecting those which will create the beauty and effect you desire.

For Those Splashes Of Color

And now that the professional growers do all the hard work for you and all you have to do is set out ready-to-go bedding plants, there's no reason you should avoid these beauties.

Properly selected and planted just where you want them, these generous plants give you flowers on your table all summer and fall — some even part of the spring. And keep our garden bright.

THERE ARE A few things you should take into consideration when you plan your plantings.

First: Mass them. Plant enough of the same variety to make a showing.

Second: Use them to brighten those places in the garden where favorite spring-flowering shrubs have stopped flowering. Use them to brighten hedges or other perennial backgrounds.

Third: Take in consideration the potentialities of their colors.

Annuals usually divide into two groups as far as color is concerned. There are those strong, "hot" colors — the bright reds, yellows and oranges. These will seem to come "right at you" in the garden so they can be planted in the foreground in a small garden. This keeps a garden from even seeming smaller than it is.

THE OTHER GROUP is composed of "cool" colors — the pale yellows, pastels, pinks and clear blues. These tend to give you depth, so you can plant them against the back fence, for example, to make your garden seem bigger.

Generally speaking annuals want full sun but there are some that either prefer shade or demand it, so these can do wonderful things for the northern side of your home, those narrow, shades strips between houses, or those places under trees where nothing seems to grow.

To take full advantage of limited space, try using vegetables as ornamental borders or groundcovers in the flower garden.

If you have limited space around the yard and want bright splashes of color on the terrace or patio, use containers. Most annuals adapt well to the confines of pots, boxes, or even hanging baskets.

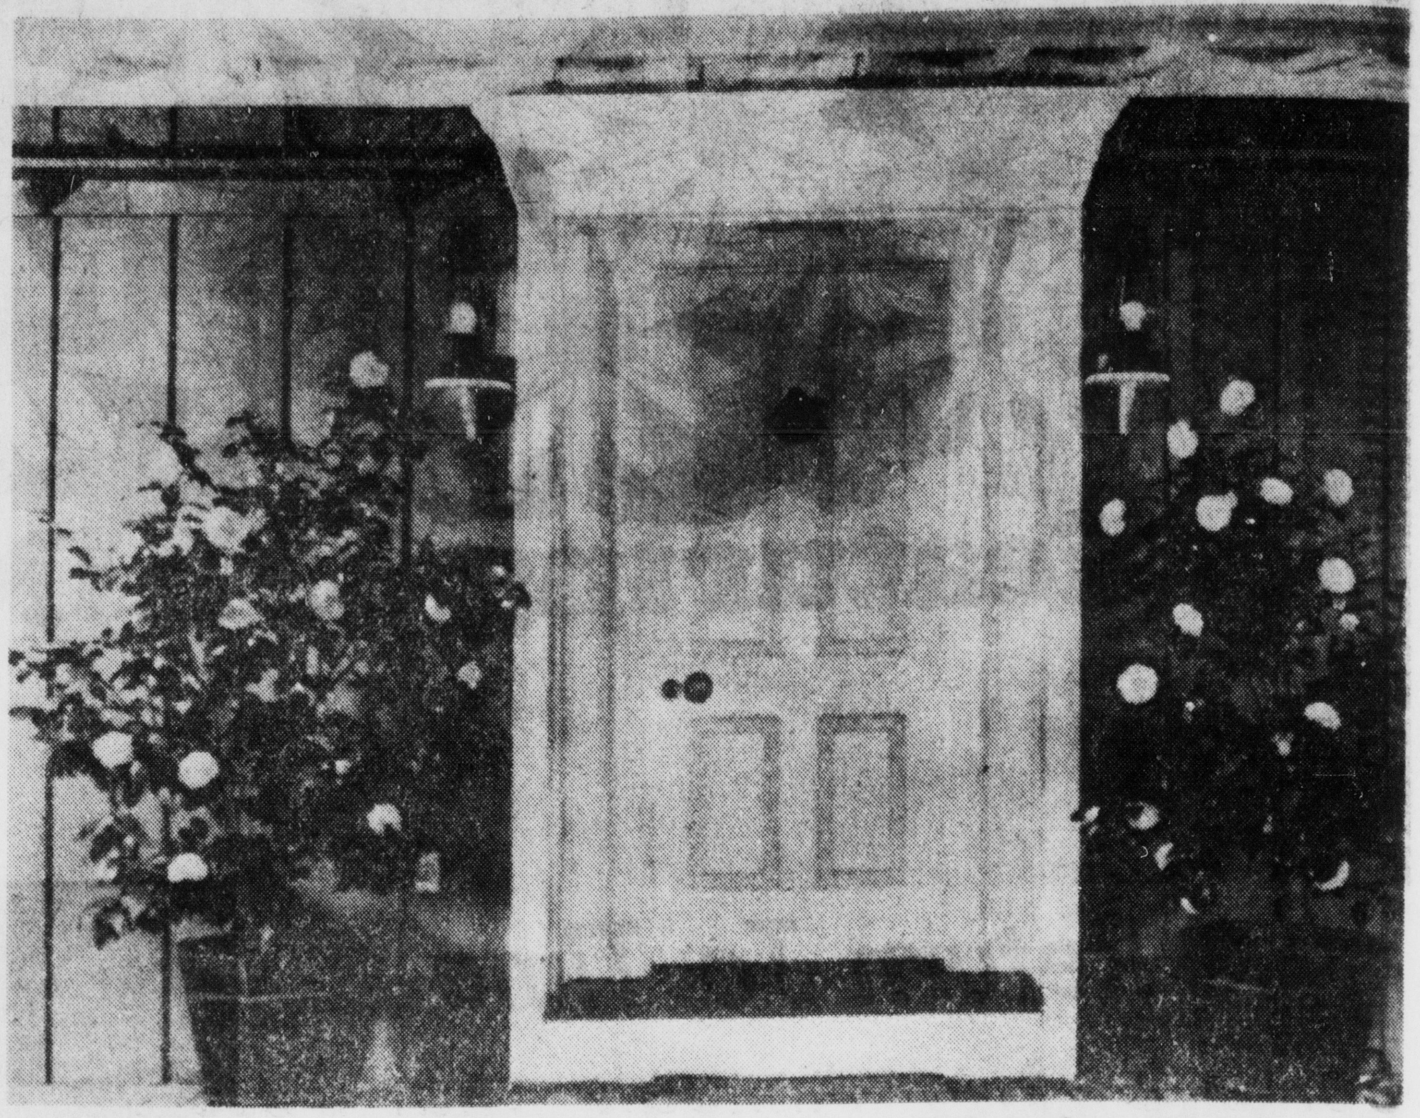
MARIN LIVING



A DOOR-SIDE PLANTING that is inviting and pleasnat will make that all-important favorable impression upon your visitors. Here the entrance is attractively flanked by two beautiful tubbed camellias that are in full flower this time of the year. When their long blooming season finally ends, they can be moved, and another shrub in flower can be substituted. Or the camellias can continue to serve handsomely with their lush foliage.

(California Association of Nurserymen photo)

THE FIRST IMPRESSION

Take Special Care In Choice Of Shrubs Outside The Door

The place to greet your guests is outside the door, with plant life you have positioned there.

A door-side planting makes that all-important good first impression. If you put up a shabby front, you are off to a bad start. If your plantings brush a visitor or make him duck, you might as well be swinging at him yourself.

With this in mind, take another look at the greeting you extend your friends. You might not like what you see.

NEATNESS IS a requisite. The planting should be modest in both form and growth habit. It should put up a good front the year around, which means that evergreens are preferred.

The California Association of Nurserymen lists the following half dozen plants as starters and hastens to add that any of its members could name you half a dozen more for each of them:

To start, the trim Yew Pine (Podocarpus) is a favorite in the landscaping profession — either in a tub or in the ground. It is not actually a yew, but its growth is similar.

The camellia, a versatile shrub, is the answer to many problems, especially in sheltered areas.

FOR A CLIPPED look, try single plants of boxwood at either side of the entrance — in tubs or in the ground. Similar, but less formal, is dwarf myrtle.

If your entrance is along a walk that parallels the house, chances are you need an espaliered plant against the wall. Firethorn fills the bill as well as any. A little more unusual are loquats, magnolias and Evergreen Pear.

Finally, if shade is predominant, try fatshedera, the tropical looking cross betweem common ivy and the lush fatsia.

If your door planting needs an overhaul, check this list.

A Full Calendar Of Color Is Possible In California

Any California gardener who dedicates himself to such an objective can have color the year around in his yard.

Not always the lush color of spring or summer, to be sure, but color nonetheless — and more often plentiful than not.

There are many tools by which this 12-month succession of bloom can be achieved.

You can make use of bulbs through at least nine months of the year; annuals through all 12. And there are shrubs, vines and perennials to lend permanence, some of them near ever-blooming here in mild winter areas near the coast.

THE CALIFORNIA Association of Nurserymen suggests that you take the seasons one by one, starting with spring, and see how year-around bloom can become a reality in your garden.

Right now, for instance, you can find quick color in the form of camellias and azaleas, two standbys of the spring garden in all parts of the state. Both are easily transplanted in bud or full bloom from nursery containers.

Right now, also, you will find blooming shrubs of Star Magnolia, the white canopy which combines beautifully with the vividly colored azaleas.

The exotic Bird of Paradise is full of color this month and a star attraction where it's adapted. Pink India Hawthorn is another color bearer which will give you color from the first day you plant it.

PLANT ALSO FOR future springs: Flowering fruit trees, Saucer Magnolia, acacias and such vines as the evergreen Armand Clematis or a wisteria. Then mark your calendar for next October so you won't forget to plant those spring-flowering bulbs which can brighten the season more than anything else.

Annual and perennial bedding plants should have gone in before this for spring bloom, but if you hurry, you will get color from some of them before the calendar turns to summer.

Seal Of Approval

The Lawn Institute Seal of Approval appears on seed mixtures containing attractive, perennial grasses able to spread into a dense turf.

African Violet Will Thrive In The House

Air conditioning isn't always appreciated by houseplants, but African Violets love it.

And if you have fluroescent lighting in your home, African Violets love that, too.

In fact, if you want to have a whole stable of potted plants in bloom at all seasons and ready for use as table decorations or to brighten a window sill or kitchen, put a timer attachment to your fluroescent light (two 40-watt lights are excellent for a four-foot bench) and set it so the African Violets get 12 hours of light a day. The results will startle you.

ACTUALLY, YOU don't have to do anything special to have wonderful African Violets blooming, provided you start out properly. That means buying only quality plants in top health.

If you need to re-pot, get properly treated soil from your nurseryman — don't take it out of the garden. It will have the proper amount of humus, sand, etc. and he will also have a good soluble plant food that is especially designed for African Violets. Follow the label's instructions!

Now all you need is some type of shallow pan which you can fill with pebbles (white ones are excellent for emphasizing the beauty of foliage and flowers). Put water in the pan so it is well below the top of the rocks and place your pot on this rocky bed. This will insure moist atmosphere.

Watering?

The California Association of Nurserymen advises that the soil should feel moist to your finger but never wet. African Violets can't stand to have their feet wet so never let the pot stand in water, or if you use a bed of rocks under the pots, don't let the water touch the bottom of the pots.

IT IS ESSENTIAL that the water be room temperature and that you do not get water on the leaves.

For light, put the African Violets where they get plenty of light but no direct sun through a window. Some people take their plants outdoors in summer, placing them where no wind or direct sun hits them. Do this only after night temperatures get no lower than 55 degrees —and day or night readings not over 85 degrees.

While the African Violet is decorative enough to need no help, it does combine well with some fancy-leaved begonias, with its cousin, the Gloxinia, with philodendrons, ferns, and the like to create a beautiful indoor jungle effect.

Don't be afraid to try various combinations.

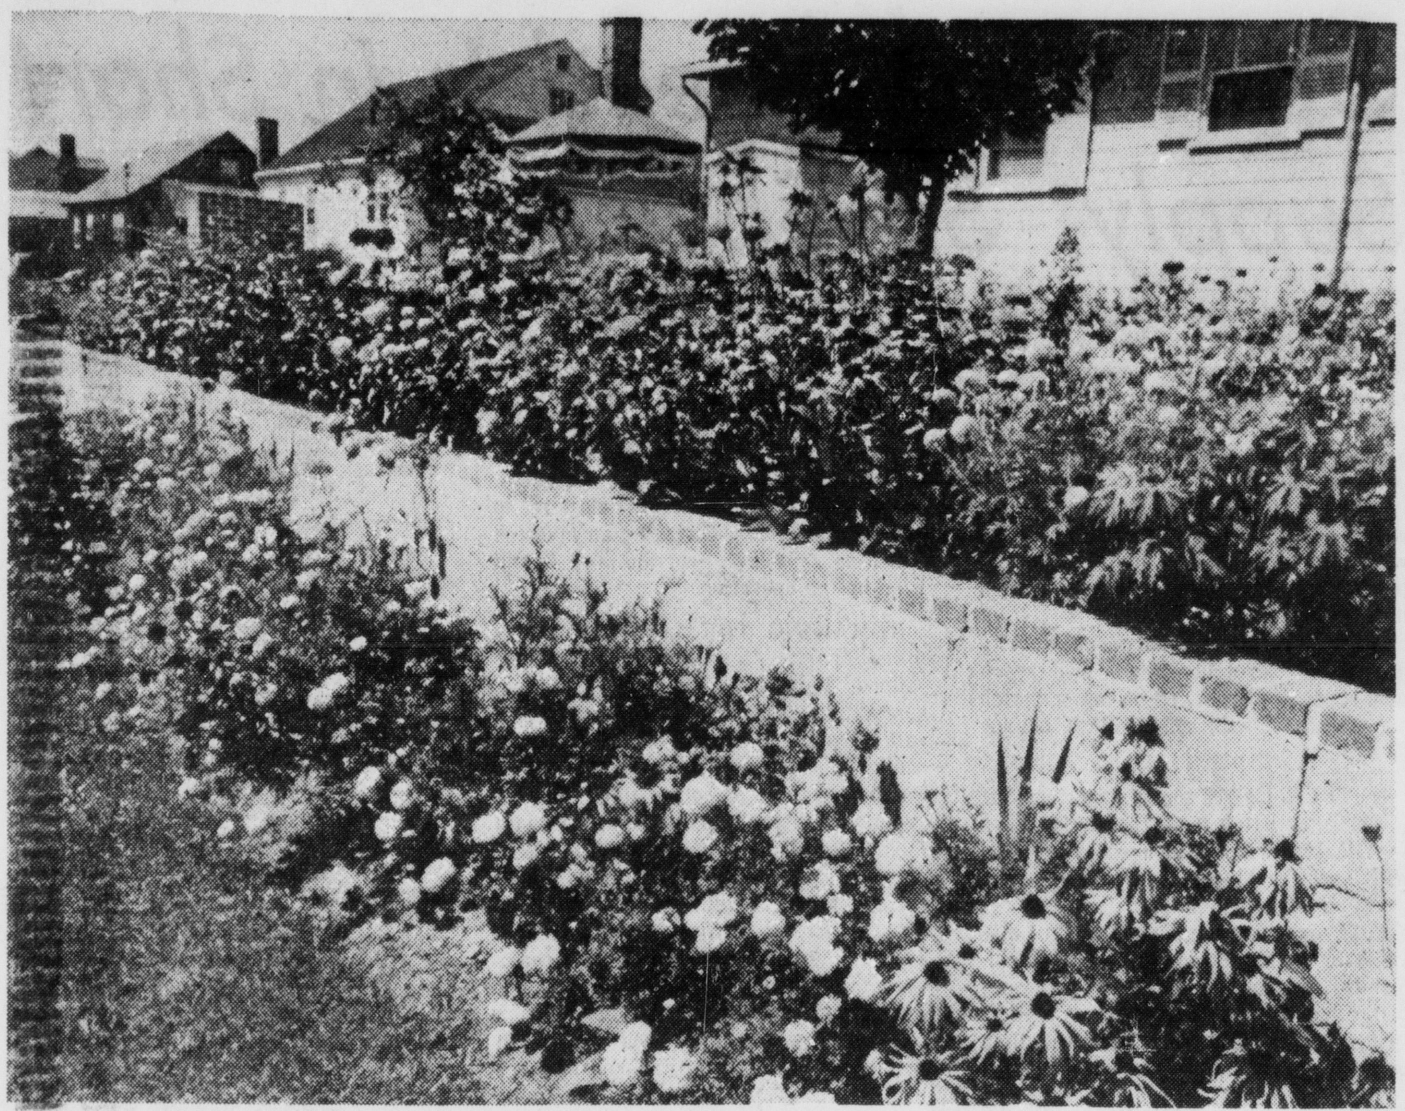
MARIN LIVING



FOR COLOR, variety and gaiety in your garden, plant plenty of annuals in your garden. And a bevy of new introductions this spring have greatly enhanced the supply from which you can make your selections.

(Photo by Paul E. Genereux)

Some Of New Annuals That Deserve Your Admiration This Garden Season

By MILLICENT TAYLOR

Each season one enjoys inviting into the garden a troupe of newcomers. In addition to the All-America winners that have been so much publicized, there are many other new varieties you might like to try.

SENSATIONAL IS a new nasturtium named Alaska. It is the first to have bicolor foliage — cream and green. The leaves are streaked and mottled in a variety of patterns, making it a conversation accent all summer. The 12-inch plants bloom in all the popular nasturtium colors, including orange, gold, and red shades, and are especially attractive in the rock garden.

Each packet contains about 25 seeds, and is available only from Stokes Seeds Inc., 1804 Stokes Building, Buffalo, N.Y., 14240, from whom you can also get a free catalog you will be glad to have.

Stokes has the three All-America winners, as have other major mail-order nurseries, and 12 other new flowers to enjoy — marigolds, asters, petunias, impatiens, lobelias.

AMONG THEIR marigolds is a new dwarf French class called Moon Series, bred to meet a specific problem. You may have had the experience that most dwarf French marigolds lose their flowers after being set out in the border and don't recover for eight to 10 days.

Harvest Moon and Honey Moon plants are thick with buds that start blooming immediately upon being set out, so you don't have that gap from a transplanting shock.

Honey Moon is a cheerful canary yellow on 14-inch plants, and Harvest Moon on 15-inch plants, is a soft orange. Both will bloom in pots or flats about 60 to 70 days after seeding.

A NEW DAISY-flowered dwarf semi-double Aster series is available in four separate colors, White Star, Red Star, Violet Star, Sky-Blue Star, with long slender petals that virtually cover the ball-shaped 12-inch plants. Fine for the front of your border.

The new petunias, three of them, are hybrid grandifloras: Snow Cloud, a beautiful white; Sky Magic, a light blue on upright plants; and Sky Cascade, a cascade version of Sky Magic. A lovely blue lobelia, Blue Cascade, a trailing type, and two Elfin impatiens, Elfin Orchard and Elfin Red and White, will give you masses of bloom in shaded and semi-shaded areas.

If you are fond of single, daisy-type flowers, you will wish to plant Marigold Red Wheels, available only from the Geo. W. Park Seed Co. Entirely different in the French class, it has broad, red, overlapped petals to give a round three-inch flower centered with fluffy balls of canary yellow.

THE COMPACT plants are 14 inches high and bloom profusely until frost.

The Park Seed Co. at Greenwood, S.C., 29647, will send you a free catalog describing Red Wheels and other garden delights on request.

Park has a new super grandiflora petunia, too, named Filigree. Intricate delicate lines etch the petals of each of the velvety four-inch blooms covering neat foot-high plants. The colors are soft blue, pink, and rose.

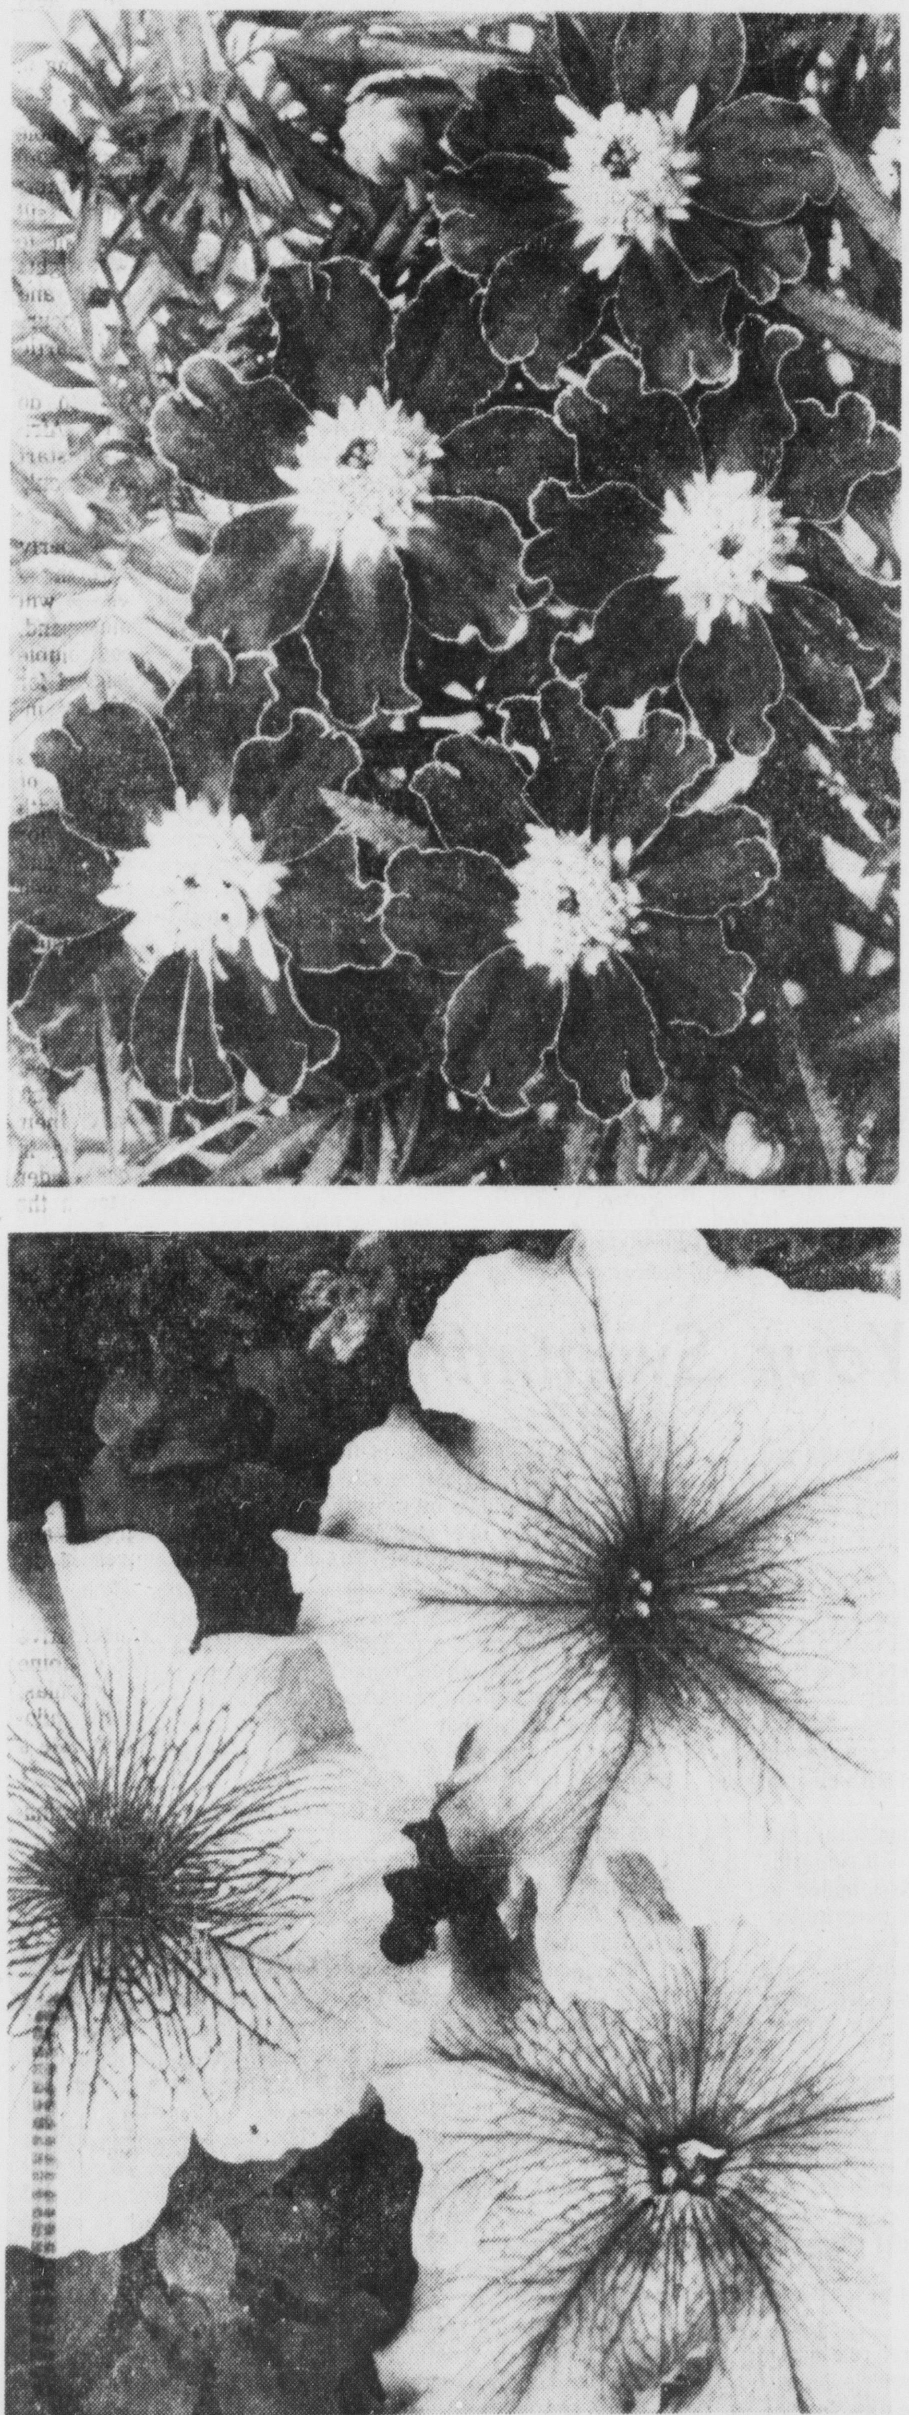
Impatiens Huckabug, another Park exclusive, has orchid-and-white bi-colored flowers nearly two inches across on dwarf spreading 10-inch plants, spectacular against the shiny green foliage. New varieties of impatiens are always welcomed by home gardeners with a lot of shade.

PARK HAS SEVERAL other new annuals, but we can't resist telling here of a new perennial.

It is a rare, tender perennial from Central China, Beverly Bells. It has showy trumpet-shaped flowers borne on three-foot terminal racemes over neat plants with broad green foliage.

The flowers are orchid-pink with sun-yellow throats. It will bloom quickly from seed over a long season. It isn't spectacular but is certainly different, with somehow the look of a wildflower.

©1974 The Christian Science Publishing Society



SEVERAL OF THE new annuals introduced this year are the products of the George W. Park Seed Co., including the Red Wheels Marigold, at top, and the Filigree Petunia, bottom.

Bentgrass Seeds Will Go A Long Ways

Bentgrass seed contains so many seeds — usually seven million or more to the pound, — that only a meager amoung is needed. The University of Rhode Island suggests for its "bentgrass lawn" mix, an economical 10 per cent of colonial bentgrass (with about 70 per cent Kentucky bluegrass-fine fescue, and 20 per cent perennial ryegrass).

Some Of New Annuals That Deserve Your Admiration This Garden Season

By MILLICENT TAYLOR

Each season one enjoys inviting into the garden a troupe of newcomers. In addition to the All-America winners that have been so much publicized, there are many other new varieties you might like to try.

SENSATIONAL IS a new nasturtium named Alaska. It is the first to have bicolor foliage — cream and green. The leaves are streaked and mottled in a variety of patterns, making it a conversation accent all summer. The 12-inch plants bloom in all the popular nasturtium colors, including orange, gold, and red shades, and are especially attractive in the rock garden.

Each packet contains about 25 seeds, and is available only from Stokes Seeds Inc., 1804 Stokes Building, Buffalo, N.Y., 14240, from whom you can also get a free catalog you will be glad to have.

Stokes has the three All-America winners, as have other major mail-order nurseries, and 12 other new flowers to enjoy — marigolds, asters, petunias, impatiens, lobelias.

AMONG THEIR marigolds is a new dwarf French class called Moon Series, bred to meet a specific problem. You may have had the experience that most dwarf French marigolds lose their flowers after being set out in the border and don't recover for eight to 10 days.

Harvest Moon and Honey Moon plants are thick with buds that start blooming immediately upon being set out, so you don't have that gap from a transplanting shock.

Honey Moon is a cheerful canary yellow on 14-inch plants, and Harvest Moon on 15-inch plants, is a soft orange. Both will bloom in pots or flats about 60 to 70 days after seeding.

A NEW DAISY-flowered dwarf semidouble Aster series is available in four separate colors, White Star, Red Star, Violet Star, Sky-Blue Star, with long slender petals that virtually cover the ball-shaped 12-inch plants. Fine for the front of your border.

The new petunias, three of them, are hybrid grandifloras: Snow Cloud, a beautiful white; Sky Magic, a light blue on upright plants; and Sky Cascade, a cascade version of Sky Magic. A lovely blue lobelia, Blue Cascade, a trailing type, and two Elfin impatiens, Elfin Orchard and Elfin Red and White, will give you masses of bloom in shaded and semi-shaded areas.

If you are fond of single, daisy-type flowers, you will wish to plant Marigold Red Wheels, available only from the Geo. W. Park Seed Co. Entirely different in the French class, it has broad, red, overlapped petals to give a round three-inch flower centered with fluffy balls of canary yellow.

THE COMPACT plants are 14 inches high and bloom profusely until frost.

The Park Seed Co. at Greenwood, S.C., 29647, will send you a free catalog describing Red Wheels and other garden delights on request.

Park has a new super grandiflora petunia, too, named Filigree. Intricate delicate lines etch the petals of each of the velvety four-inch blooms covering neat foot-high plants. The colors are soft blue, pink, and rose.

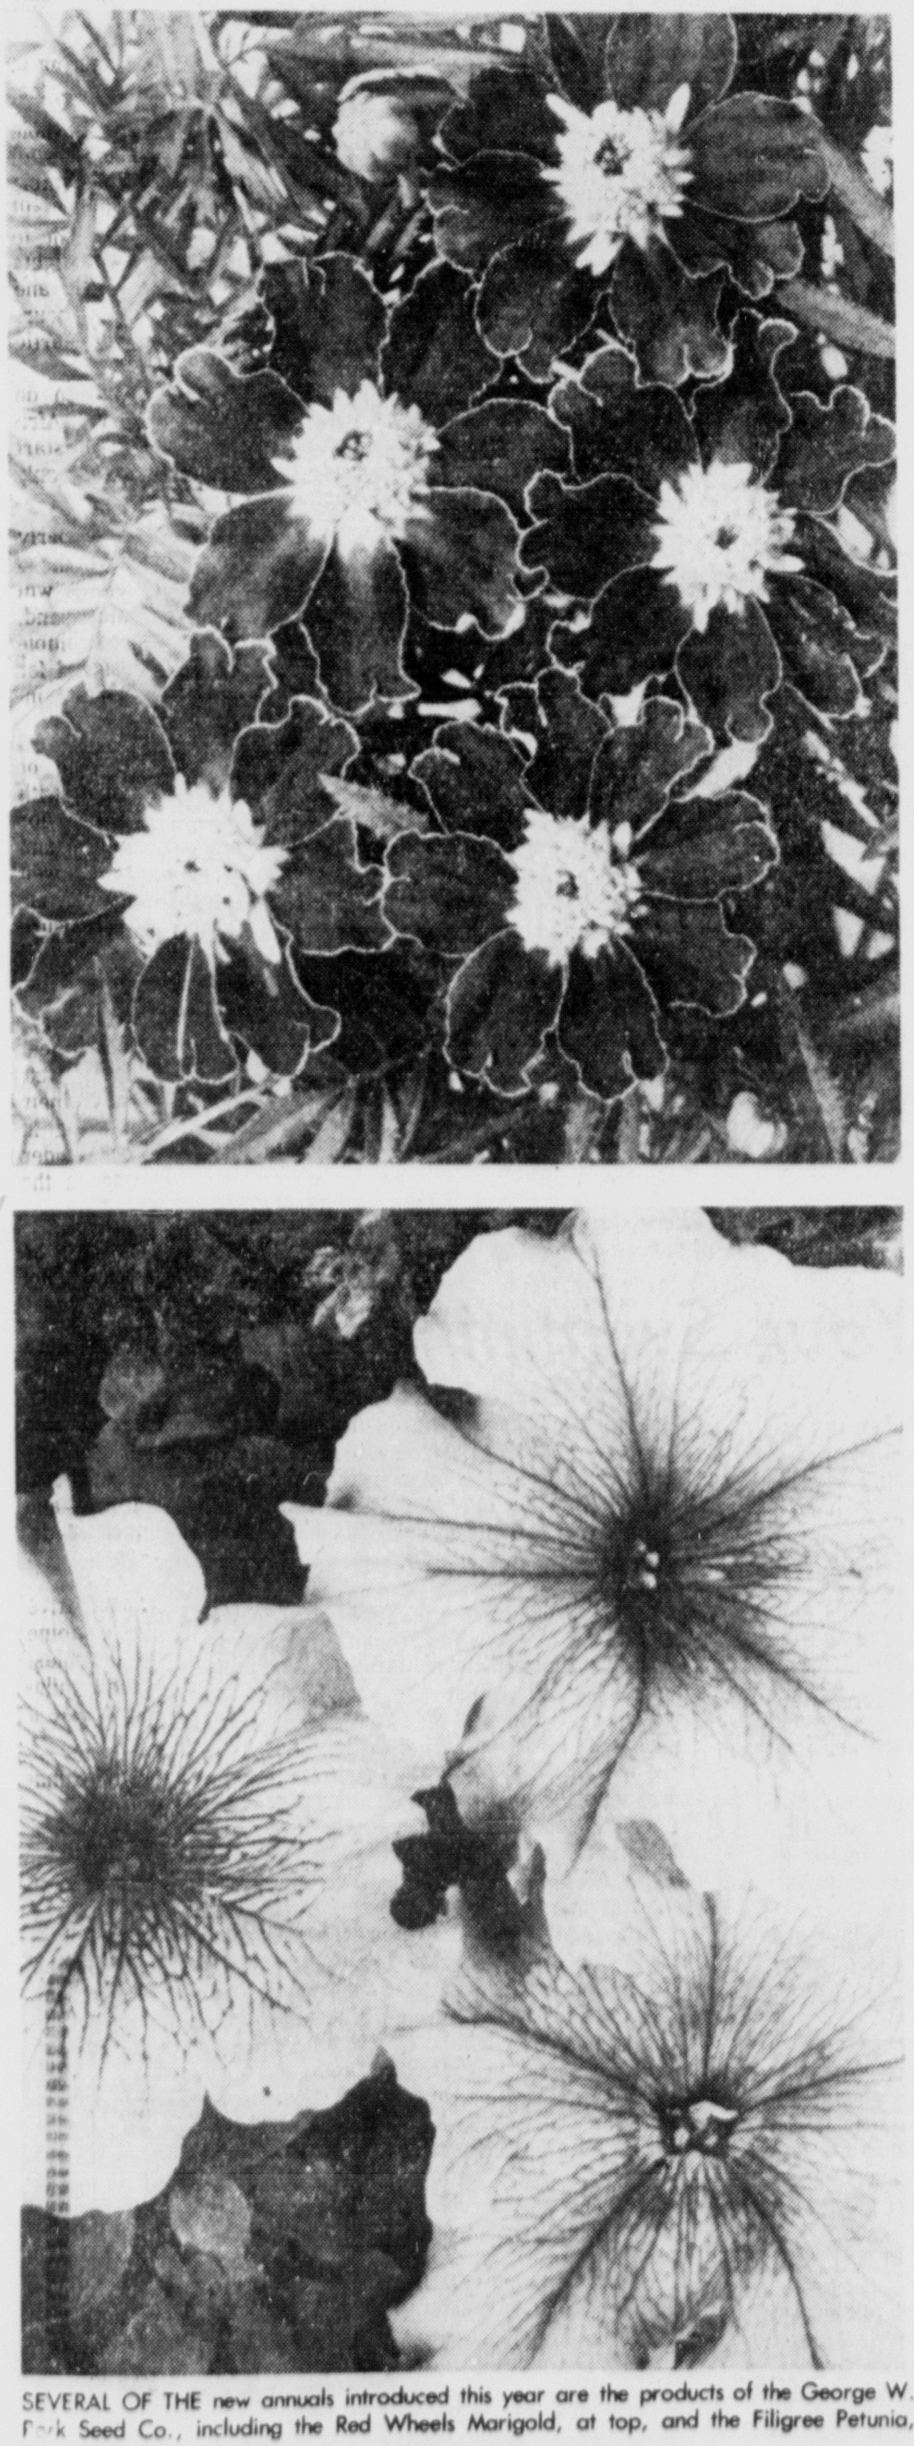
Impatiens Huckabug, another Park exclusive, has orchid-and-white bi-colored flowers nearly two inches across on dwarf spreading 10-inch plants, spectacular against the shiny green foliage. New varieties of impatiens are always welcomed by home gardeners with a lot of shade.

PARK HAS SEVERAL other new annuals, but we can't resist telling here of a new perennial.

It is a rare, tender perennial from Central China, Beverly Bells. It has showy trumpet-shaped flowers borne on three-foot terminal racemes over neat plants with broad green foliage.

The flowers are orchid-pink with sun-yellow throats. It will bloom quickly from seed over a long season. It isn't spectacular but is certainly different, with somehow the look of a wildflower.

©1974 The Christian Science Publishing Society



SEVERAL OF THE new annuals introduced this year are the products of the George W. Park Seed Co., including the Red Wheels Marigold, at top, and the Filigree Petunia, bottom.

Bentgrass Seeds Will Go A Long Ways

Bentgrass seed contains so many seeds — usually seven million or more to the pound, — that only a meager amoung is needed. The University of Rhode Island suggests for its "bentgrass lawn" mix, an economical 10 per cent of colonial bentgrass (with about 70 per cent Kentucky bluegrass-fine fescue, and 20 per cent perennial ryegrass).

Even though it is possible to enjoy a lifetime of beauty from them, and it's fun to anticipate the pleasure you'll get from the shade trees you're about to plant, don't lose sight of the fact that the project calls for some planning.

First, when planting shade trees, it's important to give them a good start in life, for this often dictates how well they will perform in future years.

Whether bareroot, balled or from nursery containers, the trees should be planted in well-drained soil.

THE BEST PROCEDURE to follow is to incorporate a nurseryman's planter mix with existing soil. The organic matter helps beef up the soil and enhances drainage. Dig the hole amply larger than the root ball or root spread. And, plant the tree at the same depth it was planted in the nursery.

With bareroot trees, the ring left by soil is clearly visible.

TO ILLUSTRATE: A spreading Texas Umbrella tree provides a lovely canopy of shade. It can be utilitarian as well as beautiful — for shade purposes. However, when planted in a limited area it may ultimately overgrow its bounds. A clump of upright-growing White Birch would perhaps, be a better choice for limited space.

Marin Joins The War On Three Pests

Marin County's home gardeners who come across the gypsy moth, the Japanese beetle, or the Dutch elm disease are asked to contact Marin County Agricultural Commissioner R. Allan Ballard at the Marin County Civic Center.

Ballard and his assistant, Philip Economon, announced that Marin has joined the statewide war to keep destructive insects and diseases from entering and gaining a foothold in California.

JAPANESE BEETLES have been found in Balboa Park in San Diego where they invade ornamental plantings. They attack all parts of many species of plants including foliage, flowers, fruit and roots, with a particular love for rose flowers. They are somewhat larger than the lady bird beetle, light brown on top and greenish bronze on head and thorax. Mounted specimens can be seen at the office of Marin County Agricultural Commissioner.

Last year a gypsy moth adult was captured in a trap in Berkeley. The gypsy moth, the caterpillar which feeds on foliage, is brownish and hairy with pairs of red and blue dots on its back, and is about two inches long. Gypsy moth larvae are voracious feeders on plant foliage, and individual larvae can consume one square foot of foliage every 24 hours.

The dreaded Dutch elm disease, carried by the elm bark beetle, has been found as far west as Idaho. The disease is a virus which causes the younger leaves of twigs of the elm to wilt first. It may occur so suddenly that the leaves dry while still green, or there may be a partial yellowing or browning of the foliage before withering. In a few weeks, the tree will appear almost bare.

AS PART OF a statewide program, Marin has set out 60 all-purpose fruit-fly traps, 60 Japanese beetle traps, and 60 gypsy moth traps in order to detect early infestation. These are serviced regularly because vehicles arriving from infested areas in the east are a prime means of transporting these hitch-hiking pests into California, said Ballard.

"The home gardener can be the extra eyes that the Department of Agriculture needs to detect new infestations of any of these pests before they become established, so that the cost of eradication is not expensive."

Jack Kramer's Latest Subject: The Aquarium

This latest product of the very prolific Kramer's expertise and industry is a guide for the planning and planting of your aquarium.

It covers the selection and care of the fish as well as the plants, along with the beginning step of choosing the aquarium itself — glass, plastic, five-gallon, 15-gallon, etc. — plus the accessories, and the assembling of the system.

"Too long we have neglected the aquatic plants, so that is what this book is all about . . .," Kramer begins.

Most of the photography is by Matthew Barr, and there are drawings by Cyrus Choy. The illustrations generally are excellent. And the price is $6.95 hardcover, $3.95 softcover.

Sprinklers Keep The Grass Green

"Wave" sprinkler heads set flush with the ground water up to 2,000 square feet each. Sprinkling is activated by a time clock that can be set for any duration of sprinkling, any time of day, any day of the week. This is the convenient way to keep grass attractive where rainfall is not consistent.

Good Grass Seed Is In Short Supply, So Sow With Care

With some lawn seed varieties in short supply, and the better types more costly than common grass (the new cultivars do not yield seed so abundantly), sowing seed carefully makes especial sense this year.

A well prepared soilbed requires as little as two pounds of quality seed for each 1,000 square feet. In fact, if you are willing to endure weeds for awhile, even lighter seeding rates are possible (though not suggested).

If a thin lawn needs bolstering, scarify it, making scratches which will catch new seed. Seed perched on top of thatch out of contact with soil has little chance of rooting.

IF YOUR LAWN shows much organic layering, dethatch it. A "power rake" or "vertical mower," which slices into sod with saw-like blades, can be rented for weekend lawn renovation.

After scarification, whether by machine or hand raking, spread seed uniformly, working it into the scratches before they become obliterated. A seeder-spreader sows seed more accurately than is possible by hand, the cyclone type casting seed in a wide arc that covers ground quickly.

If you sow by hand, reserve half of the seed for a second casting at right angles, to better assure against misses. Should it prove difficult to sow seed so thinly, extend it with sawdust, sand, cornmeal, or something of similar particle size, to provide more bulk. Dragging an inverted leaf rake, or a mat, over the lawn should wind up the operation.

REMAKING THE lawn entirely is more drastic, but provides a better soilbed. Plow down the old vegetation, spreading fertilizer as soon as any necessary grading is completed. Cultivate shallowly and work the surface level. Small areas can be rotary tilled; but old vegetation is not buried so neatly as with moldboard plowing, and it may be necessary to rake out sod clumps which surface during leveling. Try to end up with a loose, fairly chunky surface, avoiding excessive tillage that breaks down soil structure. Sow seed as for renovation.

Choose lawn seed of good quality, in which perennial fine-textured grasses predominate. This may be occasion for introducing up-to-date cultivars. New varieties are attractively low-growing and tolerant of disease.

If you would like a listing of new bluegrass, fine fescue, bentgrass and perennial ryegrass varieties, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to the Lawn Institute, Route 4, Marysville, Ohio, 43040.

MULCHING WILL assist new seedings. A mulch protects against wash, but even more important, it prevents the soil from drying out quickly. Clean straw spread a few straws deep, stringy peatmoss, chopped twigs, excelsior, woven nettings, or other loose materials that will let the seedling grass poke through, make acceptable mulches. Once soaked, a new seeding needs only light sprinklings thereafter.

Sprouting will be faster in warm weather than in cool, but a fuzz of green should be visible within two weeks, especially if the seeding mix contains any of the handsome new perennial ryegrass varietis.

The Chemical Arsenal For The Lawn: Fertilizers, Fungicides, Retardants

Ureaform fertilizers have become quite popular for spring and summer lawn feeding.

What is there about gradual-release nitrogen that is so beneficial? A report from Pennsylvania State University sheds some light:

Lawn grasses should grow at a steady, even pace in order to remain vigorous and attractive. Over-stimulation depletes the food (carbohydrate) balance in the plant. As warm weather approaches and bluegrass is less efficient in replenishing carbohydrate, the grass may weaken or even be lost.

The threat is less serious here where summer is relatively cool than in warmer climates. But it still exists and takes its toll.

NEW BLUEGRASS varieties do not contain weaklings among their numbers; questionable selections were weeded out by the breeders. Nevertheless, fine lawngrasses are bred for best performance only when provided reasonable care.

A topflight lawn deserves periodical feeding with a fertilizer that parcels outs its nitrogen gradually. This is good for the grass, good for lawn wear, and helpful in restraining weeds.

A FAMILIAR CAUSE for an unsatisfactory lawn is "disease."

The ecology of lawn diseases is poorly understood. When a systemic fungicide controls one disease, the grass may become more susceptible to something else. Apparently fungi compete, and a balanced population of innocuous fungi is needed. Microbial life in lawn thatch not only recycles spent materials, but may be directly therapeutic?

Well-chosen fungicides do control lawn diseases nicely. But recognizing when a disease is about to erupt is not easy. And thorough application of a fungicide is difficult for a home owner lacking sophisticated spray equipment.

Simpler (and environmentally preferable) might be the planting of disease-resistant lawn grasses. The new varieties have been bred especially for tolerance to disease. You can assume that a named cultivar withstands disease better than common grass, or it would not have passed muster with its breeder.

THERE ARE ALSO chemical sprays to retard lawn growth in the hope of reducing mowing, but these have not been entirely successful. A home owner has difficulty achieving exacting application at just the right time, and always risks phytotoxicity. The spray may not affect all species equally, so that mowing is still needed to level out unevenness.

Since most new lawn grasses have been chosen for low profile (dwarfishness), again upgrading the lawn by introducing improved varieties may be more practical.

A GLOSSARY OF THE TERMS THAT APPLY TO THE LAWN

Here are a dozen perhaps unfamiliar terms you may run across in reading about lawns:

AERIFICATION — Punching holes in the soil to encourage better rooting.
COMPLETE FERTILIZER — Plant food containing all major nutrients (nitrogen, phosphorus, potassium).
COOL-SEASON GRASS — Cultivars for border state climates northward, primarily bentgrass, bluegrass, fescue and perennial ryegrass.
CULTIVAR — A cultivated variety, as distinct from a more broadly distinguished botanical one (Ruby is a fescue cultivar, of the "rubra" variety).
MULCH — Loose material spread for protection against wash and drying out; straw, excelsior or woven nettings are typical lawn mulches.
OVERSEEDING — Seed spread lightly to improve quality of an established lawn (thicken thin turf, introduce new varieties).
PESTICIDE — A material for controlling pests: fungicides for disease, insecticides for "bugs," and herbicides for weeds.
THATCH — Old tissues in various stages of decay at the base of the turf; thatch may impede fertilizer reaching the rootzone if too thick.
TOP SOIL — Richer surface soil usually darker in color than the infertile tough-to-handle subsoil.
UREAFORM — A polymer of urea and formaldehyde that releases nitrogen gradually; the "slow-release" component of better lawn fertilizers.

The Fine Points Of Fescue — They Are Many And Varied

Fine fescues have a lot going for them as lawn grasses.

The densely growing Chewings varieties, like Highlight, Jamestown and Koket, are among the best looking cultivars a lawn can sport, — especially during cooler times of year. These standouts are great companions for Kentucky bluegrass, although perhaps less utilized in mixture than "creeping" and "spreading" fescues like Ruby.

Fine fescues possess other winning features. They are notably tolerant of shade. And they do very well on poor, infertile soil. Indeed, many times fescue resents over-fertilization.

Fescues endure drought quite well, and are among the best grasses for colonizing sandy outcrops, where the soil drains rapidly, the rootzone drying quickly.

Because of their attractive texture, — e.g. narrow, graceful leaves, — fescues give the lawn a refined touch. Ruby matches very nicely the elegance and deep color of new thin-leaf bluegrasses like Fylking. Highlight's a brilliant attention-getter; Koket a dependable all-purpose variety. Jamestown is the most dwarfish of all, and a very dark green.

All fine fescues should be mowed fairly tall (at least an inch and a half high), to take full advantage of the beautiful foliage; fescue growth is upright, and the basal sheath appears "bristly" if the leaves suffer serious decapitation.

How Clean Is Your Swimming Pool?

By VIVIAN BROWN

Is your swimming pool still on the party circuit? Or are you getting more regrets than acceptances?

It is one thing to have one big happy bathtub in your backyard but quite another to keep it filled these days. People worry about pollution.

There has been stiff competition in some areas to maintain a pool quorum what with all the choices — in-ground pools, above-ground pools and some pools that are half-in and half-out. Beyond the matter of pool preference, guests expect the latest water toys. The cabana shower and floating bar have become standard equipment in some neighborhoods, and for furthering aquatic delights there are water walkers of molded polystyrene in snowshoe shape and a hippo boat with electric accelerator and rudder.

And one can add to the floating chaise collection with a sun float, the pool people's answer to the water-bed — it conforms to the body, does not need to be inflated and is touted as puncture-proof — made of the same material as government-approved life jackets.

But pool guests have become overly sated with toys and games. What they want to see around a pool are water skimmers (to catch leaves), vacuum cleaners (for bottom cleaning) and clear water.

One perennial pool party-goer blames his current ills — infected ears, stubbed toes and the like —on the pools he has visited. He doesn't know which ailment goes with which pool, but he'll bet last year's water wings that some people aren't keeping their pools clean. He has rarely been invited to a pool that has the clean, sparkling look that comes of expert care.

Well, maybe, early in the season, but he thinks people get careless after the first big water bash.

In his opinion pool owners should be required to post signs telling when they last serviced their pool.

His suspicions have led him into a new secret role —pool policeman. He may even become the pool owner's biggest party bore as he subtly interrogates his host. He likes to know that a pool owner has checked his filter gauge occasionally, which might indicate that valves may be closed and that dirt and debris are clogging the lines.

And he is wary of chipped paint, he says. Dirt and debris can lodge into the scalings of the plaster.

Every pool party-goer should brief himself on pool upkeep and maybe even do a bit of testing of a pool on the sly, merely by dipping an eye dropper into the water. There are inexpensive test tubes that can help determine chlorine level in a matter of minutes. On very hot days algae are encouraged to grow faster, causing the dissipation of chlorine.

Although algae have no stems, leaves, seeds or real roots, they can convert inorganic matter to organic matter by light energy through their photosynthesis capability. Some 17,000 species of such algae are said to have been described by researchers. Our pool policer is sure that he has been in some pools with all 17,000 varieties.

He has read that the control of algae, microscopic organisms, is an important factor in the maintenance of pools.

A biologist, Dr. Robert Ingols, has pointed out that the swimmer contributing sweat, saliva, skin debris and possibly urine to pool water reduces the quality and quantity of chlorine and contributes minerals needed by algae.

Many pools become so murky because of a too-small filter —one that is not working — too many swimmers, poor circulation, the under-use of chlorine, and other causes, that you can hardly see through the water, Ingols points out. It may require only a handful of diatamaceous earth put into the filter each week to maintain clarity.

In fact the test he makes for clarity can be made with a little black and red disc that may be obtained from stores that sell the earth — the powder used in filter systems when a sand filter isn't used. The little black and red quadrant is tossed into the deepest section of the pool, and if the separations in the quadrants aren't distinguishable at eight feet the filteration cycle and water treatment need checking.

All this clean-up knowledge has sent the pool partier into a slump. Should he continue to visit other people's pools? Or should he buy his own pool? And how do you go about keeping a pool a secret?

Last year a gypsy moth adult was captured in a trap in Berkeley. The gypsy moth, the caterpillar which feeds on foliage, is brownish and hairy with pairs of red and blue dots on its back, and is about two inches long. Gypsy moth larvae are voracious feeders on plant foliage, and individual larvae can consume one square foot of foliage every 24 hours.

The dreaded Dutch elm disease, carried by the elm bark beetle, has been found as far west as Idaho. The disease is a virus which causes the younger leaves of twigs of the elm to wilt first. It may occur so suddenly that the leaves dry while still green, or there may be a partial yellowing or browning of the foliage before withering. In a few weeks, the tree will appear almost bare.

AS PART OF a statewide program, Marin has set out 60 all-purpose fruit-fly traps, 60 Japanese beetle traps, and 60 gypsy moth traps in order to detect early infestation. These are serviced regularly because vehicles arriving from infested areas in the east are a prime means of transporting these hitch-hiking pests into California, said Ballard.

"The home gardener can be the extra eyes that the Department of Agriculture needs to detect new infestations of any of these pests before they become established, so that the cost of eradication is not expensive."

Jack Kramer's Latest Subject: The Aquarium

This latest product of the very prolific Kramer's expertise and industry is a guide for the planning and planting of your aquarium.

It covers the selection and care of the fish as well as the plants, along with the beginning step of choosing the aquarium itself — glass, plastic, five-gallon, 15-gallon, etc. — plus the accessories, and the assembling of the system.

"Too long we have neglected the aquatic plants, so that is what this book is all about . . ." Kramer begins.

Most of the photography is by Matthew Barr, and there are drawings by Cyrus Choy. The illustrations generally are excellent. And the price is $6.95 hardcover, $3.95 softcover.

Sprinklers Keep The Grass Green

"Wave" sprinkler heads set flush with the ground water up to 2,000 square feet each. Sprinkling is activated by a time clock that can be set for any duration of sprinkling, any time of day, any day of the week. This is the convenient way to keep grass attractive where rainfall is not consistent.

Good Grass Seed Is In Short Supply, So Sow With Care

With some lawn seed varieties in short supply, and the better types more costly than common grass (the new cultivars do not yield seed so abundantly), sowing seed carefully makes especial sense this year.

A well prepared soilbed requires as little as two pounds of quality seed for each 1,000 square feet. In fact, if you are willing to endure weeds for awhile, even lighter seeding rates are possible (though not suggested).

If a thin lawn needs bolstering, scarify it, making scratches which will catch new seed. Seed perched on top of thatch out of contact with soil has little chance of rooting.

IF YOUR LAWN shows much organic layering, dethatch it. A "power rake" or "vertical mower," which slices into sod with saw-like blades, can be rented for weekend lawn renovation.

After scarification, whether by machine or hand raking, spread seed uniformly, working it into the scratches before they become obliterated. A seeder-spreader sows seed more accurately than is possible by hand, the cyclone type casting seed in a wide arc that covers ground quickly.

If you sow by hand, reserve half of the seed for a second casting at right angles, to better assure against misses. Should it prove difficult to sow seed so thinly, extend it with sawdust, sand, cornmeal, or something of similar particle size, to provide more bulk. Dragging an inverted leaf rake, or a mat, over the lawn should wind up the operation.

REMAKING THE lawn entirely is more drastic, but provides a better soilbed. Plow down the old vegetation, spreading fertilizer as soon as any necessary grading is completed. Cultivate shallowly and work the surface level. Small areas can be rotary tilled; but old vegetation is not buried so neatly as with moldboard plowing, and it may be necessary to rake out sod clumps which surface during leveling. Try to end up with a loose, fairly chunky surface, avoiding excessive tillage that breaks down soil structure. Sow seed as for renovation.

Choose lawn seed of good quality, in which perennial fine-textured grasses predominate. This may be occasion for introducing up-to-date cultivars. New varieties are attractively low-growing and tolerant of disease.

If you would like a listing of new bluegrass, fine fescue, bentgrass and perennial ryegrass varieties, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to the Lawn Institute, Route 4, Marysville, Ohio, 43040.

MULCHING WILL assist new seedings. A mulch protects against wash, but even more important, it prevents the soil from drying out quickly. Clean straw spread a few straws deep, stringy peatmoss, chopped twigs, excelsior, woven nettings, or other loose materials that will let the seedling grass poke through, make acceptable mulches. Once soaked, a new seeding needs only light sprinklings thereafter.

Sprouting will be faster in warm weather than in cool, but a fuzz of green should be visible within two weeks, especially if the seeding mix contains any of the handsome new perennial ryegrass varietis.

The Chemical Arsenal For The Lawn: Fertilizers, Fungicides, Retardants

Ureaform fertilizers have become quite popular for spring and summer lawn feeding.

What is there about gradual-release nitrogen that is so beneficial? A report from Pennsylvania State University sheds some light:

Lawn grasses should grow at a steady, even pace in order to remain vigorous and attractive. Over-stimulation depletes the food (carbohydrate) balance in the plant. As warm weather approaches and bluegrass is less efficient in replenishing carbohydrate, the grass may weaken or even be lost.

The threat is less serious here where summer is relatively cool than in warmer climates. But it still exists and takes its toll.

NEW BLUEGRASS varieties do not contain weaklings among their numbers; questionable selections were weeded out by the breeders. Nevertheless, fine lawngrasses are bred for best performance only when provided reasonable care.

A topflight lawn deserves periodical feeding with a fertilizer that parcels outs its nitrogen gradually. This is good for the grass, good for lawn wear, and helpful in restraining weeds.

A FAMILIAR CAUSE for an unsatisfactory lawn is "disease."

The ecology of lawn diseases is poorly understood. When a systemic fungicide controls one disease, the grass may become more susceptible to something else. Apparently fungi compete, and a balanced population of innocuous fungi is needed. Microbial life in lawn thatch not only recycles spent materials, but may be directly therapeutic?

Well-chosen fungicides do control lawn diseases nicely. But recognizing when a disease is about to erupt is not easy. And thorough application of a fungicide is difficult for a home owner lacking sophisticated spray equipment.

Simpler (and environmentally preferable) might be the planting of disease-resistant lawn grasses. The new varieties have been bred especially for tolerance to disease. You can assume that a named cultivar withstands disease better than common grass, or it would not have passed muster with its breeder.

THERE ARE ALSO chemical sprays to retard lawn growth in the hope of reducing mowing, but these have not been entirely successful. A home owner has difficulty achieving exacting application at just the right time, and always risks phytotoxicity. The spray may not affect all species equally, so that mowing is still needed to level out unevenness.

Since most new lawn grasses have been chosen for low profile (dwarfishness), again upgrading the lawn by introducing improved varieties may be more practical.

A GLOSSARY OF THE TERMS THAT APPLY TO THE LAWN

Here are a dozen perhaps unfamiliar terms you may run across in reading about lawns:

AERIFICATION — Punching holes in the soil to encourage better rooting.

COMPLETE FERTILIZER — Plant food containing all major nutrients (nitrogen, phosphorus, potassium).

COOL-SEASON GRASS — Cultivars for border state climates northward, primarily bentgrass, bluegrass, fescue and perennial ryegrass.

MULCH — Loose material spread for protection against wash and drying out; straw, excelsior or woven nettings are typical lawn mulches.

OVERSEEDING — Seed spread lightly to improve quality of an established lawn (thicken thin turf, introduce new varieties).

PESTICIDE — A material for controlling pests; fungicides for disease, insecticides for "bugs," and herbicides for weeds.

THATCH — Old tissues in various stages of decay at the base of the turf; thatch may impede fertilizer reaching the rootzone if too thick.

UREAFORM — A polymer of urea and formaldehyde that releases nitrogen gradually; the "slow-release" component of better lawn fertilizers.

The Fine Points Of Fescue — They Are Many And Varied

Fine fescues have a lot going for them as lawn grasses.

The densely growing Chewings varieties, like Highlight, Jamestown and Koket, are among the best looking cultivars a lawn can sport, — especially during cooler times of year. These standouts are great companions for Kentucky bluegrass, although perhaps less utilized in mixture than "creeping" and "spreading" fescues like Ruby.

Fine fescues possess other winning features. They are notably tolerant of shade. And they do very well on poor, infertile soil. Indeed, many times fescue resents over-fertilization.

Fescues endure drought quite well, and are among the best grasses for colonizing sandy outcrops, where the soil drains rapidly, the rootzone drying quickly.

Because of their attractive texture, — e.g. narrow, graceful leaves, — fescues give the lawn a refined touch. Ruby matches very nicely the elegance and deep color of new thin-leaf bluegrasses like Fylking. Highlight's a brilliant attention-getter; Koket a dependable all-purpose variety. Jamestown is the most dwarfish of all, and a very dark green.

All fine fescues should be mowed fairly tall (at least an inch and a half high), to take full advantage of the beautiful foliage; fescue growth is upright, and the basal sheath appears "bristly" if the leaves suffer serious decapitation.

How Clean Is Your Swimming Pool?

By VIVIAN BROWN

Is your swimming pool still on the party circuit? Or are you getting more regrets than acceptances?

It is one thing to have one big happy bathtub in your backyard but quite another to keep it filled these days. People worry about pollution.

There has been stiff competition in some areas to maintain a pool quorum what with all the choices — in-ground pools, above-ground pools and some pools that are half-in and half-out. Beyond the matter of pool preference, guests expect the latest water toys. The cabana shower and floating bar have become standard equipment in some neighborhoods, and for furthering aquatic delights there are water walkers of molded polystyrene in snowshoe shape and a hippo boat with electric accelerator and rudder.

And one can add to the floating chaise collection with a sun float, the pool people's answer to the water-bed — it conforms to the body, does not need to be inflated and is touted as puncture-proof — made of the same material as government-approved life jackets.

But pool guests have become overly sated with toys and games. What they want to see around a pool are water skimmers (to catch leaves), vacuum cleaners (for bottom cleaning) and clear water.

One perennial pool party-goer blames his current ills — infected ears, stubbed toes and the like —on the pools he has visited. He doesn't know which ailment goes with which pool, but he'll bet last year's water wings that some people aren't keeping their pools clean. He has rarely been invited to a pool that has the clean, sparkling look that comes of expert care.

Well, maybe, early in the season, but he thinks people get careless after the first big water bash.

In his opinion pool owners should be required to post signs telling when they last serviced their pool.

His suspicions have led him into a new secret role —pool policeman. He may even become the pool owner's biggest party bore as he subtly interrogates his host. He likes to know that a pool owner has checked his filter gauge occasionally, which might indicate that valves may be closed and that dirt and debris are clogging the lines.

And he is wary of chipped paint, he says. Dirt and debris can lodge into the scalings of the plaster.

Every pool party-goer should brief himself on pool upkeep and maybe even do a bit of testing of a pool on the sly, merely by dipping an eye dropper into the water. There are inexpensive test tubes that can help determine chlorine level in a matter of minutes. On very hot days algae are encouraged to grow faster, causing the dissipation of chlorine.

Although algae have no stems, leaves, seeds or real roots, they can convert inorganic matter to organic matter by light energy through their photosynthesis capability. Some 17,000 species of such algae are said to have been described by researchers. Our pool policer is sure that he has been in some pools with all 17,000 varieties.

He has read that the control of algae, microscopic organisms, is an important factor in the maintenance of pools.

A biologist, Dr. Robert Ingols, has pointed out that the swimmer contributing sweat, saliva, skin debris and possibly urine to pool water reduces the quality and quantity of chlorine and contributes minerals needed by algae.

Many pools become so murky because of a too-small filter —one that is not working — too many swimmers, poor circulation, the under-use of chlorine, and other causes, that you can hardly see through the water, Ingols points out. It may require only a handful of diatamaceous earth put into the filter each week to maintain clarity.

In fact the test he makes for clarity can be made with a little black and red disc that may be obtained from stores that sell the earth — the powder used in filter systems when a sand filter isn't used. The little black and red quadrant is tossed into the deepest section of the pool, and if the separations in the quadrants aren't distinguishable at eight feet the filteration cycle and water treatment need checking.

All this clean-up knowledge has sent the pool partier into a slump. Should he continue to visit other people's pools? Or should he buy his own pool? And how do you go about keeping a pool a secret?

Redwood In Backyard Adds Pleasure To Your Outdoor Living

MARIN LIVING

This spring the energy crunch will probably put you back in your own backyard. And California redwood — especially the economical Garden Grades of redwood — can help you enjoy it.

Home owners across the nation are focusing attention on expanding and improving their outdoor living areas. Decks, patios, fences, privacy screens, dividers, garden shelters — all can add to the charm (and value) of any home. And redwood is often chosen for both aesthetic and practical reasons.

Redwood garden grades (commons) give you the beauty and weatherability of luxury grades of this unique material at far less cost. These budget-wise grades contain knots and contrasting streaks of cream-colored sapwood giving them a textured look that blends with the natural surroundings.

Virtually maintenance-free, redwood prove extremely durable over the years. Redwood can be left to weather naturally to a handsome driftwood gray . . . or water repellent can be applied to stabilize the color at a buckskin tan.

As with all major investments, home improvements and additions need to be carefully planned. Lumber, like furniture or plumbing fixtures, should be ordered as far in advance as possible.

For a copy of "Redwood Garden Structures You Can Build" send 25 cents for postage and handling to California Redwood Association, 617 Montgomery Street, San Francisco, Calif. 94111.

At left, a freestanding redwood garden deck is designed to serve as an outdoor social center for the residents of the home and their guests. Note the beauty of the wood with the knots and streaks retained. Landscape aechitect John Matthias did the design, Ernest Braun took the photograph. And below, another redwood patio, this on on two levels, and linking the house, the pool and yard. Photo by Barbeau Engh. A new 12-page booklet entitled "Redwood Garden Structures You Can Build" is full of ideas such as these, and is offered for 25 cents by the California Redwood Association, 617 Montgomery Street, San Francisco. Screens, dividers and benches are some of the other ideas covered. And detailed plans are included along with photographs and descriptions. The California Redwood Association claims use of the lumber it publicizes can even be advocated on conservation grounds, "since California coast redwood is capable of growing more board feet of wood each year than any other commercial lumber species."

The Best Reason For Herbs Is To Season

There are a multitude of reasons for growing herbs in your garden or in pots for close-up enjoyment.

One of the soundest reasons of all is seasoning, the enrichment of certain foods to make them more pleasing to the taste or smell.

The California Association of Nurserymen recommends you check your nursery for a complete variety of herbs that you can plant in the garden or in window containers. It will become a great weekend project for you.

ROSEMARY'S pine-like leaves with their clean, delicious aroma certainly recommend themselves to every good cook. They do something for a roast when used judiciously; when chopped in a pot of red beans they make a gourmet dish of this humble food.

In the garden they are worth planting for their needle-like foliage, twisted trunk and delightful masses of pale light-blue flowers. They can be used to make a pleasant, informal hedge and one form makes a good groundcover.

Sweet Basil goes well on scrambled eggs, in potato salad and similar concoctions. Sweet Basil's colorful, purplish leaves make for decorative garden plants.

LIKE MOST OF the herbs, it wants very light soil that lets water run through quickly and plenty of sun and heat.

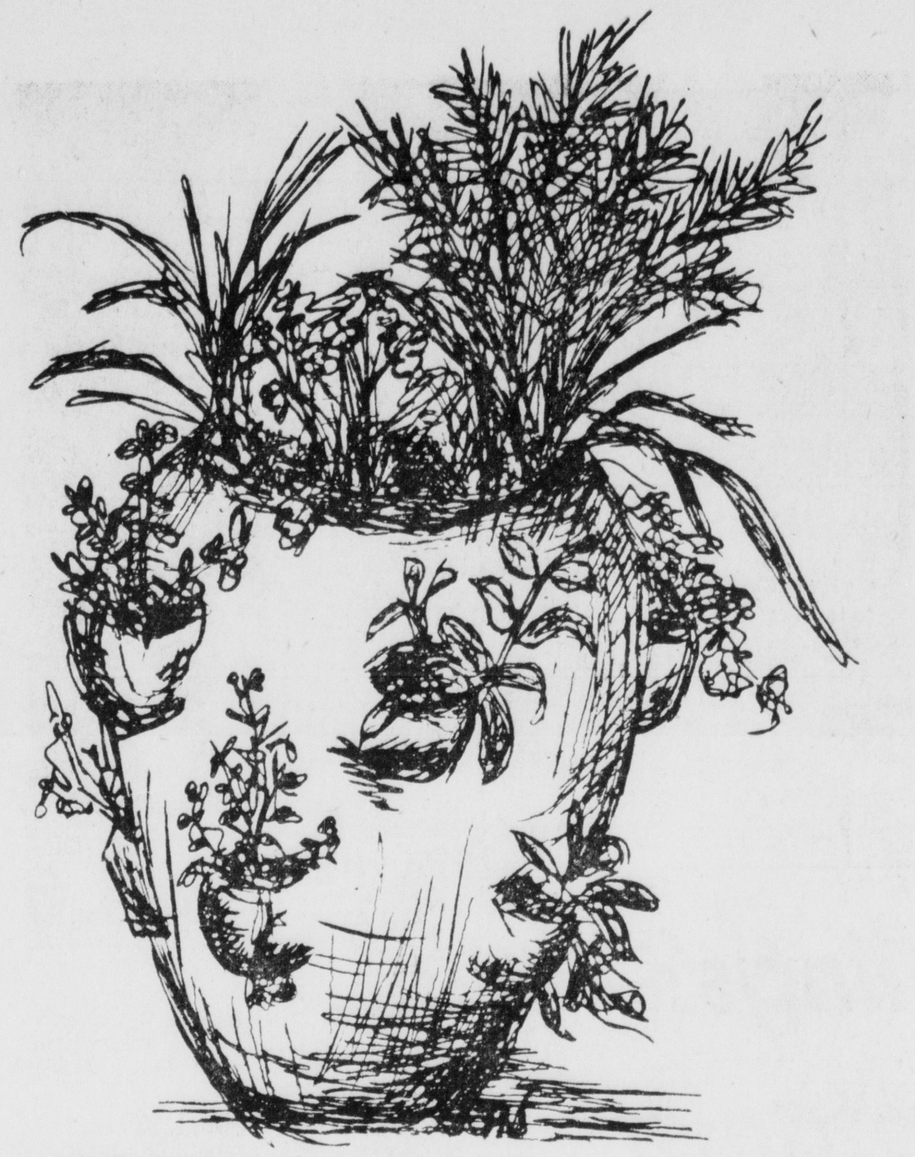
Sage with rough, grey-green leaves and a loose sort of growing habit that is great if you have a good, hot, dry bank to cover or a tough spot in the rock garden. The purple flowers are not the reason you grow this one. Seasoning and leaf color are the soundest reasons.

By pinching the plant from the time it's young you can keep it shaped in a low mound. Its leaves have that wonderful pungent fresh odor that makes it so desirable when cooking roasts and fowl, or when chopped fine and sprinkled over cold meats.

CHIVES SHOULD be in every garden because they can be tucked in anywhere and look like green quills or round blades of grass. They have a mild onion flavor which is popular for cream cheese dishes or cracker dips, baked potatoes and scrambled eggs.

Get them from the nursery as plants. They're perennial and go on and on.

There are so many possibilities in the seasoning plant world. Check your local nursery where they have a complete selection of herbs ready for you to take home. Keep them growing in pots or plant them in a special herb garden.



GROWING YOUR OWN seasoning is easy and fun, and doesn't necessarily require a lot of space. A strawberry jar planted with a variety of herbs can be very attractive, and a useful addition to your patio, porch or window sill. They can be decorative, too, in your garden.

When The Soil Is A Problem

Gardeners, denied the luxury of an acre of rich loamy soil, are not only finding ways to plant vegetables in very limited spaces, but are discovering ways to grow them more effectively.

Many a gardener finds himself working with a soil that won't support a vegetable garden. The soil may have a shallow layer of rocks or hardpan, or heavy clay that drains slowly, or some other combination that is unfriendly to plants.

In such situations, growing plants above the soil is the best answer. A raised bed can be made with railroad ties or one-by-12-inch boards. If the bed is accessible from two sides, six-by-eight feet is practical, but if it is against a fence, three-by-four is best.

When the bed is filled with a light soil mix, rich in organic matter, you have a very good growing factory which has many advantages. It is easier to provide for heat and protection of new seedlings. It makes a good base for sturdy supports and covers. It provides better drainage and is easier to weed and keep tidy.

Suggestions and illustrations of ways to construct cold-frames, hot-beds and variations of raised beds can be found in an excellent book published by Chevron Chemical Co., Ortho, called "All About Vegetables."

MARIN LIVING

For Harvest Of Vitamins, Grow Your Own Vegetables

Most new gardeners will be growing vegetables in 1974 because they have been motivated by the high cost of living. Others will do it because that's the only way to enjoy fresh home-grown flavor.

Vegetables are also our most important source of vitamins, and better tasting than any vitamin pill.

THE PRINCIPAL nutrients for which-vegetables are best known are iron, vitamin A, vitamin C, riboflavin and carbohydrates.

Vitamin A, as such, is not found in plants, but there are substances known as provitamin A that are converted to vitamin A by the body. Dark green and deep yellow vegetables are excellent sources of provitamin A.

Examples are spinach, broccoli, chard, kale, turnip greens, carrots, winter squash, cantaloupes and pumpkins. Vitamin A helps keep skin healthy, promotes growth and helps keep the linings of your mouth, nose, throat and digestive tract healthy.

Vitamin B is really a complex of nutrients such as riboflavin (found in leafy green vegetables), thiamine (found in dried peas and beans), and niacin (found in fresh peas and beans). Without these three nutrients all kinds of horrible things can happen — lack of niacin will damage your digestive tract and nervous system; lack of thiamine will prevent body cells from obtaining energy from food and cause poor appetite; while lack of riboflavin can damage eyes and skin.

Vitamin C helps hold body cells together and strengthens walls of blood vessels.It helps to heal wounds and aids strong bones and teeth.

Vitamin D is generated mostly by sunlight, which is what you get plenty of while working in your vegetable garden. Its vital role is to help the body use calcium and phosphorous to build strong bones and teeth, especially in growing children.

OTHER ESSENTIAL nutrients such as iron, calcium and protein are also found in fresh vegetables and help the body to run properly

Store-bought vegetables are not as good as home grown vegetables for supplying essential vitamins and nutrients. The fact is that the fresher the vegetable, the higher the nutrient content, since vegetables start to lose their vitamins the moment they are picked.

So, the next time you find yourself in the garden pulling weeds, loosening the soil and waging war on insect pests, take comfort in the fact that you are benefiting in three important ways: (1) — saving money; (2) — growing better flavor; (3) — feeding your family more vitamins.

A Glorious Choice

Quick-growing flowering vines are often needed for growing up trellis or fences. Morning glories are probably the most popular choice for this purpose.

Do Plants Have Feelings? Question Intrigues Botanist

MARIN LIVING

By FREDERIC HUNTER

When Lynn and Joel Rapp talk with parental pride about Jackie, Ricky and Alvin, they aren't referring to their children. They're talking about indoor plants.

Ricky is a Netia Palm who gets a shower every Saturday night. Alvin is a "stunning" (their word) Chinese evergreen, and Jackie is a Dieffenbachia going on 13.

"We talk to our plants," say the Rapps, "and we're sure they can hear us."

Sound nutty?

Maybe so. The Rapps, who run an indoor plant store and proselytize the "plant way of life" on television, not surprisingly are dedicated to making plant care fun. Part of their "missionary work" includes encouraging indoor gardeners to get involved with their plants — showering them with affection, friendly chatter, and occasional concerts. It stands to reason, after all, that plants receive better care from people interested in their welfare.

BUT THEN TAKE the case of Bob Brower.

One day leaving his house for work he glanced at a chronically bedraggled plant and told it, "Your job is to look alive." A few days later the plant had perked up and stayed that way.

Nowadays any number of stories like this one are going the rounds. Greeted with amused skepticism a few years ago, they are being heard more tolerantly.

In fact, a small but growing number of people suspect that if plants aren't quite people, at least they possess something akin to senses and respond to the feelings and emotions of creatures around them. A few of these people are serious researchers although most biologists reject the notion out of hand. Because of that the "nutty" label is being less frequently assigned to gardening enthusiasts who whisper sweet nothings to their plants.

DESPITE THE skepticism of noted biologists, believers who once suffered they-laughed-when-I-told-them rejection now insist that well-known scientists of the past believed in plant sensibility all along.

The cited eminences of yesteryear include Charles Darwin (who once suggested that the radicle in plants might act like a brain), Sir Jagadis Chunder Bose (who claimed to discover death spasms in plants), and plant experimenter Luther Burbank.

The Burbank case arouses considerable curiosity.

No solid documentation exists that he actually talked to plants, but the suggestion persists that he did. An article in last October's issue of Natural History, published by New York City's American Museum of Natural Hisotory, seriously examines the possibility and does not rule it out.

WHILE ACKNOWLEDGING that Burbank often pooh-poohed the idea that he talked to plants, the article also shows that he told three reputable visitors about communicating with them. One of the visitors was Helen Keller.

Another visitor, the well-known 1920s yogi Paramahansa Ygananda, wrote a detailed report of a conversation with Burbank. According to Yogananda, Burbank told him: "While I was conducting experiments to make spineless cacti, I often talked with the plants to create a vibration of love."

Whether or not he established rapport with plants in this fashion, Burbank unquestionably possessed a green thumb. In a 50-year working life he created more than 800 new strains, varieties, and species of plants, most of them useful.

"NOW, NEARLY half a century after his death," the Natural History article concludes, "no one has offered a convincing explanation for many of the things he was able to do."

The current interest in plant sensibility is neither merely historical nor solely a reaction to environmentalism. The man behind much of the renewed fascination in plant-sensibility phenomena is, like Burbank, not a trained scientist.

A former CIA polygraph (lie detector) expert, Cleve Backster had an idle thought early one morning in the interrogation room of the polygraph training school he now runs in New York City. He had just watered a potted dracena plant. He wondered if his polygraph equipment could measure the rate at which water rose in the plant from the root area into the leaf. He attached a pair of electrodes to a leaf and waited to see what happened.

THE RESULTS were startling.

Contrary to his expectation, the polygraph did not pick up lowered electrical resistance when moisture entered the leaf. Instead, it recorded a contour strikingly similar to a reaction pattern typical of a human being experiencing emotional stimulation.

Questions immediately jumped to Backster's mind: Was the plant relieved to have water? Did it feel relief?

Wondering how the plant would react to a threat, Backster decided to burn a leaf. Another startling result.

THE POLYGRAPH recorded a pattern similar to that of a human under threat. But, according to the researcher, it recorded the pattern at the split second the image of fire entered his mind. In a sense, in other words, the dracena "read" his thoughts.

That was Feb. 2, 1966. In the eight years since, Backster has carried out thousands of observations designed to test perception capabilities in plants, fresh eggs, fresh fruits and vegetables, tissue samples, and mold cultures. These observations led Backster to believe that plants possess the capacity to read and react to the emotions of other creatures.

As he continued to work with plants, Backster made other startling observations. One came to light while he was showing his plants to Pearl Weinberger, a visiting Canadian physiologist. To his great surprise he found that, in the presence of this scientist, his laboratory galvanometer picked up no reaction from the plants at all.

HE ASKED THE visitor if her research ever involved harming plants. Yes, it turned out, the physiologist "terminated" all plants she worked with and roasted them in an oven to determine their dry weight.

This encounter caused Backster to believe that under something like extreme emotional stress plants can react defensively by fainting.

In conversation the researcher is quick to distinguish between what may be inferred from his observations and what can be experimentally tested.

IN THE ONE experiment Backster has published (in the winter 1968 edition of the Journal of Parapsychology), plants were polygraphically monitored while an automated device in another room of his laboratory randomly selected cups containing brine shrimp. The experiment showed that the plants reacted instantaneously when the living brine shrimp were dumped in boiling water.

Several years ago when Christian Science Monitor correspondent Peter Tonge visited Backster's laboratory, he found that a plant being polygraph-tested showed no change of reaction when a purring Siamese cat was placed on the table next to it.

"But," he wrote in a filed report, "the moment Backster ruffled the cat's fur, its irritation was matched by a corresponding jump in the activity of the polygraph, suggesting anxiety in the plant."

"LATER," THE Tonge report continued, "when the cat stared curiously into a small cage, the mother rat behind the bars was distinctly uneasy. So was the plant."

Discussing the results of his observations, Backster is willing to suggest the conclusions toward which they appear to be pointing. They include:

Cellular consciousness: "I certainly have observed a great deal that would give me the impression that each cell has an individual consciousness. I can't state that as a result," he carefully points out, "but as the direction things seem to be going in." In addition, the observations suggest to him that individual cells somehow communicate with each other.

Intercommunication between plants and other creatures: "Everything I've touched in the last going-on eight years certainly points in that direction," he states. "Here we've got hundreds of observations."

"THE ONLY problem in this kind of research," he explains, "is that Mother Nature doesn't want to jump through the hoop 10 times in a row merely because someone wants her to. It's difficult to structure repeatable experiments."

"There are some phenomena that occur to make this kind of thing very difficult," he points out. "For instance, once you are sure something will happen, it very well may not. I suspect that's because you're communicating to the biological material as long as you keep your consciousness involved in the experiment.

"If something that's going to harm its well-being is about to occur," Backster says, "a plant goes into a protective stance — very much like a state of shock or fainting in a person — where there's just no reaction whatever. For this reason, we've had to get the experimenters' consciousness out of the experiment, to completely automate the thing."

LONG-DISTANCE intercommunication: Backster told correspondent Tonge of an occasion when a plant in his office reacted with a "feeling" of relief as reflected in polygraph readings when the researcher, then attending a wedding reception 15 miles away, decided to return to his laboratory.

"I don't think distance is a problem," declares Backster. "I've done some extremely careful observations over 15 to 20 miles and some sloppy ones over 700 miles."

Backster, who lacks a university degree, has found it difficult to arouse the interest of America's scientific community. Most scientists, in what they themselves term "the Establishment," remain thoroughly skeptical about the Backster observations.

"IT'S A WASTE of time," says Harvard biologist Dr. Otto Solbrig. "This work is not going to advance science very much. We know enough already about plants so that when someone comes up with something like this, we say it's quackery."

But Backster has some low-key supporters in the scientific community. "I don't regard Backster's work as quackery," says Dr. Harold Puthoff, a Stanford Research Institute physicist.

"The way he conducts his experiments is pretty good. It's not the sloppy thing that most people believe who think the work's no good.

"I SAW ENOUGH to convice me that this thing would be worth investigating, but nothing to convince me it's true. I was going to do some work in this area, but I got off to working with human subjects."

Backster's few scientific supporters do, however, express uncertainty about whether his observations are conducted with sufficient scientific rigor.

"There need to be good, well-controlled experiments with a lot of statistical analysis," says Dr. Puthoff. Such experiments would determine "whether the signal-to-noise ratios are good enough to absolutely pin down these phenomena."

Do Plants Have Feelings? Question Intrigues Botanist

By FREDERIC HUNTER

MARIN LIVING

When Lynn and Joel Rapp talk with parental pride about Jackie, Ricky and Alvin, they aren't referring to their children. They're talking about indoor plants.

Ricky is a Netia Palm who gets a shower every Saturday night. Alvin is a "stunning" (their word) Chinese evergreen, and Jackie is a Dieffenbachia going on 13.

"We talk to our plants," say the Rapps, "and we're sure they can hear us."

Sound nutty?

Maybe so. The Rapps, who run an indoor plant store and proselytize the "plant way of life" on television, not surprisingly are dedicated to making plant care fun. Part of their "missionary work" includes encouraging indoor gardeners to get involved with their plants — showering them with affection, friendly chatter, and occasional concerts. It stands to reason, after all, that plants receive better care from people interested in their welfare.

BUT THEN TAKE the case of Bob Brower.

One day leaving his house for work he glanced at a chronically bedraggled plant and told it, "Your job is to look alive." A few days later the plant had perked up and stayed that way.

Nowadays any number of stories like this one are going the rounds. Greeted with amused skepticism a few years ago, they are being heard more tolerantly.

In fact, a small but growing number of people suspect that if plants aren't quite people, at least they possess something akin to senses and respond to the feelings and emotions of creatures around them. A few of these people are serious researchers although most biologists reject the notion out of hand. Because of that the "nutty" label is being less frequently assigned to gardening enthusiasts who whisper sweet nothings to their plants.

DESPITE THE skepticism of noted biologists, believers who once suffered they-laughed-when-I-told-them rejection now insist that well-known scientists of the past believed in plant sensibility all along.

The cited eminences of yesteryear include Charles Darwin (who once suggested that the radicle in plants might act like a brain), Sir Jagadis Chunder Bose (who claimed to discover death spasms in plants), and plant experimenter Luther Burbank.

The Burbank case arouses considerable curiosity.

No solid documentation exists that he actually talked to plants, but the suggestion persists that he did. An article in last October's issue of Natural History, published by New York City's American Museum of Natural Hisotory, seriously examines the possibility and does not rule it out.

WHILE ACKNOWLEDGING that Burbank often pooh-poohed the idea that he talked to plants, the article also shows that he told three reputable visitors about communicating with them. One of the visitors was Helen Keller.

Another visitor, the well-known 1920s yogi Paramahansa Ygananda, wrote a detailed report of a conversation with Burbank. According to Yogananda, Burbank told him: "While I was conducting experiments to make spineless cacti, I often talked with the plants to create a vibration of love."

Whether or not he established rapport with plants in this fashion, Burbank unquestionably possessed a green thumb. In a 50-year working life he created more than 800 new strains, varieties, and species of plants, most of them useful.

"NOW, NEARLY half a century after his death," the Natural History article concludes, "no one has offered a convincing explanation for many of the things he was able to do."

The current interest in plant sensibility is neither merely historical nor solely a reaction to environmentalism. The man behind much of the renewed fascination in plant-sensibility phenomena is, like Burbank, not a trained scientist.

A former CIA polygraph (lie detector) expert, Cleve Backster had an idle thought early one morning in the interrogation room of the polygraph training school he now runs in New York City. He had just watered a potted dracena plant. He wondered if his polygraph equipment could measure the rate at which water rose in the plant from the root area into the leaf. He attached a pair of electrodes to a leaf and waited to see what happened.

THE RESULTS were startling.

Contrary to his expectation, the polygraph did not pick up lowered electrical resistance when moisture entered the leaf. Instead, it recorded a contour strikingly similar to a reaction pattern typical of a human being experiencing emotional stimulation.

Questions immediately jumped to Backster's mind: Was the plant relieved to have water? Did it feel relief?

THE POLYGRAPH recorded a pattern similar to that of a human under threat. But, according to the researcher, it recorded the pattern at the split second the image of fire entered his mind. In a sense, in other words, the dracena "read" his thoughts.

That was Feb. 2, 1966. In the eight years since, Backster has carried out thousands of observations designed to test perception capabilities in plants, fresh eggs, fresh fruits and vegetables, tissue samples, and mold cultures. These observations led Backster to believe that plants possess the capacity to read and react to the emotions of other creatures.

As he continued to work with plants, Backster made other startling observations. One came to light while he was showing his plants to Pearl Weinberger, a visiting Canadian physiologist. To his great surprise he found that, in the presence of this scientist, his laboratory galvanometer picked up no reaction from the plants at all.

HE ASKED THE visitor if her research ever involved harming plants. Yes, it turned out, the physiologist "terminated" all plants she worked with and roasted them in an oven to determine their dry weight.

This encounter caused Backster to believe that under something like extreme emotional stress plants can react defensively by fainting.

In conversation the researcher is quick to distinguish between what may be inferred from his observations and what can be experimentally tested.

IN THE ONE experiment Backster has published (in the winter 1968 edition of the Journal of Parapsychology), plants were polygraphically monitored while an automated device in another room of his laboratory randomly selected cups containing brine shrimp. The experiment showed that the plants reacted instantaneously when the living brine shrimp were dumped in boiling water.

Several years ago when Christian Science Monitor correspondent Peter Tonge visited Backster's laboratory, he found that a plant being polygraph-tested showed no change of reaction when a purring Siamese cat was placed on the table next to it.

"But," he wrote in a filed report, "the moment Backster ruffled the cat's fur, its irritation was matched by a corresponding jump in the activity of the polygraph, suggesting anxiety in the plant."

"LATER," THE Tonge report continued, "when the cat stared curiously into a small cage, the mother rat behind the bars was distinctly uneasy. So was the plant."

Discussing the results of his observations, Backster is willing to suggest the conclusions toward which they appear to be pointing. They include:

Cellular consciousness: "I certainly have observed a great deal that would give me the impression that each cell has an individual consciousness. I can't state that as a result," he carefully points out, "but as the direction things seem to be going in." In addition, the observations suggest to him that individual cells somehow communicate with each other.

Intercommunication between plants and other creatures: "Everything I've touched in the last going-on eight years certainly points in that direction," he states. "Here we've got hundreds of observations."

"THE ONLY problem in this kind of research," he explains, "is that Mother Nature doesn't want to jump through the hoop 10 times in a row merely because someone wants her to. It's difficult to structure repeatable experiments."

"There are some phenomena that occur to make this kind of thing very difficult," he points out. "For instance, once you are sure something will happen, it very well may not. I suspect that's because you're communicating to the biological material as long as you keep your consciousness involved in the experiment.

"If something that's going to harm its well-being is about to occur," Backster says, "a plant goes into a protective stance — very much like a state of shock or fainting in a person — where there's just no reaction whatever. For this reason, we've had to get the experimenters' consciousness out of the experiment, to completely automate the thing."

LONG-DISTANCE intercommunication: Backster told correspondent Tonge of an occasion when a plant in his office reacted with a "feeling" of relief as reflected in polygraph readings when the researcher, then attending a wedding reception 15 miles away, decided to return to his laboratory.

"I don't think distance is a problem," declares Backster. "I've done some extremely careful observations over 15 to 20 miles and some sloppy ones over 700 miles."

Backster, who lacks a university degree, has found it difficult to arouse the interest of America's scientific community. Most scientists, in what they themselves term "the Establishment," remain thoroughly skeptical about the Backster observations.

"IT'S A WASTE of time," says Harvard biologist Dr. Otto Solbrig. "This work is not going to advance science very much. We know enough already about plants so that when someone comes up with something like this, we say it's quackery."

But Backster has some low-key supporters in the scientific community. "I don't regard Backster's work as quackery," says Dr. Harold Puthoff, a Stanford Research Institute physicist.

"The way he conducts his experiments is pretty good. It's not the sloppy thing that most people believe who think the work's no good.

"I SAW ENOUGH to convice me that this thing would be worth investigating, but nothing to convince me it's true. I was going to do some work in this area, but I got off to working with human subjects."

Backster's few scientific supporters do, however, express uncertainty about whether his observations are conducted with sufficient scientific rigor.

"There need to be good, well-controlled experiments with a lot of statistical analysis," says Dr. Puthoff. Such experiments would determine "whether the signal-to-noise ratios are good enough to absolutely pin down these phenomena."

Rising Food Costs Trigger Explosion Of Interest In Vegetable Gardening

By MILLICENT TAYLOR

Rising food costs combined with more time at home to save gasoline is turning thousands of Americans this coming season to vegetable gardening.

Plans for community plots are on the biggest upsurge since World War II and countless families expect to raise vegetables in their backyards for the first time in their lives.

To help these beginning gardeners, the National Garden Bureau, after consulting with the seed industry leaders, has designed a model plot (above). It contains vegetables that are not only highly productive but very easy to grow.

SIZE OF THE plot is 10 feet wide by 16 feet deep — fitting into the average backyard or share of a community allotment. Ten vegetables are planned at a seed cost of about $3.65.

The plot can of course be adjusted as to size and personal choice of vegetables and to local climatic conditions. It is intended primarily as a guide. Radishes, turnips, parsley, Swiss-chard, or onions, if preferred, could be added or substituted without much extra cost or space.

ALL THE VEGETABLES recommended are easy to grow, even for a child. Zucchini squash, for example, can be sowed directly into the garden. It forms a compact bush, and the more one picks the young tender fruits the more take their places.

Bush beans are quick to mature and will yield several crops if planted at two-month intervals.

The best lettuce for a beginner is the looseleaf kind. Blackseeded Simpson is fast and easy, ready in 45 days. It can be raised in the cool days of spring and again in early fall.

An early summer variety of cabbage can be sowed directly in the garden or started indoors to get ahead. A planting of marigolds is recommended next to it to repel insects. Red beets, spinach, and cucumbers are on the list.

SPINACH IS SO hardy it can be planted early and again in late summer or fall. Three plantings of beets are possible by spacing the sowing dates a month apart. They will yield greens when thinned, and the mature fruits can be stored for winter in a box of sand in a cool place.

Carrots will store like beets. A 35-cent packet will yield an abundance. If you wish to substitute something else in your plot for cukes, train the cukes on a fence or trellis.

Tomatoes and peppers need starting after danger of frost. You can buy plants, of course, but by raising your own from seed you can save up to $1 per plant. Hybrid tomatoes are worth the extra cost.

IF YOU HAVE no room in your backyard for such a garden or if you want to make friends of other gardeners while combatting higher food prices, try organizing as thousands of others have done to start a community garden. Vacant lots, sections of park land, rubble-collecting waste places in cities, and land owned by factories and other firms have all been claimed and put to such constructive use.

The Rodale Press of Emmaus, Pa., publisher of books, pamphlets, and a monthly magazine on organic gardening, is an example of a firm promoting a successful community garden area. A strip of farmland plowed and harrowed by the firm yielded 25 employee gardens last season.

The most famous community garden system in the world is usually conceded to be in Britain, where thousands of persons rent garden plots from local authorities, corporations, and nationalized industries.

BRITAIN (England, Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland) has a total of 57,303 acres of land under cultivation as community gardens, providing some 560,000 individual plots. Average rental varies from the equivalent of a low of $2 per plot per year where no facilities are provided, to a high of $20 where everything from greenhouse, running water, all-weather roads, fencing, and a community center with toilets is included.

The British system began originally to relieve local poverty, then expanded, particularly among employeees of the coal mines, railways, and mills. The coal mines and railways are the largest providers of community garden areas.

It's Last Call For Planting Bareroot Style

Don't look now, but the bareroot planting season is drawing to a close. Another week or two and most nurserymen will have put bareroot plants in containers.

You can save yourself a dollar or two by planting deciduous trees and shrubs before the cost of potting them up becomes a factor.

The California Association of Nurserymen reports their stocks are topped by bareroot roses. But you are lucky, indeed, if you can still find one of the three new All-American winners — Perfume Delight, Bon Bon or Bahia.

Don't fret if you can't find them. Look for other outstanding new roses such as a 1973 All-America selection. They're great!

Old roses never change and All-America winners of other years are just as good now as when they took their honors. You can't beat the likes of Chrysler, Charlotte Armstrong, Sutter's Gold, Tiffany, Queen Elizabeth and all the others that have proven themselves in hundreds of gardens.

You'll be looking, too, for bareroot trees —peaches, apples, pears, cherries, plums and apricots — plus shade trees and bareroot ornamental shrubs.

POWER TOOLS CAN be a great boon in yard work and in they are not used with common sense. This hedge trimmer is perfectly safe, used correctly. Used incorrectly, it is very, very unsafe.

Some Rules For Safe Use And Care Of Electric Appliances Outdoors

MARIN LIVING

During the gardening season many Americans will be using electric appliances such as lawn mowers, edger-trimmers, cultivators, grass shears and hedge trimmers to make their outdoor work both easier, and more enjoyable.

However, along with the increased use of these convenience items goes an increased sense of responsibility for adherence to rules of safety. Underwriters Laboratories Inc., an independent, not-for-profit organization that tests products for public safety, recommends that you observe the following guidelines when working with outdoor appliances:

Keep the work area clean.

Never use appliances in damp or wet locations.

Keep all visitors, especially children, a safe distance away from the work area.

Store appliances in high, dry places when not in use, and keep them out of the reach of children.

Never force an appliance to work faster than the rate at which it was designed.

Never use an appliance for a job for which it was not intended.

Never wear loose clothing or jewelry which could get caught in the moving parts. Use rubber gloves and proper footwear when working outdoors.

Never carry an appliance by the cord and never yank it when removing from a receptacle. Keep the cord away from heat, oil, and sharp edges.

Never use an appliance in the rain.

Keep proper footing and balance at all times, don't over-reach.

Keep appliances sharp and clean for best and safest performance. Disconnect an appliance before servicing, changing accessories, or lubricating, and follow the directions.

Such equipment has been evaluated with respect to hazards affecting life and property, by undergoing rigid tests which duplicate in-service uses and abuses that products may receive.

Underwriters Laboratories further suggests observing the following rules of safety when working with edger-trimmers or lawn mowers.

Keep guards in place, and in working order.

Keep blades sharp.

Keep hands away from the cutting area.

Hitting a rock or other such foreign object with a lawn mower can be very dangerous. In the event that this should happen, take the following steps.

1. Stop the mower.
2. Inspect for damage.
3. Repair the damage before restarting and operating the mower.

Sign Of Trouble

One of the most common tomato diseases is called blossom end-rot, and is recognized when the end of tomato fruits turn black. Mulching tomato plants to conserve moisture in the soil, and watering during dry spells will normally prevent this disease.

Apartment Dwellers Needn't Miss Out On Fun Of Gardening

By DAVID JORDAN

No matter what your apartment scene, there's something green that will grow there. It's a matter of picking the right plant and giving it proper care.

Your new charge will like either a clay or plastic pot, but be sure to cover the drainage holes with a piece of broken pot before setting the plant. Use pre-moistened potting soil and firm it lightly about the roots.

Most indoor plants prefer bright light but not direct sun. If foliage turns light green to yellowish, give the plant less light; if flowering plants bloom poorly and have a deep green foliage, move them gradually into stronger light. To keep growth even, give pots a quarter turn each time you water them.

FEED YOUR PLANTS with liquid or soluble plant food once each month during the bright days of spring, summer, and fall. Give them little, if any, food during the dark days of winter. To avoid possible root damage, feed plants when the soil is still moist from the last watering.

The individual requirements of the plant and the size pot it is growing in dictate watering patterns, but the general rule is to let the soil dry out a little between waterings. When you do water, soak the soil ball to its center. If you use a watering can, let the water run slowly until a little shows up in the pot saucer. If you submerge pots rim-deep in a tub of water, leave them there until moisture shows on the soil surface.

Pests can be controlled by spraying foliage lightly each week with a houseplant insecticide. Isolate any plant showing a build-up of insects and spray twice a week until free of pests.

SOME PLANTS GROW particularly well in apartments. Dieffenbachia grows best in moderate light and requires plenty of water and regular feeding. If lower leaves begin to die one by one, the plant is probably root-bound and should be shifted to a larger pot. Browning of leaf margins and tips result from allowing the soil to become too dry. Trim off the brown spots and watch watering very closely.

Keep room temperature at 65 degrees or above, and syringe foliage with water occasionally. Insects and pests on the plant are difficult to control because of its sensitivity to all chemicals, but a few can be used half-strength if the soil is moist before you spray the plant. Drying of tips can be caused by allowing the soil to become too dry or by lack of humidity in the air. Tip browning is often the result of fungus action. Cut away and burn the infected foliage and spray with a fungicide.

Avoid getting moisture on the foliage.

IVY DOES BEST in bright light and humid, cool air. Brown spots on the leaves can be caused by bacteria or fungi. Remove and burn the leaves at the first sign of trouble, keep foliage dry, and increase air movement around the plant.

Palms enjoy good light but tolerate reduced light some distance from windows. Feed each month from April through August, and wash fronds with soapy water occasionally. Dead spots or margins on leaves are often the result of moving a plant too quickly from low-light intensity into full light.

Philodendrons withstand adverse growing conditions better than many other plants. They should be kept slightly on the moist side and fed once a month. They'll tolerate heavy shade.

THE ROSARIANS TO ORGANIZE

Rosarians are invited to a meeting Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Bank of Marin, 1133 Magnolia Avenue, Larkspur, at which it is planned to organize a new Marin Chapter of the American Rose Society.

Speaking will be Joseph J. Klima, president emeritus of the American Rose Society, who will discuss general rose culture.

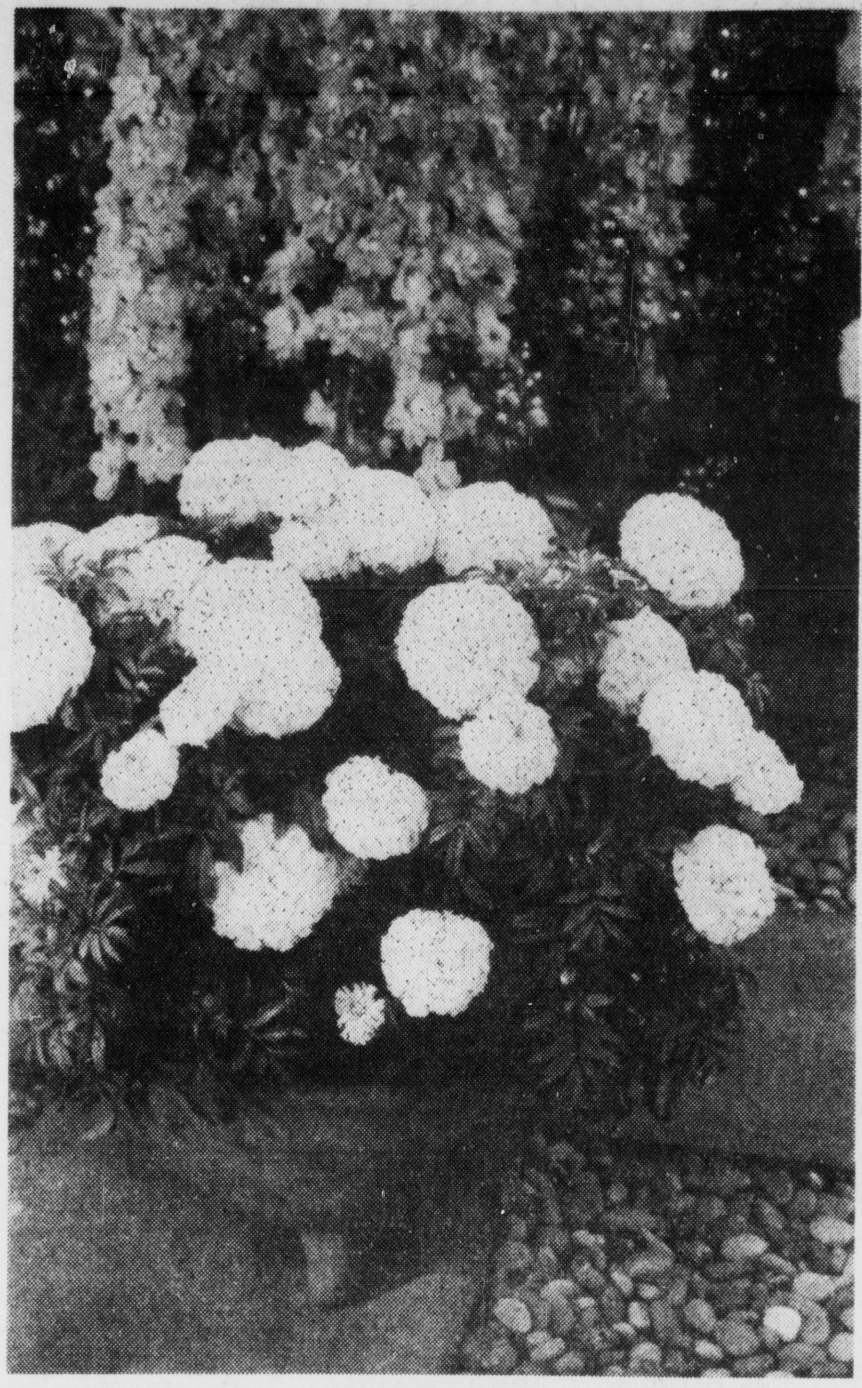
THE FLOWER OF THE YEAR



NO ONE WAS greatly surprised when seedsmen and nurserymen, meeting in Atlanta, Ga., voted the marigold "Flower of the Year." Going for the marigold were such attributes as its beautiful appearance, as shown above in a container planting on a patio, its spicy fragrance, its easy cultivation, its extended blooming season and its spectacular appearance as a cut flower. If you need another argument on behalf of the marigold, its spicy odor repells rabbits and certain insect pests. Thus vegetable growers sometimes use it for a border around their plots. And there's an odorless kind called Hawaii, a deep orange, that is fed to chickens to make their skin look healthy in the supermarket freezer.

Summer-Blooming Bulbs You Might Overlook

We tend to overlook many summer bulbs — partly because we aren't familiar with them, and partly because they have to be planted when spring bulbs are blooming.

Gladiolus and dahlias we remember through habit, because they are summer friends of long standing. Begonias we plant for the same reason.

But what of lesser known bulbs such as cannas, tigridias and watsonias?

Cannas are most widely grown of this trio. You can look a long way before you find tigridias and even further before a watsonia meets your eye.

CANNAS ARE tropical in appearance and they are also tropical in tastes — needing plenty of water in addition to rich soil and sun to produce the medium to tall spikes of color that make such a vivid addition to border backgrounds. The oranges and reds are showiest; the pinks most appealing.

Tigridias, or Mexican Shell Flowers, are a daily delight. The shallow, triangular cups of color last but a single day, opening with the morning sun, dying with the onset of dusk. But single plants produce an astonishing succession of the lovely, spotted blooms, day after day.

Watsonias are gladiolus-like bulbs with an indifference to attention that makes them ideal for out of the way garden spots. Spikes of white, pink or red flowers push up from sword-like foliage in late spring or early summer.

AGAPANTHUS, OR Lily of the Nile, produces one of our finest blues in California gardens. The showy umbels of color stand high on straight stems above green clumps of foliage.

While it is a bulb, you buy it in divisions and treat it as a perennial, dividing only after several years when it becomes more crowded. Agapanthus is used by landscape designers, but home gardeners have seldom planted it on their own. It's worth planting, though.

For a bargain in blooms, it is still not too late to plant anemones and ranunculus.

Whats, Wheres Of Transplanting

Transplanting trees and shrubs involves more than just digging up and planting again, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

In a new 12-page publication, USDA horticulturists discuss the "what, when, and where's" of transplanting, and a plant hardiness map illustrates the various temperatures zones throughout the United States.

Copies of Home and Garden Bulletin 192, "Transplanting Ornamental Trees and Shrubs," are available for 10 cents each from the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C., 20402.

A CHECKLIST FOR MARIN GARDENERS

✓Here are a few items you will want to plant in your spring vegetable garden: seeds of beets, carrots, lettuce, endive, onions, turnips and radishes; plants of cabbage, cauliflower, Swiss chard and Brussel sprouts; and roots of rhubarb, artichokes and asparagus.

✓Now's the time to consider planting dahlias, gladiolus, tuberous begonias, and a host of other summer-blooming bulbs. See your nursery for a wide selection from which you can choose.

✓Established roses may be fed this month. New roses should be permitted to become established before you feed them.

✓Check your nursery on crabgrass control. In our area, you can kill the seeds before they germinate. Post-emergent controls are also available.

✓As soon as the frost-peril period has passed, check your plantings for winter damage and prune any parts that have suffered wind or cold injury.

Some Plants Thrive In Indoor Light

The fact that you can replace natural light completely for some plants leads to many uses of plants as accessories that are not possible with natural daylight.

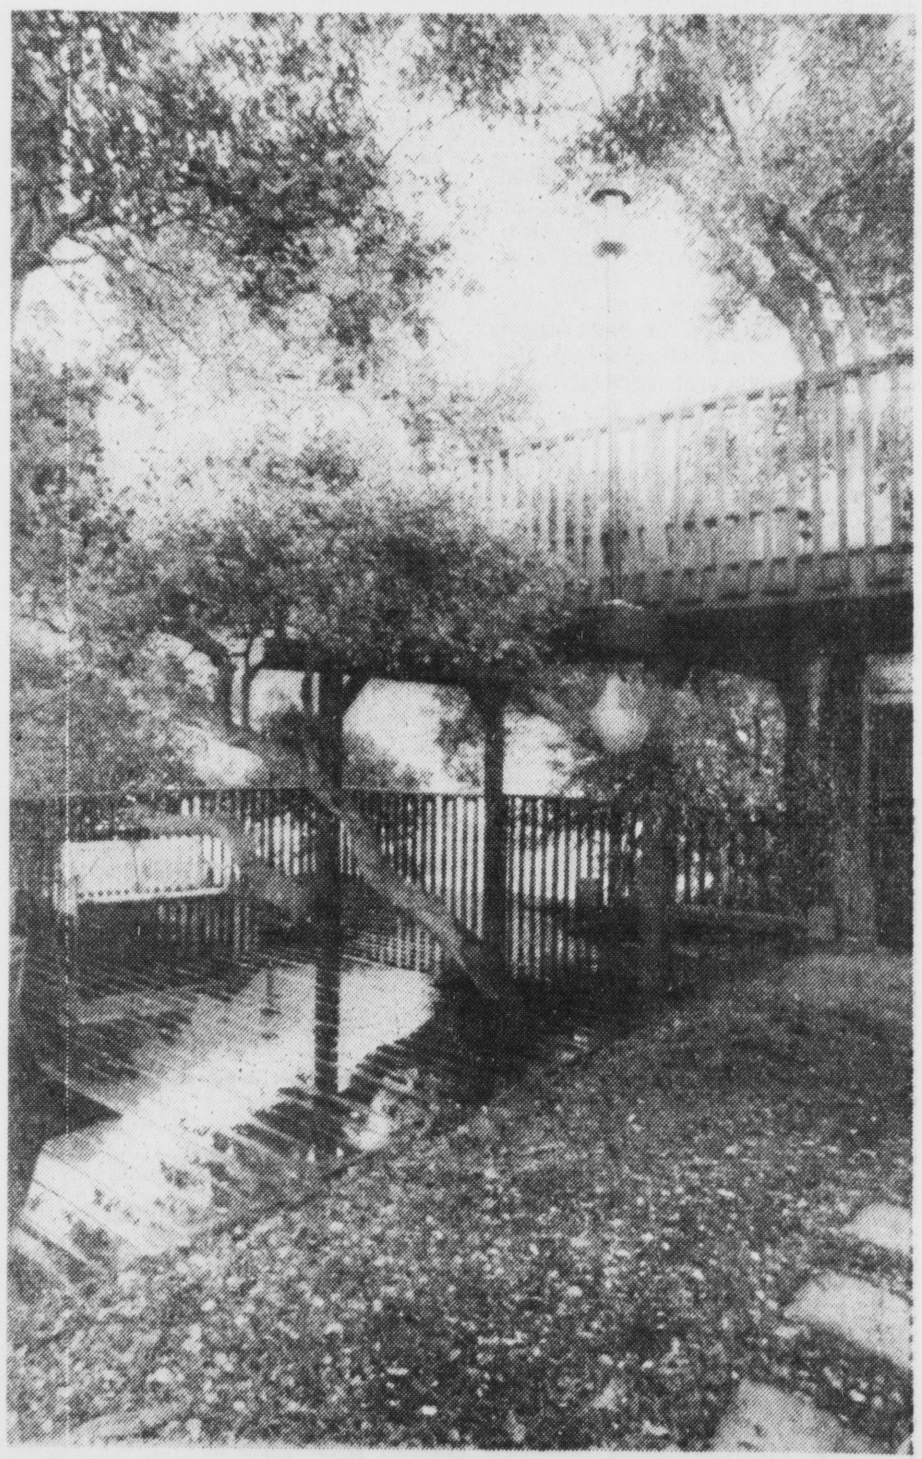
According to a Pennsylvania University correspondence course on Home Floriculture, electric light can be used to grow African violets, gloxinias, begonias and many other plants through a complete life cycle. This form of lighting can also be used to start seeds, propagate cuttings and other indoor horticultural pursuits.

Not all electric lights are suitable however. The major source of light must be supplied by the fluorescent lamps. They operate at a low cost in comparison to the incandescent type.

You can learn more about the propagation of plants and the use of the fluorescent tube by enrolling in the Home Floriculture correspondence course written for the home gardener.

Write to Box 5,000, University Park, Pa. 16802. Request by title, and include your check in the amount of $5 payable to Penn State. You will receive a course by return mail.

THE PROFESSIONAL TOUCH



THIS TWO-LEVEL deck of redwood was designed and built by Allan Gardens, San Rafael landscaping contractors, for Dr. and Mrs. Edward Yurchak. It was built around eight existing, mature oaks which were carefully preserved, with two of the handsome trees now growing through each on the levels. The deck also boasts a built-in sandbox, a lawn area, and attractive, low-maintenance native plants that complete the landscaping. The work is representative of the benefits that accrue from seeking the professional expertise of Marin's many fine landscape architects and designers, landscape contractors and nurserymen in the creation and execution of landscape designs for your yard.

A HIT PARADE OF VEGETABLES FOR YOUR HOME GARDEN

If someone asked you to list the top 10 home garden vegetables grown from seed and you said tomatoes, beans, sweet corn, cucumbers, peas, lettuce, radish, squash, melons and beets, you would be correct.

That is the way they are rated among America's leading seed sellers.

Peppers would be in a high place if they counted all those purchased as plants from garden centers.

For the space they occupy, bush beans are quite productive. More green beans are sold than yellow wax, but both are popular. Pole beans are more productive than bush and some believe they have better flavor, but most gardeners want to avoid the added chore of providing poles or other supports.

Flavor is the major desire in sweet corn. Earliness is second. More yellow corn is sold than white now but at the turn of the century yellow was considered to be "horse corn" and only white was thought to be fit for humans. Then came along the Golden Bantam and the picture changed.

Cucumbers take up a lot of space but they don't need many plants to raise enough for your salads. They may be grown on trellises.

When it comes to peas, sweet flavor and earliness are major goals. In biggest demand are dwarf varieties that do not need support.

Because it is easier and faster to grow, leaf lettuce outsells head lettuce. Many gardeners make two plantings, one early in the spring and the other late in summer for fall harvest.

Radishes are about the easiest vegetables to grow.

Zucchini is the most popular squash in the home garden because it is easy to grow, quick to mature and very productive. Zucchini is a bush variety taking less space than vine types.

Melons require a lot of space — too much for those with small gardens, especially in the North where the season is short. But those with lots of room make up for them. Cantaloupes are the most popular, watermelons next.

THE VEGETABLE OF THE YEAR

ASKED TO NAME "the vegetable of the year," seedsmen and nurserymen, meeting in Atlanta, Ga., chose looseleaf lettuce for the honor. It barely edged out Swiss chard, and succeeded the hybrid tomato which had won the previous year. Looseleaf lettuce was cited for three reasons: it is easy to grow, the saving between home-grown and supermarket lettuce is substantial, and lettuce adds a decorative touch all its own to the vegetable garden plot. Some reliable varieties include Black Seeded Simpson, Oak Leaf and Ruby.

Azaleas, Widely Planted, Have Variety Of Values

Azaleas are among the most widely-planted shrubs in the world. Their profuse flowering habit, plus their value in a variety of landscape situations, accounts for their popularity. This is especially true in California, where it is possible to enjoy the floral beauty of Azaleas up to half the year.

Nurseries have early-blooming varieties available now, showing color, or heavy with buds. By frequently shopping for Azaleas into spring, it is possible to select plants in flower, which will assure a succession of garden color — for at least six months — in future years.

If this sounds more like wishful thinking, the California Association of Nurserymen explains there are some 200 Azalea varieties to be found in West Coast nurseries. There are types suitable to virtually every region of the Golden State.

THOUGH Azaleas are essentially shade lovers, they do best in half-shade or filtered sun. In coastal gardens Azaleas will tolerate more sunlight than in the hot, interior valleys where shadier locations are recommended.

The key to growing success with Azaleas is to provide good drainage for the plants. They appreciate a planting medium with acid content. Both considerations are taken care of by using such ingreidents as peat moss or leaf mold when you set out the Azaleas. Nurseries offer ready-to-use planter mixes specially formulated for Azaleas and other acid-loving plants.

MARIN LIVING

Azaleas are shallow rooted, hence deep irrigations aren't necessary. Thorough watering will keep the roots moist, which is important.

Orchid Film Is Available

Schools, garden clubs and other interested groups may borrow a 20-minute, sound and color 16 millimeter film on orchids from Chevron Chemical Co.

The film is available without charge, except return postage costs.

Entitled "Hawaiian Orchids," the film contains closeup photography of nature's most fragile blooms. Shown are some of the most exotic orchids including vandas, cymbidiums, phalaenopsis, dendrolium and cyps. Highlighted are views of laboratory pollination and the precise science of "meristemming."

The film also covers the step-by-step procedures of orchid transplanting.

A HIT PARADE OF VEGETABLES FOR YOUR HOME GARDEN

If someone asked you to list the top 10 home garden vegetables grown from seed and you said tomatoes, beans, sweet corn, cucumbers, peas, lettuce, radish, squash, melons and beets, you would be correct.

That is the way they are rated among America's leading seed sellers.

Peppers would be in a high place if they counted all those purchased as plants from garden centers.

For the space they occupy, bush beans are quite productive. More green beans are sold than yellow wax, but both are popular. Pole beans are more productive than bush and some believe they have better flavor, but most gardeners want to avoid the added chore of providing poles or other supports.

Flavor is the major desire in sweet corn. Earliness is second. More yellow corn is sold than white now but at the turn of the century yellow was considered to be "horse corn" and only white was thought to be fit for humans. Then came along the Golden Bantam and the picture changed.

Cucumbers take up a lot of space but they don't need many plants to raise enough for your salads. They may be grown on trellises.

When it comes to peas, sweet flavor and earliness are major goals. In biggest demand are dwarf varieties that do not need support.

Because it is easier and faster to grow, leaf lettuce outsells head lettuce. Many gardeners make two plantings, one early in the spring and the other late in summer for fall harvest.

Radishes are about the easiest vegetables to grow.

Zucchini is the most popular squash in the home garden because it is easy to grow, quick to mature and very productive. Zucchini is a bush variety taking less space than vine types.

Melons require a lot of space — too much for those with small gardens, especially in the North where the season is short. But those with lots of room make up for them. Cantaloupes are the most popular, watermelons next.

THE VEGETABLE OF THE YEAR

ASKED TO NAME "the vegetable of the year," seedsmen and nurserymen, meeting in Atlanta, Ga., chose looseleaf lettuce for the honor. It barely edged out Swiss chard, and succeeded the hybrid tomato which had won the previous year. Looseleaf lettuce was cited for three reasons: it is easy to grow, the saving between home-grown and supermarket lettuce is substantial, and lettuce adds a decorative touch all its own to the vegetable garden plot. Some reliable varieties include Black Seeded Simpson, Oak Leaf and Ruby.

Azaleas, Widely Planted, Have Variety Of Values

Azaleas are among the most widely-planted shrubs in the world. Their profuse flowering habit, plus their value in a variety of landscape situations, accounts for their popularity. This is especially true in California, where it is possible to enjoy the floral beauty of Azaleas up to half the year.

Nurseries have early-blooming varieties available now, showing color, or heavy with buds. By frequently shopping for Azaleas into spring, it is possible to select plants in flower, which will assure a succession of garden color — for at least six months — in future years.

If this sounds more like wishful thinking, the California Association of Nurserymen explains there are some 200 Azalea varieties to be found in West Coast nurseries. There are types suitable to virtually every region of the Golden State.

THOUGH Azaleas are essentially shade lovers, they do best in half-shade or filtered sun. In coastal gardens Azaleas will tolerate more sunlight than in the hot, interior valleys where shadier locations are recommended.

The key to growing success with Azaleas is to provide good drainage for the plants. They appreciate a planting medium with acid content. Both considerations are taken care of by using such ingreidents as peat moss or leaf mold when you set out the Azaleas. Nurseries offer ready-to-use planter mixes specially formulated for Azaleas and other acid-loving plants.

Azaleas are shallow rooted, hence deep irrigations aren't necessary. Thorough watering will keep the roots moist, which is important.

Orchid Film Is Available

Schools, garden clubs and other interested groups may borrow a 20-minute, sound and color 16 millimeter film on orchids from Chevron Chemical Co.

The film is available without charge, except return postage costs.

Entitled "Hawaiian Orchids," the film contains closeup photography of nature's most fragile blooms. Shown are some of the most exotic orchids including vandas, cymbidiums, phalaenopsis, dendrolium and cyps. Highlighted are views of laboratory pollination and the precise science of "meristemming."

The film also covers the step-by-step procedures of orchid transplanting.

MARIN POETS' CORNER

THAT SOURCE

From ancient age
As history turns a page
The thoughts of man
Innermost, outward projected,
Reveals his ungodlike faults
As turned leaves of time
Whose oldest rime
Sings little songs glorifying
His debasement. Surpassed
Only by animal kingdom's
Unrestricted lash.
Self-hypnotized his moral code,
In hysteria so fled, and,
Known as human sacrifice.

SAUSALITO LEON SPIRO

OR MAYBE A CLOWN?

Some hands outstretched,
Dollars a-waving!
Some paper clutched,
In palms a-sweating!
Some nails showing white!

The hand is the actor
In the drama,
And reveals the smile,
Or the frown —
Or the jutted jaw.

As the show goes on,
Revealing love or hate,
We're audience and actor,
At the toll-gate!

ON THE STEREO SCENE—

Rick Nelson's Back On Top With Stone Canyon Band

By BRUCE MEYER

Of all the stars of the late 1950s and early '60s who might have turned up again a decade later with a fine new band and a series of tasty rock 'n' roll albums, one of the least likely was Ozzie and Harriet's little boy.

Yet that is precisely what has happened to Rick (Ricky no more) Nelson, well over 30 now and the father of three, including twin boys.

In the good old days, before the Beatles transformed the world, Ricky Nelson released seven straight gold albums and had an amazing string of hit singles: he was adopted by a huge block of middle class kids who couldn't identify with the likes of Elvis — he sang well, and he was clean.

Today, Rick Nelson is a mellow sort of guy, not at all what one would expect from either the adenoidal punk on TV or one's own image of a spoiled rich kid carried to stardom on a bare minimum of talent and mommy and daddy's fame. He just isn't like that at all — which helps explain how he could attract the loyalty of the Stone Canyon Band.

RICK HAS BEEN recording with the four-member band — through several personnel changes — for three years now. Thier progress as a musical unit has been, shall we say, methodical: slow, but steady, anchored by Rick and Tom Brumley, an absolute wizard on pedal steel who played for Buck Owens for years.

Their best-known tune to date was 1973's "Garden Party," a bittersweet song about Rick's experiences at a rock 'n' roll revivial show at Madison Square Garden. It sold fairly well as a single but failed to stimulate as much widespread interest in the band as it should have; perhaps it was treated as a novelty.

Rick Nelson's latest album — his fifth with the Stone Canyon Band — is called "Windfall" (MCA-383) and it's the nicest yet — most of the tunes written by Rick or a relatively recent addition, lead guitarist Dennis Larden.

There are gentle country tunes and flat-out hard rock, well produced by Rick and arranged by Rick and the band. It's an album that adds up to a little more than the individual tunes that went into it; sophisticated and mellow, like the man himself.

CELESTIAL-ROCKERS Yes, now on a U.S. tour, are promoting themselves with a huge, specially constructed hot air balloon that will be flown over concerts in selected cities . . .

An interesting but highly unlikely rumor published recently in "Zoo World" the first great power trio of the 1960's Cream, is re-forming and already has some tracks ready for an album . . .

"Americans" remains one of the fastest-selling singles of all time, with three different versions on the charts, including a country cover by the late Tex Ritter . . .

Speaking of the charts, they are resembling the early '60s more and more — no clear direction, lots of soul "crossovers," with easy listening things like Streisand's "The Way We Were" mixed in with country "I Love" — Tom T. Hall, hard rock "Smokin' In The Boys Room" — Brownsville Station and near-novelty "The Joker" — Steve Miller.

'Tis Season For Oratorio

By WILBUR G. LANDREY

Christmas is long past but the season for Handel's "Messiah," which will do just as well for Easter, or any other time for that matter, is not.

The new version on records is from Karl Richter directing the London Philharmonic Orchestra, the John Alldis Choir, and four excellent soloists for Deutsche Grammophon (DG 2709 045-four records).

Helen Donath in the soprano role, Anna Reynolds as contralto, Stuart Burrows as tenor and Donald McIntyre as bass all sing with a high professionalism that helps make this a rich and rewarding "Messiah", richer still than it perhaps would have been in Handel's time but nothing like the swollen performances which over the years grew and grew.

As conductor, Richter has specialized in the study and performance of the work of Bach and Handel. He has given us a fine "Messiah", and Deutsche Grammophon has, as usual, packaged the set superbly.

The "Messiah" was composed in only 23 days.

Handel, a man of 56 burdened by work, health and other difficulties, conducted its first performance in Dublin on April 13, 1742, with a chorus of 30 men and boys. It was his masterpiece. With the St. John and St. Matthew Passions of Bach, it ranks as one of the three greatest works based on the story of the Redemption.

It is composed of three parts, the first concerned with Advent and Christmas, the second with the Passion and the third with the victorious future of Christianity.

Handel's oratories were, incidentally, written for the Lenten season, when in his time, theatrical performances were forbidden by law in England.

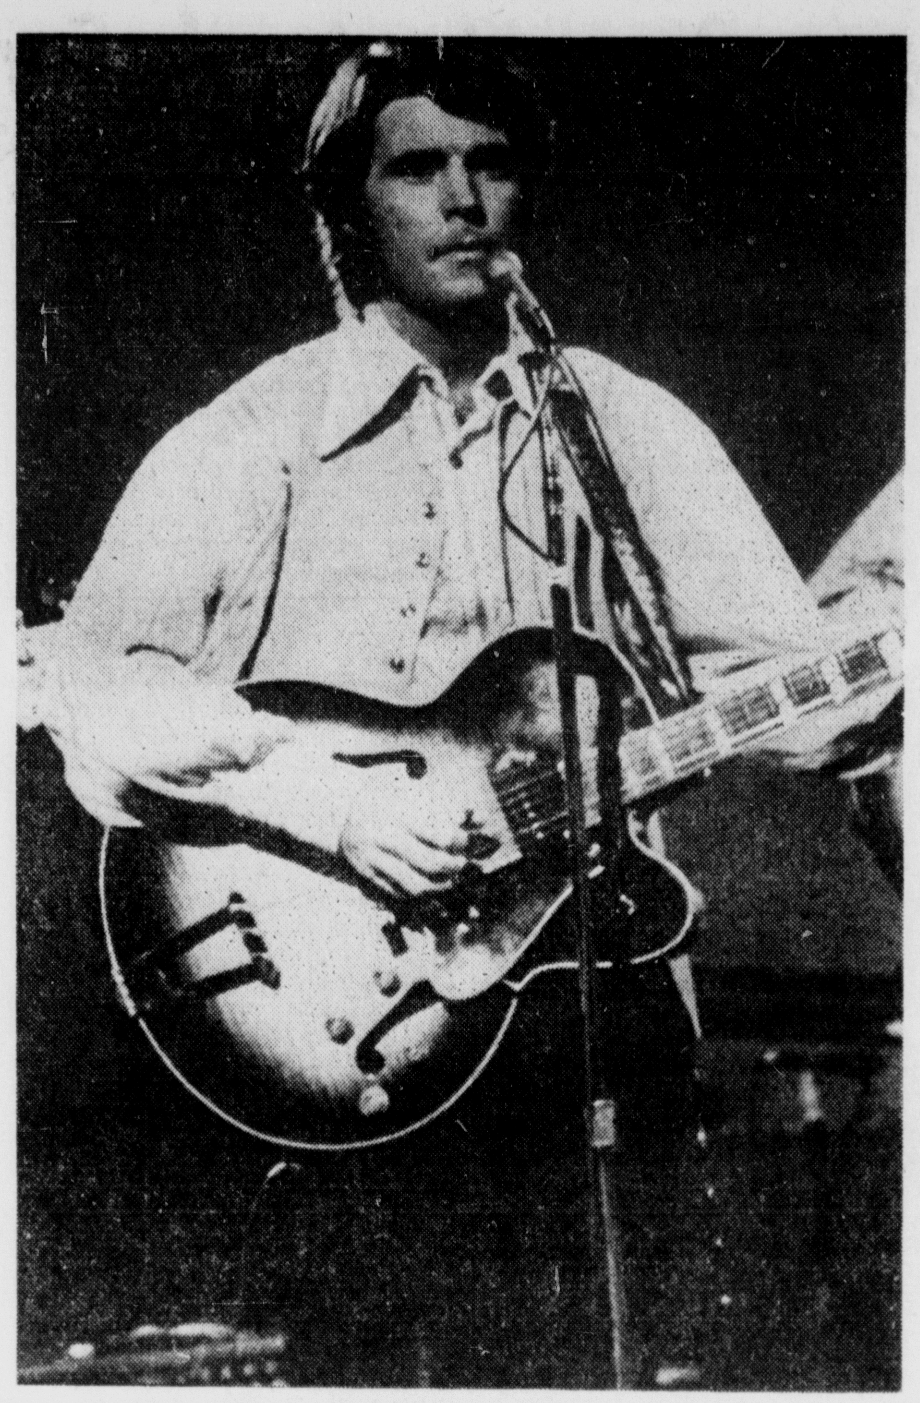
Rick Nelson's Back On Top With Stone Canyon Band

By BRUCE MEYER



RICK NELSON
A mellow sort of a guy

Of all the stars of the late 1950s and early '60s who might have turned up again a decade later with a fine new band and a series of tasty rock 'n' roll albums, one of the least likely was Ozzie and Harriet's little boy.

Yet that is precisely what has happened to Rick (Ricky no more) Nelson, well over 30 now and the father of three, including twin boys.

In the good old days, before the Beatles transformed the world, Ricky Nelson released seven straight gold albums and had an amazing string of hit singles: he was adopted by a huge block of middle class kids who couldn't identify with the likes of Elvis — he sang well, and he was clean.

Today, Rick Nelson is a mellow sort of guy, not at all what one would expect from either the adenoidal punk on TV or one's own image of a spoiled rich kid carried to stardom on a bare minimum of talent and mommy and daddy's fame. He just isn't like that at all — which helps explain how he could attract the loyalty of the Stone Canyon Band.

RICK HAS BEEN recording with the four-member band — through several personnel changes — for three years now. Thier progress as a musical unit has been, shall we say, methodical: slow, but steady, anchored by Rick and Tom Brumley, an absolute wizard on pedal steel who played for Buck Owens for years.

Their best-known tune to date was 1973's "Garden Party," a bittersweet song about Rick's experiences at a rock 'n' roll revivial show at Madison Square Garden. It sold fairly well as a single but failed to stimulate as much widespread interest in the band as it should have; perhaps it was treated as a novelty.

Rick Nelson's latest album — his fifth with the Stone Canyon Band — is called "Windfall" (MCA-383) and it's the nicest yet — most of the tunes written by Rick or a relatively recent addition, lead guitarist Dennis Larden.

There are gentle country tunes and flat-out hard rock, well produced by Rick and arranged by Rick and the band. It's an album that adds up to a little more than the individual tunes that went into it; sophisticated and mellow, like the man himself.

CELESTIAL-ROCKERS Yes, now on a U.S. tour, are promoting themselves with a huge, specially constructed hot air balloon that will be flown over concerts in selected cities . . .

An interesting but highly unlikely rumor published recently in "Zoo World" the first great power trio of the 1960's Cream, is re-forming and already has some tracks ready for an album . . .

"Americans" remains one of the fastest-selling singles of all time, with three different versions on the charts, including a country cover by the late Tex Ritter . . .

Speaking of the charts, they are resembling the early '60s more and more — no clear direction, lots of soul "crossovers," with easy listening things like Streisand's "The Way We Were" mixed in with country "I Love" — Tom T. Hall, hard rock "Smokin' In The Boys Room" — Brownsville Station and near-novelty "The Joker" — Steve Miller.

'Tis Season For Oratorio

By WILBUR G. LANDREY

Christmas is long past but the season for Handel's "Messiah," which will do just as well for Easter, or any other time for that matter, is not.

The new version on records is from Karl Richter directing the London Philharmonic Orchestra, the John Alldis Choir, and four excellent soloists for Deutsche Grammophon (DG 2709 045-four records).

Helen Donath in the soprano role, Anna Reynolds as contralto, Stuart Burrows as tenor and Donald McIntyre as bass all sing with a high professionalism that helps make this a rich and rewarding "Messiah", richer still than it perhaps would have been in Handel's time but nothing like the swollen performances which over the years grew and grew.

As conductor, Richter has specialized in the study and performance of the work of Bach and Handel. He has given us a fine "Messiah", and Deutsche Grammophon has, as usual, packaged the set superbly.

Handel, a man of 56 burdened by work, health and other difficulties, conducted its first performance in Dublin on April 13, 1742, with a chorus of 30 men and boys. It was his masterpiece. With the St. John and St. Matthew Passions of Bach, it ranks as one of the three greatest works based on the story of the Redemption.

It is composed of three parts, the first concerned with Advent and Christmas, the second with the Passion and the third with the victorious future of Christianity.

Handel's oratories were, incidentally, written for the Lenten season, when in his time, theatrical performances were forbidden by law in England.

From ancient age
As history turns a page
The thoughts of man
Innermost, outward projected,
Reveals his ungodlike faults
As turned leaves of time
Whose oldest rime
Sings little songs glorifying
His debasement. Surpassed
Only by animal kingdom's
Unrestricted lash.
Self-hypnotized his moral code,
In hysteria so fled, and,
Known as human sacrifice.

OR MAYBE A CLOWN?

Some hands outstretched,
Dollars a-waving!
Some paper clutched,
In palms a-sweating!
Some nails showing white!

The hand is the actor
In the drama,
And reveals the smile,
Or the frown —
Or the jutted jaw.

As the show goes on,
Revealing love or hate,
We're audience and actor,
At the toll-gate!

East Anglia's Broads And Fens

TRAVEL PAGE

Ever hear of East Anglia? It's not a kind of fishing, although you can fish there.

It's that part of Britain once inhabited by the ancient Angles (as in Anglo-Saxon) which is just northeast of London, swelling out against the sea like a ripe fruit. It's a place which has very few of those mountains and hills which make most of the rest of Britain such an up and down proposition.

But it's far from dull!

It lost whatever dullness there was the day the stuttering Emperor Claudius landed here in AD 44, to show that he too was a worthy Caesar, and could conquer anything he liked.

COLCHESTER WAS his first Roman settlement in Britain. The town still has part of its Roman walls and since Roman times it has been renowned for its oysters. If you prefer oysters to historic contemplation, stop at the Rose and Crown in the East Gate, and sample some of these delightful molluscs.

Not far from here is Bury St. Edmunds, a sort of distillation of another part of British history. There is a massive 14th Century gateway to the ruins of a Norman abbey. The so-called Magna Carta barons met to swear here that they would humble haughty King John and make him sign the First Charter of Liberties in English history.

Newmarket, nearby, is Britain's center for race-horse-breeding, but is also an ancient and lovely town. James I established the habit of following fast nags nearby and persisted to the point that his grandson Charles II bought the enormous Audley End House, now open to the public, to stash his family while he partied at the races.

CLOSE BY HERE is Cambridge. Its university makes it one of the loveliest towns in Europe.

Less well-known is Ely, a small old town clustered round a vast and magnificent ancient cathedral that soars up out of the marshland known as the Fens. Ely is worth a special visit. If you can time your arrival for evensong it's one of the most startling sights you will ever come across — the vast empty cathedral with at the end, the unearthly music of the boys' choir soaring to rafters practically out of sight. Dorothy Sayers set her fen-steeped mystery "The Nine Tailors" herabouts.

Norwich is East Anglia's capital. It has a magnificent cathedral dating largely from Norman days, also more than 30 old parish churches, a 15th century Guildhall, a Norman castle, and innumerable ancient houses going back 500 years or more. In the "Maids Head" hotel there's a room with a bed where Queen Elizabeth slept. If you ask the manager nicely he will show it to you.

MANY OF EAST Anglia's towns are ports. The area is almost three quarters surrounded by water.

One of the ports, Aldeburgh, is Benjamin Britten's home, and site of the world famed festival which he holds every year. His opera "Peter Grimes" is set in Aldeburgh.

Many of the ports are set on inland rivers, silted up long since. Such as, for example, Boston in the Lincolnshire Fens, which was the original departure point of the Pilgrim Fathers from England.

King's Lynn has a spendid annual festival. Ipswich is an attractive old town which figures prominently in Dickens "Pickwick Papers."

Mrs. Pickwick had a terrible adventure in the great "White Horse" which can show the room where it happened.

THERE ARE OTHER close American connections in this area. Tom Payne was born at quiet Thetford, and Abraham Lincoln's family emigrated from Hingham and Swanton Morley.

The Norfolk Broads, for the information of American readers, are not the local girls, but a delightful 120 miles of navigable waterways popular for sailing and cruising — not to mention fishing, swimming and idling. Although Lord Nelson came from this area he confined his cruising to the high seas.

Other famed locals were the painters Gainsborough and Constable, both of who made the curiously various nature of this flat landscape famous and taught people to appreciate it.

For further information about England's East Anglian counties contact the British Tourist Authority, 612 South Flower Street, Los Angeles, 90017.

THE MAIN STREET of the village of Kersey, once an important medieval wool town, now seen drowsing in the summer sun, is typical of the quiet and charm to be found in England's East Anglia district to the north and east of bustling London. There's also history to be found there, dating back to the first Roman settlements in Britain. Plus good eating, horse racing breeding farms — and the grand old university at Cambridge.

The Domains Of William And Matilda

By BILL HOLLENBECK

We stood on the Esplanade de la Paix overlooking the city of Caen. Grey clouds paraded to the north and a lusty breeze snapped the French Tricouleur on a dozen masts along the parapet.

Here on the heights is what remains of the ancient citadel built in the time of William, Duke of Normandy. Here, too, within the walls is the St. George Chapel, now a memorial to those killed by the sophisticated instruments of our more advanced civilization.

For a moment, looking northward over the rooftops of the New University (modern buildings, but the oldest such school in France, founded in 1432), I thought of the frightful devastation the Allied Landings had brought the citizens of Caen.

BOMBS SET THE city afire and it raged for 11 days. And when the Canadiens entered the town from the west, the Germans commenced shelling the hapless city in their turn.

For those who enjoy reliving the drama of the Normandy Invasion, Caen is a logical base of operations. Myself, I prefer the more ancient confrontations. Although the brutality of combat has remained constant throughout the ages, at least there was a time when heads of state themselves were warriors and to be found ever in the thick of it.

Such a one was William the Bastard, Duke of Normandy

DOWN THERE, OFF to the left, is the Abbaye aux Hommes, a single unit historically and architecturally consisting of the abbaye buildings and St. Stephens (St. Etienne).

In 1066 Duke William, now William the Conqueror, in atonement for having taken as his bride one who was his distant cousin, provided funds for the construction of the church.

Architecturally, it bears testimony to the powerful Romanesque style that was developed in Normandy by the renowned Italian monk Lanfranc who as followers — the same Lanfranc who as Archibishop of Canterbury and first minister of King William and who cleaned out the corruption of the Anglo-Saxon clergy with an infusion of Normans and a set of inflexible rules.

IN THE OPPOSITE direction you can see the outline of the Abbaye aux Dames. In the center of the chancel is the tomb of Queen Matilda.

The Proud Matilda, Matilda of Flanders, who wasn't at all flattered by the Duke's proposal of marriage. She is reported to have stated quite forcefully, "I would rather take the veil than be married to a bastard."

However, history tells us the duke was equally forceful. After bursting into the palace at Lille, he seized the recalcitrant maid by the hair, dragged her about a bit, added a kick or two and then rode off at a mad gallop.

Evidently that is just what she needed and they were soon married.

WHEN YOU PAUSE IN FRONT OF King William's tomb, and if you've done your homework, you may reflect upon the similarity of the domestic problems of William and England's Henry II. The latter years of both were marred by bitter family quarrels and the final awful loneliness of the foresaken.

Normandy became the most enterprising of the provinces of France within a century of its cession to the Northmen. Its proximity to the sea and its position between London and Paris were as advantageous to its well being then as they are now.

Caen is not only the heart of the province but also of the Department of Calvados with its succession of wide sandy beaches on the north and its mountain resort area of the Suisse Normande to the south. Our obliging host in Caen was Monsieur Duquenne, director of public relations, who, after escorting us around the city, spoke with unconcealed pride of his District over a superb lunch at the Rabelais.

Four days to cover the Department of Calvados is, to say the least, inadequate. But the highlights of our visit rank among our most precious travel memories.

DEAUVILLE: Of course you've heard of it! We walked out of our ground floor room in the Hotel Normandy into our own little garden. Riders cantered along the bridle path which paralleled the coast road. On the other side of it were the tennis courts, then the soft sandy beach. A beautiful playground for the beautiful people.

Dinner in the Salon des Petits Ambassadeurs du Casino provided us with a story to tell our grandchildren. How many times have you been the sole occupants of an elegant restaurant for an entire evening? Just the two of us, an entire staff of waiters and captains, and a groovy band of swinging Italian musicians who entertained us, nevertheless, enthusiastically the whole time without ever taking a break.

Once you get used to it, it's quite a superior way to dine. Too bad it happens but once in a lifetime!

LISIEUX: St. Peter's Cathedral is all that remains of the old town and is worth a visit. The huge central chapel you'll find there was remodeled in the pure flamboyant style on the order of Pierre Cauchon, bishop of Lisieux.

You may remember this sterling character as the ghoul who was largely instrumental in having the Fair Maid of Orleans burned at the stake.

But Lisieux is worth a stop if for no other reason than to partake of a meal at the Hotel de la Coupe d'Or, 49 rue Pont-Mortain. It'll make you forget all about Pierre Cauchon!

BAYEAUX: A city so rich in history it's quite worthy of a separate article.

The Cathedral of Our Lady we've added to our ever growing list of favorites. Right across from it is the Baron-Gerard Museum teeming with visual interest, foremost of which is the Bayeaux Tapestry, the most precise and living document to come down to us from the Middle Ages. On it are depicted the events that led to the final confrontation between Harold and William as well as the highlights of the Battle of Hastings itself.

And if Bayeaux boasts some of the most interesting landmarks in all of Normandy and the Calvados, it also has a pretty important entry in the classification of fine restaurants. It was in the excellent Hotel du Lion d'Or, rue St. Jean, that we were introduced to an aperitif par excellence. They call it the Battle of Hastings. It's not really that lethal but it can get pretty exciting. Beyond two, I don't know.

If you'd like to try one here it is: equal parts of Calvados, apricot brandy and orange juice. Serve chilled in a thin glass rimmed with sugar. A votre sante!

WE SAMPLED the marvelous scenic variety of the Department of Calvados from the picturesque port of Honfleur to the pastoral surroundings of the charming Moulin de Vey in Clecy.

We luxuriated over a lunch of delicious oysters, sopping up the sauce with crisp french bread and toasting the glory of the clean sea air with a bottle of Pouilly-Fuisse high up in the restaurant Le Roc in Granville.

We enjoyed the hospitality of the Hotel l'Univers in St. Lo. And one morning, from our room, watched the city come alive around the little railroad station far below. And breathed in the warm fragrant aroma of freshly baked bread wafted up to us. The exact location of la Boulangerie was hidden to us, but the continuing traffic of auto and bicycle pinpointed it pretty accurately. The departing long loaves held by a scrap of paper around the middle gave comforting assurance that another day in the city of St. Lo was about to begin.

As for us, it was the start of the part of our drive that would take us to Brittainy and the Loire Valley, albeit with many a fond recollection of the bountiful domains of William and Matilda.

Normandy became the most enterprising of the provinces of France within a century of its cession to the Northmen. Its proximity to the sea and its position between London and Paris were as advantageous to its well being then as they are now.

Caen is not only the heart of the province but also of the Department of Calvados with its succession of wide sandy beaches on the north and its mountain resort area of the Suisse Normande to the south. Our obliging host in Caen was Monsieur Duquenne, director of public relations, who, after escorting us around the city, spoke with unconcealed pride of his District over a superb lunch at the Rabelais.

Four days to cover the Department of Calvados is, to say the least, inadequate. But the highlights of our visit rank among our most precious travel memories.

DEAUVILLE: Of course you've heard of it! We walked out of our ground floor room in the Hotel Normandy into our own little garden. Riders cantered along the bridle path which paralleled the coast road. On the other side of it were the tennis courts, then the soft sandy beach. A beautiful playground for the beautiful people.

Dinner in the Salon des Petits Ambassadeurs du Casino provided us with a story to tell our grandchildren. How many times have you been the sole occupants of an elegant restaurant for an entire evening? Just the two of us, an entire staff of waiters and captains, and a groovy band of swinging Italian musicians who entertained us, nevertheless, enthusiastically the whole time without ever taking a break.

Once you get used to it, it's quite a superior way to dine. Too bad it happens but once in a lifetime!

LISIEUX: St. Peter's Cathedral is all that remains of the old town and is worth a visit. The huge central chapel you'll find there was remodeled in the pure flamboyant style on the order of Pierre Cauchon, bishop of Lisieux.

You may remember this sterling character as the ghoul who was largely instrumental in having the Fair Maid of Orleans burned at the stake.

But Lisieux is worth a stop if for no other reason than to partake of a meal at the Hotel de la Coupe d'Or, 49 rue Pont-Mortain. It'll make you forget all about Pierre Cauchon!

BAYEAUX: A city so rich in history it's quite worthy of a separate article.

The Cathedral of Our Lady we've added to our ever growing list of favorites. Right across from it is the Baron-Gerard Museum teeming with visual interest, foremost of which is the Bayeaux Tapestry, the most precise and living document to come down to us from the Middle Ages. On it are depicted the events that led to the final confrontation between Harold and William as well as the highlights of the Battle of Hastings itself.

And if Bayeaux boasts some of the most interesting landmarks in all of Normandy and the Calvados, it also has a pretty important entry in the classification of fine restaurants. It was in the excellent Hotel du Lion d'Or, rue St. Jean, that we were introduced to an aperitif par excellence. They call it the Battle of Hastings. It's not really that lethal but it can get pretty exciting. Beyond two, I don't know.

If you'd like to try one here it is: equal parts of Calvados, apricot brandy and orange juice. Serve chilled in a thin glass rimmed with sugar. A votre sante!

WE SAMPLED the marvelous scenic variety of the Department of Calvados from the picturesque port of Honfleur to the pastoral surroundings of the charming Moulin de Vey in Clecy.

We luxuriated over a lunch of delicious oysters, sopping up the sauce with crisp french bread and toasting the glory of the clean sea air with a bottle of Pouilly-Fuisse high up in the restaurant Le Roc in Granville.

We enjoyed the hospitality of the Hotel l'Univers in St. Lo. And one morning, from our room, watched the city come alive around the little railroad station far below. And breathed in the warm fragrant aroma of freshly baked bread wafted up to us. The exact location of la Boulangerie was hidden to us, but the continuing traffic of auto and bicycle pinpointed it pretty accurately. The departing long loaves held by a scrap of paper around the middle gave comforting assurance that another day in the city of St. Lo was about to begin.

As for us, it was the start of the part of our drive that would take us to Brittainy and the Loire Valley, albeit with many a fond recollection of the bountiful domains of William and Matilda.

Sand And Fear—Ordeal In The Sahara

THE FEARFUL VOID by Geoffrey Moorhouse; Lippincott, 288 pages, $10. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Hoping for a fuel-conserving vacation that will take you to destinations you can place-name drop at cocktail parties with confidence that other revelers have not been there?

Then you might borrow some pages from the "travel brochure" of British journalist-author Geoffrey Moorhouse and chart a 3,600-mile east-west crossing of Africa's forbidding Sahara Desert by foot and camel.

Leave the kiddies at home, and get your affairs in order before you depart.

It won't cost you a thing for oil and gasoline. But it just might cost you your life, as it nearly did Moorhouse.

And it's unlikely you'll complete the 3,600 miles, or even the 2,000 miles the stubborn Moorhouse covered before bowing finally to commonsense and sheer desire to emerge alive form his harrowing adventure.

The amenities of this grim "vacation package" include maggoty food, filthy water that is oft times not available at all, guaranteed dysentery, companions as devious as they are tough and courageous, a merciless sun by day and a no more merciful cold by night, sands that scald and scour the flesh, punishing sandstorms, humpbacked steeds with minds of their own and a dismaying tendency to give up and succumb to the elements and hardship in mid-desert, lice by the trillions, mirages and a bathroom behind the nearest sand dune.

Geoffrey Moorhouse had at least a glimmering of the terrors that lay ahead when he planned his trek never before accomplished by a non-Arab. But plan it he did. Why?

Because, he writes, he had been caught up with a fascination for the role that fear — "the most corrosive element attacking the goodness of the human spirit" — plays in shaping mankind and his planet. And because he wanted to plumb the depth of his own personal fears.

He chose his test well, and those extremeties of fear were plumbed raw by the time he left Africa, having barely escaped death by thirst, heat, exposure and sickness on more than one occasion.

"The Fearful Void" is Moorhouse's account of his challenge of the Sahara, an encounter that in retrospect seems foolhardy. For Moorhouse does not spare us the painful details. With excrutiating reality he recreates his zig-zag course from one waterhole, hopefully, to the next, leaving behind a trail of emptied water vessels, dying camels and disillusionments and discoveries about himself and his fellow man.

Fortunately, Moorhouse was dissuaded from his original decision to make his crossing alone. Native guides were hired. In some of them Moorhouse found brave and trustworthy companions. But in others, he found liars and thieves and rascals. What Moorhouse was discovering, on the march (the men walked much of the way to spare their fatigued camels) and in the camp, was that the hardships of life upon the desert or along its edges had fostered a different kind of morality from that which he had known in England. Sheer survival is the always present overpowering concern. Moorhouse never really made the adjustment.

Nor will the reader attain a full understanding of these people so very different from any that he has known, simply by reading Moorhouse's book. What he will receive is the certain knowledge that he can no more apply his mores and thinking to these desert dwellers than he found he could to the equally different and distinct society, or societies, that make up Southeast Asia.

"The Fearful Void," harsh as it is in its realism, is grand adventure, the kind of reading one encounters all too infrequently. Moorhouse is a superb chronicler who does not spare himself, or others, but writes with complete honesty of how small and helpless man is when he finds himself in the midst of nature's vast oven. But also of how courage and determination can still somehow see the persistent person, insect though he is, through the most trying and most perilous of ordeals.

The journey that Moorhouse and his initial guide first began on Mauritania's coast, and which took them through Mali and the fabled city of Tombouctou (Timbuktoo to Americans), ended of necessity at Tamanrasset in southern-most Algeria, still well short of the original goal of the Nile in Egypt.

"I now knew precisely what the most fearful thing consisted of; I had measured it, I had touched it, I had almost been destroyed by it," Moorhouse writes of his thinking as he forced himself to attempt the last leg to Tamanrasset after having a brush with death in the Algerian desert. "If I turned my back upon it now; I would be pursued by it to the end of my life, always running away from the subject of my fear. And this would not be fear of death by thirst and dehydration, or fear of being lost in a wilderness of sand. It would be fear of encounter. Nothing more. Fear of encounter with a person, with a task, with anything at all intimidating that might cross my path . . ."

But as he struggled into Tamanrasset, Moorhouse was "suddenly, furiously, abysmally certain that I could go no further . . . I had, at last, discovered beauty in the desert. It was around me now, the familiar beauty of mountains. But all I could feel was agony, suffering, pain, mindlessness, endlessness, futility. Under the dreadful, drilling heat of this appalling sun I had become an automaton that marched. I was scarcely recognizable as a human being, with the responses that alone distinguished us from the animals. I wondered whether I had forfeited a little of my soul to the desert — maybe the greater part of it."

So forget that vacation "tour" of the Sahara wastes. Instead read Geoffrey Moorhouse's "The Fearful Void," not as a travelogue, but as the almost grotesque experiences of a man who submitted himself to the utmost tortures and testings. And who gives you a memorable look at an awesome landscape and at least a glimpse of another way-of-life that is foreign beyond our comfortable comprehensions.

The book has photographs, both color and black and white, and maps that contrast the original fairly smooth route charted by Moorhouse with the jagged, shortened course necessity forced him to adopt. But Moorhouse's graphic account of his trials in the Sahara crucible is sufficent in itself to impress upon the reader the terrors of those arid, unfriendly wastes. You are far more likely to be repelled by this savage desert than to be drawn to it. And safer if, as a result, you stay away from it.

Catching Up On What Is New With Science

NATURE-SCIENCE ANNUAL, 1974 EDITION edited by Jane D. Alexander; Time-Life Books, 192 pages, $6.50. Reviewed by Don Keown.

For the layman who doesn't follow the scientific journals, but who likes to catch up from time to time on the new directions science has taken, the editions of Time-Life's Nature-Science Annual offer the perfect solution.

In one quick reading the curious can digest a series of summarizations by top authorities of the major developments.

Thus the 1974 edition offers you C. P. Gilmore's speculation as to the possibility that we are edging into another Ice Age. Arthur C. Clarke will excite space addicts with his paper exploring new evidence that there is life, indeed, out there in the galaxy. Close to home, Jonathan Norton Leonard writes about the problem of the pet explosion, a graver matter than most people realize.

There's Gary A. Soucie's study of the recycling movement, John E. Pfeiffer's report on the archaeological probings into the ancient city of Cahokia very close to, of all places, the present-day city of St. Louis.

The new look in zoos, the use of a satellite to monitor such matters as crop growth, water pollution and mineral deposits, and the new legitimacy somewhat begrudgingly accorded the investigation of psychic phenomena are among the other topics.

Just as the subjects are chosen for their popular appeal, so the articles are highly popularized and pitched to the mass readership. But the scientist-authors, true to their credentials, do not compromise on honesty and accuracy.

Like most Time-Life books, the annual is beautifully and profusely illustrated, with color generously employed. And the sturdy cover guarantees a long life on the reference shelf.

The owner of a complete set of these annuals is going to have himself a survey of considerable depth and stimulation as to what science has achieved, and what it hopes to accomplish in the near future.

The Terror In Streets Of Belfast

Reviewers of Peter Driscoll's first suspense-and-adventure novel, "The Wilby Conspiracy," were generally free with the superlatives in their laudatory comments upon the book. We weren't able to generate such an excess of enthusiasm.

But if they want to use the same highblown adjectives to describe his second, "In Connection with Kilshaw," we'll go along wholeheartedly, and even contribute a few of our own.

Whereas "The Wilby Conspiracy" was set in South Africa and dealt with the relationship of a white and a black man fleeing danger, "In Connection with Kilshaw" is set in Northern Ireland, and deals with a complex and involved set of relationships.

Harry Finn is in Belfast posing as a journalist on a job for British Intelligence — the discrediting of a leader of the Protestant extremists. To carry out his mission, he must do business with the arch-enemies of the British, the Irish Revolutionary Army. And he must keep an alert eye open, too, for a doublecross from his own side.

But what really makes this novel exceptional is the superbly terrible picture that Driscoll, a 32-year-old much-traveled London journalist, paints of Northern Ireland as a country torn with violence and saturated with hatred and distrust. Strife, suspicion, bigotry, fear, superpatriotism and opportunism all permeate and uglify the streets and terrain through which Finn, and the Irish girl who becomes his ally, must move in order to attain their separate aims.

Some extraordinary characterization is another bonus for the seeker of good suspense fiction who turns to this book, and who most assuredly will not be disappointed.

Tacy's Recollections Of Dunham Family Cross Country Trip

18 DAYS OF CHRISTMAS by Tacy Dunham; Carleton Press, 95 pages, $3. Reviewed by Jean Rauzy.

A cross country trip by station wagon over the Christmas holidays, 1969, on the part of the author, her father and her two brothers, ages 18 and 14, spanning 18 days and costing $900, is the basis for this story.

Apparently the event is reconstructed by the aid of carefully kept notebooks, family recollections, and an extensive post card collection. At the time of the trip, Tacy was a senior at Redwood High School and the family lived in San Rafael. Her tale is rife with "everyday" family happenings as well as reactions to the many spots important in U.S. history visited.

The author, now at University of California at Davis, is not without good descriptive powers, and the thrills and chills of the trip are made very real to the reader.

The Romance Denied The Real Miss Emily

THE HESITANT HEART by Anne Edwards; Random House, 247 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Sarah Mizel.

A beautiful love story has been written by Anne Edwards, based on the life of the great poetess, Emily Dickinson.

She was reared in a very prudish, Puritan atmosphere, where neither love nor other emotion was expressed or shown. Emily's father was a cold, overbearing man, and her mother was a timid, unhappy soul. Little wonder, then, that Emily had to write her most personal thoughts on paper in order to find some peace in her life.

She was thought to be strange by her neighbors and even her friends in Amherst, Mass. For many years she lived as a recluse.

In Miss Edwards' book, the only ray of sunshine entered Emily's life when she thought of the man she loved, Judge Otis Lord of Salem, Mass. He was a married man with a family, which didn't help matters.

When Emily was in her early 40s the judge's wife passed away, and in the novel he soon acknowledges his love to Emily and made plans for their marriage. With many complications from her family and from the judge's failing health, this final bit of happiness was to be denied her.

After living such a loveless, frustrating life for so many years, there was real doubt in Emily's mind whether she could cope with the happiness even if she found it. Her dying mother said to her, "You need so much. Love is more than knowledge — and a woman withers without it."

The last few years before her death at 56 she remained in her room, suffering from nervous exhaustion. She was gradually withering away.

After her death her sister found hundreds of poems neatly placed in a locked box. She had never stopped writing. This was her only release.

During her lifetime Emily's poetry was not accepted, because of her obscurity and fractured grammar and punctuation. Only seven poems were published during her lifetime. However, after her death all of her poetry was published and accepted.

Her inspirations for poetry were the Bible and the phenomena of nature. Her rhythmic patterns created a new sense of richness in language. Her nervous style uses awkwardness of expression as a sort of metaphor of the paradoxes inherent in living and dying.

The reader wonders whether Miss Dickinson would have been such a prolific writer and poet had her life been happier.

In one of her last poems, she wrote: "My life closed twice before its close;/It yet remains to see/If immortality unveil/A third event to me...."

Sadly, research unveils no confirmation of a romance between Miss Dickinson and Judge Otis Lord. Author Edwards has apparently decided to create the love affairs for the purposes of her novel. And it is a good idea, for without it there would hardly be an interesting story. There is little doubt that Emily admired the judge, most likely though as a friend and as an intellectual. One regrets the poetess apparently was denied even this one romance.

NOTES OF A BROWSING BOOKMAN

Busy Arco Publishing Co. has accumulated a considerable "stable" of horse books, the most recent being "Horsemen's Veterinary Advisor" by Dr. Joseph B. Davison, an Ohio veterinarian.

In the $7.50 hardcover book, Dr. Davidson offers what he regards "all the veterinary information a horse owner needs to have at hand."

There is instruction in how to examine a horse and how to detect ailments, an explanation of the various drugs in use and their adminstration, definitions of medical terms and "first aid" advice for home care of the minor maladies and mishaps to which horses are subject. Special advice is offered on the judging of a horse's soundness at the time of purchase, along with other buying hints.

The book has been adopted by 4-H Clubs of America as a guide, speaking well for its contents.

ALSO FROM Arco and dealing with horses, but in a very different sense, is "Inside Horseracing" by the same Dr. Davidson. The veterinarian shifts from his concern for the horse's physical health to a concern for the bettor's economic wealth, offering what he claims to be a sound program for judging a thoroughbred's, pacer's or quarter horse's potential on the track. Rules and regulations of the American Stud Book and the U.S. Trotting Association are also summarized.

In softcover, it sells for $3.

"THE BLACK BOOK," Random House, $5.95 softcover, is described as editor Toni Morrison's idea for "a nostalgic scrapbook of black history." Middleton Harris, with the help of Morris Levitt, Roger Furman and Ernest Smith, has done the actual work of putting together the clippings, family photos, letters, posters, handbills, music sheets, jokes, recollections and what have you, that Bill Cosby, in his introduction, calls "a record of what it was like" for the black person over the past 300 years in this country. And as "a folk journey of Black America." Which it is. No straight, standard text for a Black History course could do as well.

KEITH SAUNDERS' "So You Want to Be an Airline Stewardess" has been updated and reissued as a $1.50 paperback by Arco.

PUBLISHED by Ballantine: a $1.50 paperback edition of Ben K. Green's entertaining "Wild Cow Tales," reminiscenses of years spent rounding up outlaw cattle in the Southwest.

SLEUTHS & SUSPENSE

The usual procedure for novels has been reversed in the case of John D. MacDonald's Travis McGee detective yarns, and books that appeared first in softcover are now being reprinted in hardcover.

"The Quick Red Fox" is one of these, being early McGee, 1964 vintage. And it is also one of the very best in the series.

This is the one in which tough guy McGee accepts an assignment from a movie queen to recover the negatives of some incriminating photographs that have been used twice to blackmail her. In company with the star's Girl Friday, McGee begins a cross-country search. And discovers murder has taken the same trail.

As a writer of the American crime novel, John D. MacDonald has often been compard to Ross Macdonald, the acknowledged master of the genre. When he is in the form shown in "The Quick Red Fox," the comparison is deserved. And MacDonald's work comes very close to holding its own.

Little wonder, then, that Emily had to write her most personal thoughts on paper in order to find some peace in her life.

She was thought to be strange by her neighbors and even her friends in Amherst, Mass. For many years she lived as a recluse.

In Miss Edwards' book, the only ray of sunshine entered Emily's life when she thought of the man she loved, Judge Otis Lord of Salem, Mass. He was a married man with a family, which didn't help matters.

When Emily was in her early 40s the judge's wife passed away, and in the novel he soon acknowledges his love to Emily and made plans for their marriage. With many complications from her family and from the judge's failing health, this final bit of happiness was to be denied her.

After living such a loveless, frustrating life for so many years, there was real doubt in Emily's mind whether she could cope with the happiness even if she found it. Her dying mother said to her, "You need so much. Love is more than knowledge — and a woman withers without it."

The last few years before her death at 56 she remained in her room, suffering from nervous exhaustion. She was gradually withering away.

After her death her sister found hundreds of poems neatly placed in a locked box. She had never stopped writing. This was her only release.

During her lifetime Emily's poetry was not accepted, because of her obscurity and fractured grammar and punctuation. Only seven poems were published during her lifetime. However, after her death all of her poetry was published and accepted.

Her inspirations for poetry were the Bible and the phenomena of nature. Her rhythmic patterns created a new sense of richness in language. Her nervous style uses awkwardness of expression as a sort of metaphor of the paradoxes inherent in living and dying.

The reader wonders whether Miss Dickinson would have been such a prolific writer and poet had her life been happier.

In one of her last poems, she wrote: "My life closed twice before its close;/It yet remains to see/If immortality unveil/A third event to me...."

Sadly, research unveils no confirmation of a romance between Miss Dickinson and Judge Otis Lord. Author Edwards has apparently decided to create the love affairs for the purposes of her novel. And it is a good idea, for without it there would hardly be an interesting story. There is little doubt that Emily admired the judge, most likely though as a friend and as an intellectual. One regrets the poetess apparently was denied even this one romance.

NOTES OF A BROWSING BOOKMAN

Busy Arco Publishing Co. has accumulated a considerable "stable" of horse books, the most recent being "Horsemen's Veterinary Advisor" by Dr. Joseph B. Davison, an Ohio veterinarian.

In the $7.50 hardcover book, Dr. Davidson offers what he regards "all the veterinary information a horse owner needs to have at hand."

There is instruction in how to examine a horse and how to detect ailments, an explanation of the various drugs in use and their adminstration, definitions of medical terms and "first aid" advice for home care of the minor maladies and mishaps to which horses are subject. Special advice is offered on the judging of a horse's soundness at the time of purchase, along with other buying hints.

The book has been adopted by 4-H Clubs of America as a guide, speaking well for its contents.

ALSO FROM Arco and dealing with horses, but in a very different sense, is "Inside Horseracing" by the same Dr. Davidson. The veterinarian shifts from his concern for the horse's physical health to a concern for the bettor's economic wealth, offering what he claims to be a sound program for judging a thoroughbred's, pacer's or quarter horse's potential on the track. Rules and regulations of the American Stud Book and the U.S. Trotting Association are also summarized.

In softcover, it sells for $3.

"THE BLACK BOOK," Random House, $5.95 softcover, is described as editor Toni Morrison's idea for "a nostalgic scrapbook of black history." Middleton Harris, with the help of Morris Levitt, Roger Furman and Ernest Smith, has done the actual work of putting together the clippings, family photos, letters, posters, handbills, music sheets, jokes, recollections and what have you, that Bill Cosby, in his introduction, calls "a record of what it was like" for the black person over the past 300 years in this country. And as "a folk journey of Black America." Which it is. No straight, standard text for a Black History course could do as well.

KEITH SAUNDERS' "So You Want to Be an Airline Stewardess" has been updated and reissued as a $1.50 paperback by Arco.

PUBLISHED by Ballantine: a $1.50 paperback edition of Ben K. Green's entertaining "Wild Cow Tales," reminiscenses of years spent rounding up outlaw cattle in the Southwest.

Catching Up On What Is New With Science

NATURE-SCIENCE ANNUAL, 1974 EDITION edited by Jane D. Alexander; Time-Life Books, 192 pages, $6.50. Reviewed by Don Keown.

For the layman who doesn't follow the scientific journals, but who likes to catch up from time to time on the new directions science has taken, the editions of Time-Life's Nature-Science Annual offer the perfect solution.

In one quick reading the curious can digest a series of summarizations by top authorities of the major developments.

Thus the 1974 edition offers you C. P. Gilmore's speculation as to the possibility that we are edging into another Ice Age. Arthur C. Clarke will excite space addicts with his paper exploring new evidence that there is life, indeed, out there in the galaxy. Close to home, Jonathan Norton Leonard writes about the problem of the pet explosion, a graver matter than most people realize.

There's Gary A. Soucie's study of the recycling movement, John E. Pfeiffer's report on the archaeological probings into the ancient city of Cahokia very close to, of all places, the present-day city of St. Louis.

The new look in zoos, the use of a satellite to monitor such matters as crop growth, water pollution and mineral deposits, and the new legitimacy somewhat begrudgingly accorded the investigation of psychic phenomena are among the other topics.

Just as the subjects are chosen for their popular appeal, so the articles are highly popularized and pitched to the mass readership. But the scientist-authors, true to their credentials, do not compromise on honesty and accuracy.

Like most Time-Life books, the annual is beautifully and profusely illustrated, with color generously employed. And the sturdy cover guarantees a long life on the reference shelf.

The owner of a complete set of these annuals is going to have himself a survey of considerable depth and stimulation as to what science has achieved, and what it hopes to accomplish in the near future.

The Terror In Streets Of Belfast

Reviewers of Peter Driscoll's first suspense-and-adventure novel, "The Wilby Conspiracy," were generally free with the superlatives in their laudatory comments upon the book. We weren't able to generate such an excess of enthusiasm.

But if they want to use the same highblown adjectives to describe his second, "In Connection with Kilshaw," we'll go along wholeheartedly, and even contribute a few of our own.

Whereas "The Wilby Conspiracy" was set in South Africa and dealt with the relationship of a white and a black man fleeing danger, "In Connection with Kilshaw" is set in Northern Ireland, and deals with a complex and involved set of relationships.

Harry Finn is in Belfast posing as a journalist on a job for British Intelligence — the discrediting of a leader of the Protestant extremists. To carry out his mission, he must do business with the arch-enemies of the British, the Irish Revolutionary Army. And he must keep an alert eye open, too, for a doublecross from his own side.

But what really makes this novel exceptional is the superbly terrible picture that Driscoll, a 32-year-old much-traveled London journalist, paints of Northern Ireland as a country torn with violence and saturated with hatred and distrust. Strife, suspicion, bigotry, fear, superpatriotism and opportunism all permeate and uglify the streets and terrain through which Finn, and the Irish girl who becomes his ally, must move in order to attain their separate aims.

Some extraordinary characterization is another bonus for the seeker of good suspense fiction who turns to this book, and who most assuredly will not be disappointed.

Tacy's Recollections Of Dunham Family Cross Country Trip

A cross country trip by station wagon over the Christmas holidays, 1969, on the part of the author, her father and her two brothers, ages 18 and 14, spanning 18 days and costing $900, is the basis for this story.

Apparently the event is reconstructed by the aid of carefully kept notebooks, family recollections, and an extensive post card collection. At the time of the trip, Tacy was a senior at Redwood High School and the family lived in San Rafael. Her tale is rife with "everyday" family happenings as well as reactions to the many spots important in U.S. history visited.

The author, now at University of California at Davis, is not without good descriptive powers, and the thrills and chills of the trip are made very real to the reader.

SLEUTHS & SUSPENSE

The usual procedure for novels has been reversed in the case of John D. MacDonald's Travis McGee detective yarns, and books that appeared first in softcover are now being reprinted in hardcover.

"The Quick Red Fox" is one of these, being early McGee, 1964 vintage. And it is also one of the very best in the series.

This is the one in which tough guy McGee accepts an assignment from a movie queen to recover the negatives of some incriminating photographs that have been used twice to blackmail her. In company with the star's Girl Friday, McGee begins a cross-country search. And discovers murder has taken the same trail.

As a writer of the American crime novel, John D. MacDonald has often been compard to Ross Macdonald, the acknowledged master of the genre. When he is in the form shown in "The Quick Red Fox," the comparison is deserved. And MacDonald's work comes very close to holding its own.

Painting The Windows— How To Tackle That Most Vexsome Chore

By ANDY LANG

HOMES PAGE

Painting the windows inside a room is probably the most unpopular part of interior painting. It takes time and careful attention with a brush to prevent the kind of sloppy result that is displeasing to the eye as well as a harbinger of stuck sashes.

A sash brush should be used. Its angled bristles make it easier to handle along narrow strips and in confined areas.

The brush should be dipped only about one-third its length, with the excess rubbed off on the inside of the can. Press down lightly on the handle so that the bristles spread out in fan-like fashion, permitting just the edges of them to touch the glass as you move the brush along.

IT TAKES A little practice to get the knack of painting so as not to smear paint on the glass. But even if you are good at it, have a rag handy so that, if you should make a mistake, the paint on the glass can be wiped off immediately.

If you are not adept at this, you can use a thin piece of cardboard to slide along the glass with the movement of the brush to prevent paint from getting on the pane. Those throwaway pieces of cardboard that come inside new shirts and those that have been professionally laundered are excellent for this purpose. Some persons use masking tape, but this can be an annoyance because, if it isn't done perfectly, paint imperfections will be seen when the tape is removed.

SHOULD A LITTLE paint get on the glass despite all your efforts to prevent it, and should you fail to wipe it off instantly, wait until it is completely dry, then scrape it off with a single-edge razor blade.

With the standard double-hung windows, it is especially important that the parts of the windows be painted in a certain sequence.

Before touching a brush to a window, unscrew any hardware attached to it. This may be a slight annoyance, but trying to paint close to the metal without getting paint on it can be even more vexsome.

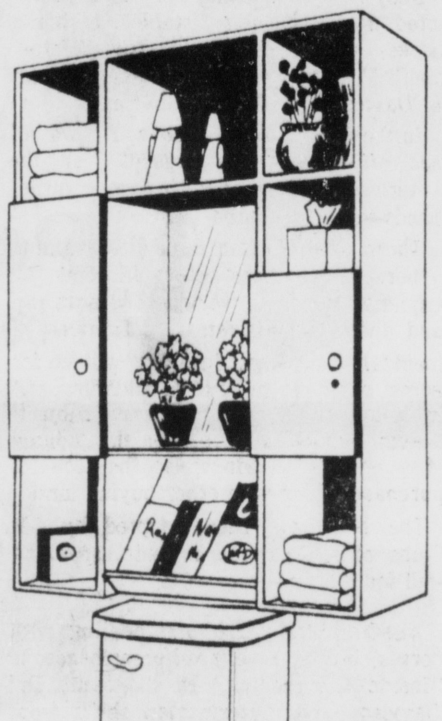
THE FIRST STEP is to raise the lower sash and lower the upper sash. Paint the inside edge of the upper meeting rail, then the top of that rail, then a couple of inches up the muntins, the wooden strips dividing the glass, assuming there are muntins. Next, lower the bottom sash and raise the upper sash, the opposite of what you did previously, only this time leave a fraction of an inch leeway so that each sash has a little clearance. Paint all exposed surfaces.

The window sill, frame and surrounding trim are done last.

After the paint has dried overnight, carefully move the sashes up and down a couple of times. This will prevent future sticking.

For either of Andy Lang's helpful booklets, "Paint Your House Inside and Out" or "Wood Finishing in the Home," send 30 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, Post Office Box 477, Huntington, N.Y., 11743. Be sure to specify which booklet you want.

BATH BONUS



AN ATTRACTIVE "box" unit of storage shelves can be built of one-by-eight-inch or one-by-10-inch boards of western pine and installed above the watercloset in the bathroom. Two shelves and two vertical boards divide it into compartments, one of which can be fitted with a lockable door to keep medicines safely from small children. The storage unit can be fastened directly to the wall. Thus the center part of the bottom shelf should be removable to allow easy access to the watercloset for repairs. What you have done is to put wall space too often wasted to very good use. Furthermore, you have made a handsome addition to the decor of the bathroom. It's a relatively simple project for the weekend home handyman. And an inexpensive one that can produce professional results with a little care. The added value such touches give to a home at resale time is no insignificant matter.

HERE'S YOUR ANSWER

By ANDY LANG

Q. — I intend to put up aluminum gutters in a month or two. I think I have a pretty good idea of how it is done, but do not know how many strap hangers to use. How is this determined?

A. — The strap hangers should be installed every two or three feet or somewhere between. Be sure you use aluminum hangers and not some other kind of metal.

Q. — During a storm, a large tree in our paved backyard was bent slightly, causing the concrete several feet away to crack and break. All the breaks are in a single slab that is rather large and probably much too heavy to lift. What's the best way to remove the slab before I begin work on repaving the area?

A. — Use a mason's chisel and a heavy-duty hammer. Insert the chisel in one of the cracks and pound away until the concrete comes loose. Do the same thing in other gaps until, instead of having one large slab, you have a lot of smaller pieces that can be lifted and taken away. Should there be a piece left too heavy to lift, break it up with the chisel and hammer. Wear safety glasses or some kind of goggles when doing work of this kind.

Q. — Our living room has wallpaper on it. My wife wants me to put up pine paneling. Can it be applied right over the wallpaper?

A. — To do the job right, you'll have to put up furring strips, attaching them to the wall studs. The panels are then attached to the furring strips. The wallpaper won't interfere with the installation.

Q. — What's the difference between white shellac and clear shellac.

A. — None. What is usually called white shellac is actually clear shellac. It's transparent, but like all so-called clear finishes, it tinges the wood a bit.

Q. — In cutting molding, I never seem to cut the ends right so that they meet exactly like the corners of a picture frame. Is there some knack to this?

A. — Buy yourself a miter box, which is relatively inexpensive. There are slots in the box which will permit corner cuts to be made at exactly the right angle.

Q. — The finish in one part of our living room floor has worn off. The original finish is rather dull. Can I patch the worn area with varnish or shellac?

A. — It sounds as though a penentrating floor sealer was used when the floor was finished. Varnish or shellac will produce a glossy surface that will stand out from the rest of the floor. Try a penetrating floor finish to get a reasonable match.

The 'Antiquing' Of Furniture

By GEORGE MONTGOMERY

Authentic antiques, and furniture treated to look like antiques, are not, of course, the same thing.

But many find they can furnish their homes with a few fine, true antique pieces, and fill in around these with new or renovated furniture of more modern vintage that has been "antiqued" or made to look worn.

It's a popular do-it-yourself hobby.

There are two ways of doing it. The easy way is with paint or other finishing material.

The real fun is in a process known as distressing. This means physically abusing the piece to make it look old and used.

But before you start distressing I suggest you examine the real thing. Study an antique of the same type. Observe the scars and wear patterns so you can reproduce them realistically and please be selective in the pieces you distress.

You certainly would not distress a table planned for a formal dining room. Save the technique for furniture normally subject to physical abuse, such as an old cobbler's bench, perhaps a desk, a coffee table, or even a child's bureau.

Now for the fun. One way to distress furniture is to lay a tire chain on the wood surface and hammer it. This dents the wood. Or beat the wood with a burlap bag filled with chains. You also can make scars with a hammer.

Realistic wear marks can be made by rolling and pounding a rough stone over the surface. You can get an interesting antique finish by scorching the wood with a torch, then scoring the surface along the grain with a stiff wire brush. The uneveness of early sawed lumber can be produced on a new wood by sanding with a disk sander — first across the grain, then with it.

The distressed piece, of course, must be finished. It requires sanding, sealing and the finish coats. The last step is to produce just the final sheen you want. You can follow standard procedures on this part of the job and I suggest that you finish all off with a coat of enriched wax that will protect your finish and bring out the luster of rubbed-in wax — without rubbing.

An Inside Look at Village Fair—Part I

Giants Beware In Elfish Kitchenland

COOK SMART, on the mezzanine of Village Fair in Sausalito, is a kitchenware fairyland so jampacked with uniqueness that it is more suited for nimble elves than for clumsy giants like myself. My first COOK SMART experience was musical. I played the scale with my head on brilliant, European copperware strung from the ceiling like tropical fruits ripe for plucking. I overreacted with a plunge into a huge selection of coffeemakers by Norelco, and espresso pots that kindled memories of Paris.

No harm done, but I was surrounded by decorator cannisters (in metal, plastic, glass, and ceramic), by boggling assortments of Trident (and sharp!) Knives from Germany, and by precariously hung, imported cookie cutters. I needed a guide or keeper, and found both in Mrs. Helen Belsey, twinkle-eyed manager of COOK SMART. She led me into softer climes — the linen nook.

"You'll be safe here," she said, "among the largest selection of linen tablecloths, napkins, and aprons in town. People from such places as Chicago and Tulsa are amazed at our selection." With trepidation, I followed Helen past a ticking wall of decor clocks and was tempted to fondle her sizeable collection of pewter, except she had something more fascinating to show: Armetale kitchen items by Wilton. Armetale has an eerie quality that comes from its blend of 10 different metals cast in sand.

"No time!" she cautioned, and sped me past shelves of mugs in various shapes and sizes; past a managerie of cookie jar pigs, seals, chipmunks, owls, cats, and frogs; and right into a section enchantingly littered with wine racks of metal and fine wood. Naturally, I stumbled over one into a counter filled with plastic and fiber-woven placemats, including PIMPERNEL sets, recreating famous art scenes.

Despite my bumblings, I was graciously invited back anytime between 10 and 6, although I seem to recall a whispered comment as I exited: "Sure hope THAT ONE gives us a warning call at 332-2527 next time he plans a visit!"

Chauvinism Rules In A Man's World

W.C. Fields glares chauvinistically down at all intruders to the top-floor niche of Village Fair that is definitely A MAN'S WORLD.

Field's immortal phizzog and caustic witticisms (emblazoned on hanging 3 X 5 foot grass mats) symbolize the MAN'S WORLD collection of strictly-male items ranging from the practical to the bizarre; from French Birth Control kits (guillotines) to a complete line of Swiss Army knives. In short, everything weird and useful to fit gaps in a real man's world.

Yet,, claims co-owner Mort McMichael, most shoppers at A MAN'S WORLD are women! "They come in looking for unusual gifts to please husbands and male acquaintances who are tired of getting the same old tie, wallet and cologne presents (all of which Mort stocks). We sell everything imaginable, but we mostly deal in laughter."

Wacky items stud every corner, counter and shelf of A MAN'S WORLD. Things like moustache mugs (you'll laugh when you see them), electric nose cleaners, and thirty types of witty, wooden signs for golfers, skiers, and just plain beer guzzlers, Games abound: a chess board for four players, a variety of dart games, life-size puzzles of Playboy bunnies (yet, withal, nothing porno), and many, many gag gifts. There are some you aren't so sure about — like the golfer's crotch hook "guaranteed to keep your head down during swing."

A hammock, "for two", Mort emphasizes, swings over what must be the finest collection of leathern decanters this side of Spain. Intermingled with them are varying styles of steins and mugs. Flying in the breezes created by A MAN'S WORLD constantly moving door is "the incredible Jalbert Parafoil" soft kite of revolutionary design.

Laughter bursts from the spitoon corner. A young lady has just been informed by a woman of senior years, that "no, dearie, it's not a flower pot, it's a receptacle of expectoration!" A typical incident in the MAN'S WORLD 10 to 6 world that began 10 years ago when Mort and his partners Roger Warren and Ted Klinck first got together. Give them or manager Mrs. Rita Purtell a call at 332-2527. Better yet drop by any day for a laugh.

Everything But Whirling Dervishes Haunt Tam's Persian Rug Mecca

You won't find Whirling Dervishes at REZAIAN PERSIAN RUG CO. in Mill Valley — you will discover a Sindbad character in Taghi Rexaian, who creates the aura of Arabian Nights with dazzling, authentic Persian rugs that have just one drawback: they won't fly.

Kashan's, Naim's, Tabriz's, Qom's — it's fantasy that swirls in tonguetwisting, 1001-year-old patterns handwoven into Taghi's 2,500 piece rug collection. All are genuine imports from the storied atmosphere of Iran (Persia), where Taghi's parents live and relentlessly track down Iran's most exquisite products for transport to his Tam Junction hideaway.

Each wool or silk pile masterpiece (in sizes 1 X 1 to 14 X 22) takes an average of one year to complete by craftsmen handknotting individual threads — "The reason why they take so long to produce, and why they can last for centuries," Taghi explains, None of his rugs are machine-made.

Besides offering quality, diversity, and legendary beauty, Taghi has a guarantee as solid and lasting as his rugs — for a lifetime! Except in cases of malicious damage, he will replace any carpet at full value. But, he says, nobody has returned one yet, and for a simple reason: "Rugs of this quality appreciate with age. People are amazed. The more they use these the more they are worth." He shows by example a 100 year old piece costing more today than when first loomed.

It doesn't take Ali Baba wealth to put Bagdad magic on the floors or walls of anyone's home. Taghi is a bargainer who claims he has the lowest prices in the Bay Area. "I'll beat any price," he says. Prices range from $50 to $25,000.

Persian rug artistry first awed the Western world centuries ago, when European ambassadors returned with carpet gifts from Tamerlane's Court at Samarkand. Today, the trek for jewels of the Far East is a short hop — to REZAIAN PERSIAN RUG CO., 256 Shoreline Hwy. in Mill Valley (383-5733). It's a rug Mecca cooperatively run by Taghi, his wife, Mary, and a host of family members.

Those throwaway pieces of cardboard that come inside new shirts and those that have been professionally laundered are excellent for this purpose. Some persons use masking tape, but this can be an annoyance because, if it isn't done perfectly, paint imperfections will be seen when the tape is removed.

SHOULD A LITTLE paint get on the glass despite all your efforts to prevent it, and should you fail to wipe it off instantly, wait until it is completely dry, then scrape it off with a single-edge razor blade.

HOMES PAGE

With the standard double-hung windows, it is especially important that the parts of the windows be painted in a certain sequence.

Before touching a brush to a window, unscrew any hardware attached to it. This may be a slight annoyance, but trying to paint close to the metal without getting paint on it can be even more vexsome.

THE FIRST STEP is to raise the lower sash and lower the upper sash. Paint the inside edge of the upper meeting rail, then the top of that rail, then a couple of inches up the muntins, the wooden strips dividing the glass, assuming there are muntins. Next, lower the bottom sash and raise the upper sash, the opposite of what you did previously, only this time leave a fraction of an inch leeway so that each sash has a little clearance. Paint all exposed surfaces.

The window sill, frame and surrounding trim are done last.

After the paint has dried overnight, carefully move the sashes up and down a couple of times. This will prevent future sticking.

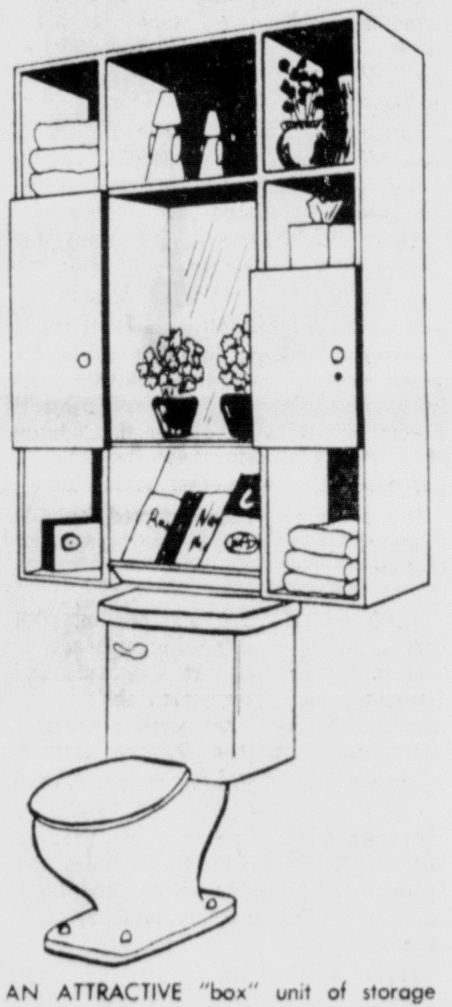
BATH BONUS



AN ATTRACTIVE "box" unit of storage shelves can be built of one-by-eight-inch or one-by-10-inch boards of western pine and installed above the watercloset in the bathroom. Two shelves and two vertical boards divide it into compartments, one of which can be fitted with a lockable door to keep medicines safely from small children. The storage unit can be fastened directly to the wall. Thus the center part of the bottom shelf should be removable to allow easy access to the watercloset for repairs. What you have done is to put wall space too often wasted to very good use. Furthermore, you have made a handsome addition to the decor of the bathroom. It's a relatively simple project for the weekend home handyman. And an inexpensive one that can produce professional results with a little care. The added value such touches give to a home at resale time is no insignificant matter.

HERE'S YOUR ANSWER

By ANDY LANG

Q. — I intend to put up aluminum gutters in a month or two. I think I have a pretty good idea of how it is done, but do not know how many strap hangers to use. How is this determined?

A. — The strap hangers should be installed every two or three feet or somewhere between. Be sure you use aluminum hangers and not some other kind of metal.

Q. — During a storm, a large tree in our paved backyard was bent slightly, causing the concrete several feet away to crack and break. All the breaks are in a single slab that is rather large and probably much too heavy to lift. What's the best way to remove the slab before I begin work on repaving the area?

A. — Use a mason's chisel and a heavy-duty hammer. Insert the chisel in one of the cracks and pound away until the concrete comes loose. Do the same thing in other gaps until, instead of having one large slab, you have a lot of smaller pieces that can be lifted and taken away. Should there be a piece left too heavy to lift, break it up with the chisel and hammer. Wear safety glasses or some kind of goggles when doing work of this kind.

Q. — Our living room has wallpaper on it. My wife wants me to put up pine paneling. Can it be applied right over the wallpaper?

A. — To do the job right, you'll have to put up furring strips, attaching them to the wall studs. The panels are then attached to the furring strips. The wallpaper won't interfere with the installation.

Q. — What's the difference between white shellac and clear shellac.

A. — None. What is usually called white shellac is actually clear shellac. It's transparent, but like all so-called clear finishes, it tinges the wood a bit.

Q. — In cutting molding, I never seem to cut the ends right so that they meet exactly like the corners of a picture frame. Is there some knack to this?

A. — Buy yourself a miter box, which is relatively inexpensive. There are slots in the box which will permit corner cuts to be made at exactly the right angle.

Q. — The finish in one part of our living room floor has worn off. The original finish is rather dull. Can I patch the worn area with varnish or shellac?

A. — It sounds as though a penentrating floor sealer was used when the floor was finished. Varnish or shellac will produce a glossy surface that will stand out from the rest of the floor. Try a penetrating floor finish to get a reasonable match.

The 'Antiquing' Of Furniture

By GEORGE MONTGOMERY

Authentic antiques, and furniture treated to look like antiques, are not, of course, the same thing.

But many find they can furnish their homes with a few fine, true antique pieces, and fill in around these with new or renovated furniture of more modern vintage that has been "antiqued" or made to look worn.

It's a popular do-it-yourself hobby.

There are two ways of doing it. The easy way is with paint or other finishing material.

The real fun is in a process known as distressing. This means physically abusing the piece to make it look old and used.

But before you start distressing I suggest you examine the real thing. Study an antique of the same type. Observe the scars and wear patterns so you can reproduce them realistically and please be selective in the pieces you distress.

You certainly would not distress a table planned for a formal dining room. Save the technique for furniture normally subject to physical abuse, such as an old cobbler's bench, perhaps a desk, a coffee table, or even a child's bureau.

Now for the fun. One way to distress furniture is to lay a tire chain on the wood surface and hammer it. This dents the wood. Or beat the wood with a burlap bag filled with chains. You also can make scars with a hammer.

Realistic wear marks can be made by rolling and pounding a rough stone over the surface. You can get an interesting antique finish by scorching the wood with a torch, then scoring the surface along the grain with a stiff wire brush. The uneveness of early sawed lumber can be produced on a new wood by sanding with a disk sander — first across the grain, then with it.

The distressed piece, of course, must be finished. It requires sanding, sealing and the finish coats. The last step is to produce just the final sheen you want. You can follow standard procedures on this part of the job and I suggest that you finish all off with a coat of enriched wax that will protect your finish and bring out the luster of rubbed-in wax — without rubbing.

An Inside Look at Village Fair—Part I

Giants Beware In Elfish Kitchenland

COOK SMART, on the mezzanine of Village Fair in Sausalito, is a kitchenware fairyland so jampacked with uniqueness that it is more suited for nimble elves than for clumsy giants like myself. My first COOK SMART experience was musical. I played the scale with my head on brilliant, European copperware strung from the ceiling like tropical fruits ripe for plucking. I overreacted with a plunge into a huge selection of coffeemakers by Norelco, and espresso pots that kindled memories of Paris.

No harm done, but I was surrounded by decorator cannisters (in metal, plastic, glass, and ceramic), by boggling assortments of Trident (and sharp!) Knives from Germany, and by precariously hung, imported cookie cutters. I needed a guide or keeper, and found both in Mrs. Helen Belsey, twinkle-eyed manager of COOK SMART. She led me into softer climes — the linen nook.

Mrs. Helen Belsey

"You'll be safe here," she said, "among the largest selection of linen tablecloths, napkins, and aprons in town. People from such places as Chicago and Tulsa are amazed at our selection." With trepidation, I followed Helen past a ticking wall of decor clocks and was tempted to fondle her sizeable collection of pewter, except she had something more fascinating to show: Armetale kitchen items by Wilton. Armetale has an eerie quality that comes from its blend of 10 different metals cast in sand.

"No time!" she cautioned, and sped me past shelves of mugs in various shapes and sizes; past a managerie of cookie jar pigs, seals, chipmunks, owls, cats, and frogs; and right into a section enchantingly littered with wine racks of metal and fine wood. Naturally, I stumbled over one into a counter filled with plastic and fiber-woven placemats, including PIMPERNEL sets, recreating famous art scenes.

Despite my bumblings, I was graciously invited back anytime between 10 and 6, although I seem to recall a whispered comment as I exited: "Sure hope THAT ONE gives us a warning call at 332-2527 next time he plans a visit!"

Everything But Whirling Dervishes Haunt Tam's Persian Rug Mecca

You won't find Whirling Dervishes at REZAIAN PERSIAN RUG CO. in Mill Valley — you will discover a Sindbad character in Taghi Rexaian, who creates the aura of Arabian Nights with dazzling, authentic Persian rugs that have just one drawback: they won't fly.

Kashan's, Naim's, Tabriz's, Qom's — it's fantasy that swirls in tonguetwisting, 1001-year-old patterns handwoven into Taghi's 2,500 piece rug collection. All are genuine imports from the storied atmosphere of Iran (Persia), where Taghi's parents live and relentlessly track down Iran's most exquisite products for transport to his Tam Junction hideaway.

Each wool or silk pile masterpiece (in sizes 1 X 1 to 14 X 22) takes an average of one year to complete by craftsmen handknotting individual threads — "The reason why they take so long to produce, and why they can last for centuries," Taghi explains. None of his rugs are machine-made.

Besides offering quality, diversity, and legendary beauty, Taghi has a guarantee as solid and lasting as his rugs — for a lifetime! Except in cases of malicious damage, he will replace any carpet at full value. But, he says, nobody has returned one yet, and for a simple reason: "Rugs of this quality appreciate with age. People are amazed. The more they use these the more they are worth." He shows by example a 100 year old piece costing more today than when first loomed.

It doesn't take Ali Baba wealth to put Bagdad magic on the floors or walls of anyone's home. Taghi is a bargainer who claims he has the lowest prices in the Bay Area. "I'll beat any price," he says. Prices range from $50 to $25,000.

Persian rug artistry first awed the Western world centuries ago, when European ambassadors returned with carpet gifts from Tamerlane's Court at Samarkand. Today, the trek for jewels of the Far East is a short hop — to REZAIAN PERSIAN RUG CO., 256 Shoreline Hwy. in Mill Valley (383-5733). It's a rug Mecca cooperatively run by Taghi, his wife, Mary, and a host of family members.

Chauvinism Rules In A Man's World

W.C. Fields glares chauvinistically down at all intruders to the top-floor niche of Village Fair that is definitely A MAN'S WORLD.

Field's immortal phizzog and caustic witticisms (emblazoned on hanging 3 X 5 foot grass mats) symbolize the MAN'S WORLD collection of strictly-male items ranging from the practical to the bizarre; from French Birth Control kits (guillotines) to a complete line of Swiss Army knives. In short, everything weird and useful to fit gaps in a real man's world.

Yet, claims co-owner Mort McMichael, most shoppers at A MAN'S WORLD are women! "They come in looking for unusual gifts to please husbands and male acquaintances who are tired of getting the same old tie, wallet and cologne presents (all of which Mort stocks). We sell everything imaginable, but we mostly deal in laughter."

Wacky items stud every corner, counter and shelf of A MAN'S WORLD. Things like moustache mugs (you'll laugh when you see them), electric nose cleaners, and thirty types of witty, wooden signs for golfers, skiers, and just plain beer guzzlers. Games abound: a chess board for four players, a variety of dart games, life-size puzzles of Playboy bunnies (yet, withal, nothing porno), and many, many gag gifts. There are some you aren't so sure about — like the golfer's crotch hook "guaranteed to keep your head down during swing."

A hammock, "for two", Mort emphasizes, swings over what must be the finest collection of leathern decanters this side of Spain. Intermingled with them are varying styles of steins and mugs. Flying in the breezes created by A MAN'S WORLD constantly moving door is "the incredible Jalbert Parafoil" soft kite of revolutionary design.

Laughter bursts from the spitoon corner. A young lady has just been informed by a woman of senior years, that "no, dearie, it's not a flower pot, it's a receptacle of expectoration!" A typical incident in the MAN'S WORLD 10 to 6 world that began 10 years ago when Mort and his partners Roger Warren and Ted Klinck first got together. Give them or manager Mrs. Rita Purtell a call at 332-2527. Better yet drop by any day for a laugh.

RHODA BECOMES SALLY

Valerie Harper Shifts Gears From TV To A Broadway Role

By WILLIAM GLOVER

NEW YORK (AP) — Valerie Harper is temporarily changing from Rhoda Morgenstern, TV's all American Jewish bachelor girl, to Sally Kramer, Jewish stage wife in domestic crisis.

The casting might suggest that the actress is succumbing to an ethnic role rut. Nonsense, comes the swift reply.

"They're not at all alike — Rhoda is from the Bronx, Sally from the lower East Side. And when I'm away from Rhoda, I don't do anything like Rhoda. My talk has a flavor of New York, but certainly not the Bronx."

HAVING SETTLED that to her own satisfaction, the lady of dark tresses and green eyes recalls a public life that began with an appearance as a snowflake at age 5 in an interschool pageant and crested through four seasons as the breezy chum on Mary Tyler Moore's network serial.

Miss Harper vanishes in early March from that show, to resurface in mid-September in her own CBS situation-comedy, naturally entitled "Rhoda."

During the interim, she comes to Broadway as Sally Kramer in "Thieves," a marital caprice by Herb Gardner, best remembered for "A Thousand Clowns." Directed by Michael Bennett and costarring Richard Mulligan, the production opens March 21 at the Broadhurst.

"MY MANAGER set this up for a change of pace during the TV hiatus," Miss Harper explains. "Now I love the play so much I already worry about leaving in June."

The TV cameras start taping in July.

Before becoming a video personality who draws a lot of fan mail but who doesn't "think a lot about my image," Miss Harper scored a string of stage credits.

"I don't expect any problems in terms of being heard," is her answer to the difference between performing in a mike-studded studio and projecting in a large auditorium.

AFTER THE USUAL apprentice tribulations of work as a telephone canvasser and hat-check girl, she progressed on the now-dimming Great White Way from three musicals, "Take Me Along," "Wildcat" and "Subways Are for Sleeping" into the improvisations of "Story Theater" and the dramatic rigors of "Something Different."

The Harper dream was originally of ballerina fame.

"I always used to dance around the house," Valerie recalls from the period of recurrent family travel. She was born in Suffern, N.Y., a suburb of the metropolis. Her father, Howard Harper, was a sales supervisor for an electrical supply firm.

The family was Catholic and Miss Harper went to parochial schools. She says she's no longer as enthusiastic about religion.

BY AGE 6 she was in dancing school. While still in high school in Jersey City, where her parents, older sister and younger brother finally settled, Valerie joined the corps de ballet at Radio City Music Hall.

"I don't want to say I'm moody, though I used to be," Miss Harper says. "I think everybody passes through moodiness. For me it was like a late adolescence. I danced through my teens. I never dated. No proms. Nothing."

On Friday nights at the movies with girl friends she tried cigarettes. She doesn't smoke now or drink.

During her first Broadway chorus job, a friend suggested drama lessons "and that opened up a whole area I realized I wanted to get into."

"THE FUN OF being an actor is you can be someone else without being insane," she says.

"I'd like to do a lot of different things, but I really got lucky with Rhoda." The role that changed her life resulted from a routine audition call.

"It has meant working steadily instead of scrabbling around. Rejection is a usual part of this business. Steady work has got to do something to the psyche. I find myself growing in self-esteem and strength."

Her husband of nine years, actor-writer Dick Schaal, "says I'm happier, freer, calmer now than I've ever been in our life together. I thought it was advancing years at first, but it's being able to act."

MISS HARPER doesn't claim to have yet attained the ninth circle of temperamental Nirvana, however — "The game is far from over." Questions about age stir instant edginess, and she's highly protective about the feminist cause.

"I'm not an activist — I'm sitting with you, arent' I?" she replies when women's lib comes up in the conversation.

Asked about year of birth, she fends with: "You wouldn't ask me that if I was a man." Told that would probably be unnecessary because the date would already be on public record, she says: "I don't believe that." An educated guess, based on cross-reference fragments, puts her at about 36.

AS FOR amancipation: "Sisterhood is getting more powerful. I hope brotherhood is, too. We should all get back to humanhood, that's the most important. No, no, that's not philosophy. You asked, I answered, that's all. If you want shorter answers, ask shorter questions."

She doesn't mind that "there are millions out there who never watch television. I never did until I was on it."

Getting back to Rhoda, Miss Harper feels that the role generated such wide audience responsiveness because "there are a lot of people, men, too, that live single and are happy. It's not like, 'I'm not married and I must die, my life is over.' That's the big message and you're not banged over the head with it."

As for any message of her own to fans, "I can't give anyone advice, they can write to Dear Abby. I know what works for me, and that is to get to like yourself."

TUNING IN THE TV

By JACK GAVER

"The American Film Institute Salute to James Cagney" will be a 90-minute special on CBS March 18, with Frank Sinatra as host. Many celebrities will participate.

Another echo of the Marilyn Monroe story, which has been accorded a lot of ink in recent months through various books and magazine articles about the late movie star, will be heard early in the 1974-75 television season when NBC broadcasts a two-hour version of playwright Arthur Miller's 1964 drama, "After the Fall." The play always has been regarded as being based on Miller's involvement with Miss Monroe as her third husband. The stars of the video version are Faye Dunaway, Christopher Plummer and Bibi Anderson.

"I don't want to say I'm moody, though I used to be," Miss Harper says. "I think everybody passes through moodiness. For me it was like a late adolescence. I danced through my teens. I never dated. No proms. Nothing."

On Friday nights at the movies with girl friends she tried cigarettes. She doesn't smoke now or drink.

During her first Broadway chorus job, a friend suggested drama lessons "and that opened up a whole area I realized I wanted to get into."

"THE FUN OF being an actor is you can be someone else without being insane," she says.

"I'd like to do a lot of different things, but I really got lucky with Rhoda." The role that changed her life resulted from a routine audition call.

"It has meant working steadily instead of scrabbling around. Rejection is a usual part of this business. Steady work has got to do something to the psyche. I find myself growing in self-esteem and strength."

Her husband of nine years, actor-writer Dick Schaal, "says I'm happier, freer, calmer now than I've ever been in our life together. I thought it was advancing years at first, but it's being able to act."

MISS HARPER doesn't claim to have yet attained the ninth circle of temperamental Nirvana, however — "The game is far from over." Questions about age stir instant edginess, and she's highly protective about the feminist cause.

"I'm not an activist — I'm sitting with you, arent' I?" she replies when women's lib comes up in the conversation.

Asked about year of birth, she fends with: "You wouldn't ask me that if I was a man." Told that would probably be unnecessary because the date would already be on public record, she says: "I don't believe that." An educated guess, based on cross-reference fragments, puts her at about 36.

AS FOR amancipation: "Sisterhood is getting more powerful. I hope brotherhood is, too. We should all get back to humanhood, that's the most important. No, no, that's not philosophy. You asked, I answered, that's all. If you want shorter answers, ask shorter questions."

She doesn't mind that "there are millions out there who never watch television. I never did until I was on it."

Getting back to Rhoda, Miss Harper feels that the role generated such wide audience responsiveness because "there are a lot of people, men, too, that live single and are happy. It's not like, 'I'm not married and I must die, my life is over.' That's the big message and you're not banged over the head with it."

As for any message of her own to fans, "I can't give anyone advice, they can write to Dear Abby. I know what works for me, and that is to get to like yourself."

JEAN SEBERG AND Kirk Douglas are the stars of the suspense movie, "Mousey," tonight at 8:30 o'clock on Channels 7 and 11.

TUNING IN THE TV

By JACK GAVER

"The American Film Institute Salute to James Cagney" will be a 90-minute special on CBS March 18, with Frank Sinatra as host. Many celebrities will participate.

Another echo of the Marilyn Monroe story, which has been accorded a lot of ink in recent months through various books and magazine articles about the late movie star, will be heard early in the 1974-75 television season when NBC broadcasts a two-hour version of playwright Arthur Miller's 1964 drama, "After the Fall." The play always has been regarded as being based on Miller's involvement with Miss Monroe as her third husband. The stars of the video version are Faye Dunaway, Christopher Plummer and Bibi Anderson.

Major Burns Is A Gliding Freak

Like the mythological Icarus, actor Larry Linville is building wings to fly. Unlike the Greek character whose wax wings melted in the heat of the sun, however, Linville's chances of success are considerable.

His wings, built of spruce and plywood and covered with fabric, will extend 32.8 feet when attached to the nine and a half foot pod of the glider now taking form in his Van Nuys, Calif., backyard.

LINVILLE, IN person, is the antithesis of stuffed-shirt surgeon Maj. Frank Burns, the character he plays on "M-A-S-H" (Saturdays, 8:30 p.m.) on the CBS Television Network. He has been an acknowledged gliding "freak" from the age of 12.

Once he saw a Baby Bowlus sailplane on exhibition at the state fair in his hometown of Sacramento, he was permanently hooked on the sport.

"I carried a lot of newspapers in those days, to earn money for flight lessons with a glider club," he recalls.

Taking time out from his hobby, he pursued an engineering course at the University of Colorado, but later resumed soaring while enrolled at the Royal Academy of Dramatic Arts in London. On weekends, Linville flew a British-built Slingsby from a field in Lasham, Hampshire County.

HIS CURRENT building project was conceived three years ago, in collaboration with Texan Al Backstrom, an FAA engineer. It is a "flying wing" craft with a vertical, but no horizontal, stabilizer.

"Our glider, the 'Super Plane,' will be the smallest, lightest, cheapest and easiest to build sailplane ever assembled," claims Linville.

Overall weight of the craft, including aluminum and steel fittings, is expected to be 220 pounds. Its cost is estimated at $500.

Linville's wife, Kate Greer, a former actress whose father is Will Greer of "The Waltons" on the CBS Network, is her husband's principal cheerleader. She is so enthusiastic that she intends to take flying lessons.

OPTIMISTICALLY, the "Super Plank" should take wing sometime this spring. If successful, the LB-1A, which was originally conceived as a pleasure project by its designers, could prove a moneymaker, with revenues from the sale of plans to would-be builders.

One of the Linvilles' close friends is William Conrad, star of the "Cannon" series, who is also a gliding enthusiast, and who often gets together with Larry to discuss the sport.

Of the TV character Major Burns, Linville says: "He's a jerk. I couldn't stand being in the same room with him."

Larry Linville, however, has none of Frank Burns' hang-ups.

Fish As Pets

Christine Belford, co-star of NBC-TV's "Banacek," has a large fish tank in her apartment with 17 varieties of tropical fish in it. "I love having pets that make no noise and don't have to be housebroken," she says.

They Lost The Roles, But Emerged Winners

Michael Landrum, who plays Larry Kirby, and Joan Copeland, who plays his mother-in-law, Monica Courtland, in NBC-TV's daytime series, "How to Survive a Marriage," are portraying characters for which they did not audition originally.

Neither of them is complaining since the roles they have are both more important than the ones they read for.

JEAN MARSH
As Rose in "Upstairs, Downstairs"

An Idea That Produced A Pub—And A Role

By JAY SHARBUTT

NEW YORK (AP) — Jean Marsh appeared puzzled when told it's almost impossible for unknown writers to sell a TV series idea because networks and producers fear plagiarism suits.

"Because they think somebody will have pinched the idea?" the London-born actress asked. "Funny. I didn't know about that at all."

It's just as well. Four years ago, she and another English actress, Eileen Atkins, had an idea for a TV series. It was her first such idea and they sold their script on the first try.

THE SERIES IS "Upstairs, Downstairs," a lively saga about the upper and lower classes in an Edwardian-era household. It proved a big hit when it first appeared on English commercial TV in 1971.

Thirteen episodes from the series — 26 in all have been made — currently are making the rounds on public TV in the United States. They're getting excellent reviews, to the delight of Miss Marsh, a slender woman in her 30s.

"Well, I wasn't surprised because on the first time around you don't know how difficult it is," she said in her soft, lilting accent. "It all happened very easily."

WHEN SHE AND Miss Atkins first conceived the master plan for "Upstairs, Downstairs," and put it on paper, they took the standard precaution of copyrighting the script. Then Miss Marsh shelled out a few coins to join the Writer's Guild in London.

The next problem, of course, was whom to see about getting the thing on the telly.

"We thought if we take it ourselves, with our names on it, girls, actresses, to a company, they'll think, 'Oh, those silly girls,' and it'll be read by a reader's reader," she said, referring to the lowest of the low in television's script departments.

"SO I SAID, let's take it to this man, John Whitney, with whom I'd worked the previous year and who I knew had a television production company.

"And when I told him about the idea on the telephone, he and his partner, John Hawkesworth (now the series' producer), liked it immediately.

"But the funny thing is that when they took it to London Weekend Television (a commercial station), the person who bought it was a woman."

But Miss Marsh, who appears in the series as Rose, the head parlor maid, said she isn't unhappy about her intermediaries. Although she and Miss Atkins only own 50 per cent of the show, "I'd rather have 50 per cent of something than 100 per cent of nothing at all."

AMONG OTHER things, the money has enabled the auburn-haired authoress to buy a home that the very thirsty might consider paradise. It's a converted pub just outside London at High Wycombe.

Prior to her first and biggest sale, she said she'd written poetry for her own amusement, but never tried to sell it.

"I'd always say, 'Oh, I'm an actress and that's that,'" she said. "But once I'd sold 'Upstairs, Downstairs,' I started to get commissions to do things in journalism."

SHE LAUGHED, then explained that this year she's doing articles for an English television magazine and a newspaper and has done a short story to be published in April.

Journalists often are a rowdy lot, ditto fiction writers. Is she certain she likes being in their ranks?

"I'd like to write more," she said without hesitation. "But I don't ever think I'll give up acting because I really think of myself as an actress. But writing feeds you as an actress enormously."

How so? "I had a very bad education," she said. "I come from a really very poor working-class family and my education stopped when I was quite young.

"I'm not uncomfortable about the use of language, but it's a department, writing is, I never thought I'd be able to do. So the confidence of having things published in newspaper actually feeds my confidence as an actress.

JEAN MARSH
As Rose in "Upstairs, Downstairs"

An Idea That Produced A Pub—And A Role

By JAY SHARBUTT

NEW YORK (AP) — Jean Marsh appeared puzzled when told it's almost impossible for unknown writers to sell a TV series idea because networks and producers fear plagiarism suits.

"Because they think somebody will have pinched the idea?" the London-born actress asked. "Funny. I didn't know about that at all."

It's just as well. Four years ago, she and another English actress, Eileen Atkins, had an idea for a TV series. It was her first such idea and they sold their script on the first try.

THE SERIES IS "Upstairs, Downstairs," a lively saga about the upper and lower classes in an Edwardian-era household. It proved a big hit when it first appeared on English commercial TV in 1971.

Thirteen episodes from the series — 26 in all have been made — currently are making the rounds on public TV in the United States. They're getting excellent reviews, to the delight of Miss Marsh, a slender woman in her 30s.

"Well, I wasn't surprised because on the first time around you don't know how difficult it is," she said in her soft, lilting accent. "It all happened very easily."

WHEN SHE AND Miss Atkins first conceived the master plan for "Upstairs, Downstairs," and put it on paper, they took the standard precaution of copyrighting the script. Then Miss Marsh shelled out a few coins to join the Writer's Guild in London.

The next problem, of course, was whom to see about getting the thing on the telly.

"We thought if we take it ourselves, with our names on it, girls, actresses, to a company, they'll think, 'Oh, those silly girls,' and it'll be read by a reader's reader," she said, referring to the lowest of the low in television's script departments.

"SO I SAID, let's take it to this man, John Whitney, with whom I'd worked the previous year and who I knew had a television production company.

"And when I told him about the idea on the telephone, he and his partner, John Hawkesworth (now the series' producer), liked it immediately.

"But the funny thing is that when they took it to London Weekend Television (a commercial station), the person who bought it was a woman."

But Miss Marsh, who appears in the series as Rose, the head parlor maid, said she isn't unhappy about her intermediaries. Although she and Miss Atkins only own 50 per cent of the show, "I'd rather have 50 per cent of something than 100 per cent of nothing at all."

AMONG OTHER things, the money has enabled the auburn-haired authoress to buy a home that the very thirsty might consider paradise. It's a converted pub just outside London at High Wycombe.

Prior to her first and biggest sale, she said she'd written poetry for her own amusement, but never tried to sell it.

"I'd always say, 'Oh, I'm an actress and that's that,' " she said. "But once I'd sold 'Upstairs, Downstairs,' I started to get commissions to do things in journalism."

SHE LAUGHED, then explained that this year she's doing articles for an English television magazine and a newspaper and has done a short story to be published in April.

Journalists often are a rowdy lot, ditto fiction writers. Is she certain she likes being in their ranks?

"I'd like to write more," she said without hesitation. "But I don't ever think I'll give up acting because I really think of myself as an actress. But writing feeds you as an actress enormously."

How so? "I had a very bad education," she said. "I come from a really very poor working-class family and my education stopped when I was quite young.

"I'm not uncomfortable about the use of language, but it's a department, writing is, I never thought I'd be able to do. So the confidence of having things published in newspaper actually feeds my confidence as an actress.

Size RE25AP22—Grade A Tube. Use your BankAmericard or Mastercharge.

SALE PRICE INCLUDES:
1. Pick-up, delivery and installation. 2. 2-Year warranty on picture tube. Not pro-rated. 3. 1-Year warranty on all parts and labor we install. 4. Complete TV check-up: replace all necessary tubes and parts; clean the tuner; complete color alignment; complete dynamic and static convergence.

HOW TO TELL IF YOU NEED A NEW PICTURE TUBE:

Please call us with any questions you may have about your television set. We'll be happy to help you.

HUGH DOWNS is the off-camera narrator for "The World You Never See," a special that, through the use of photomicrography, offers viewers an introduction to marvels of nature that normally cannot be seen with the naked eye. The British-made documentary will be colorcast Thursday at 8 p.m. on Channels 3 and 4.

Saga Of Archimedes, Unprincipled Gator

For Colin Willock, the author, writing about nature means learning about nature first-hand. This has created a problem only once.

"We had to get rid of Archimedes," he said. Archimedes was the pet alligator at the Willock home until its jaws became too active.

The slim, soft-spoken Englishman has written the script for "The World You Never See," the Survival Anglia Ltd. special focusing on the marvels of nature not normally seen by the naked eye. It will be colorcast on the NBC Television Network Thursday at 8 p.m.

The special covers a variety of subjects via photomicrography used by the Oxford Scientific Film Unit. Among the sights to be seen are the spawning of trout, studies of bees in flight and the feeding habits of mosquitos.

Willock works closely with the Survival Anglia film units and often goes on location with them. Shows for which he has prepared scripts include the Emmy Award winner, "The Incredible Flight of the Snow Geese," first colorcast on NBC-TV.

Said Willock: "I have to be with nature, to live with it. For example, we've had animals around the house for years. All kinds — horses, dogs, ferrets, snakes . . . and Archimedes. He was a fine creature but he developed that unpleasant habit of going around and biting people." Willock said his wife recently came to the conclusion that Archimedes had to go — to the London Zoo as a gift.

Recently one of the Willock children visited the zoo and said he had seen Archimedes.

"How did you know it was Archimedes?", Willock asked.

"Because he was the only alligator biting the keeper."

Henry Fonda Has TV Role

Henry Fonda will star in the title role of "O. W. Street," an ABC Television Network "Movie of the Week" which will serve as the pilot film for a projected series, it has been announced by Michael D. Eisner, Vice President of prime time program development and production, ABC Entertainment.

In the title role, Fonda plays a sheriff from the Texas Panhandle who teaches criminology at the local university.

Richard Anderson, Recently Divorced, Strives To Adjust

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Richard Anderson, who co-stars in the new adventure series, "The Six Million Dollar Man," lives in Beverly Hills, but his three daughters live with their mother in Aspen, Colo., and that fact makes life hard for him.

Anderson is a slender, handsome, sensitive man who has been divorced about a year and is still trying to make the adjustments as best he can.

Some days it doesn't hurt as much as others.

RICHARD ANDERSON
In touch with daughters

ANDERSON LIVES alone in a three-bedroom home in Benedict Canyon, a sylvan setting with deer, coyotes, big trees and night creatures. He bought the house a dozen years ago.

It was the only home his daughters knew until the divorce broke up the family.

But he talks to his girls on the telephone every week. They are Ashley, 11; Brooke, 9; and Deva, 7. They also get to see their daddy every week on the ABC-TV series. He wishes the set worked both ways.

THE HOUSE IS simply but elegantly furnished. Since becoming a single man again Anderson has tried to enliven the place with some masculine touches — like a pair of snow shoes added to the fireplace.

"I've stayed in the house because it's still the homestead to the girls," Anderson says. "It gives them a sense of having roots. When they visit me this summer everything will be as it was when they left."

A woman comes in to clean the house twice a week — the same cleaning lady he hired before the girls were born.

ANDERSON IS beginning to learn how to cook with indifferent success. He usually settles for broiling a steak and throwing a salad together. From time to time he eats at a restaurant. Usually alone.

He hasn't started dating other women. He has no explanation for this except to say he isn't ready to become emotionally involved with anyone.

Instead, Anderson devotes himself to sports activities. He plays tennis whenever he can — frequently at the Beverly Hills hotel court with a professional or at the homes of friends who have courts of their own.

HE ALSO HAS become a ski buff. He visited the girls in Aspen earlier this winter and skied with them. He prefers cross-country skiing to the downhill variety because it allows him to see more of the majesty of the countryside.

Anderson entered only one pro-am tournament, mixing celebrities and top tennis professionals. That was back in 1963 when he beat Charlton Heston for the championship. He quit while he was ahead.

The actor has two automobiles. One is a slick Jaguar sports model, circa 1963. The other is a small imported van which he drives to work every day on various locations around Los Angeles.

HE KEEPS A bicycle attacked to the van and is free to pedal around for exercise when he is not in a scene.

On weekends Anderson jumps in his car and heads for the beach to go sailing with friends, plays tennis or drives out into the country. He also enjoys movies and the theater.

At homes he takes time out to sit at a typewriter in his study working at a screen play he hopes one day to complete.

Not infrequently in the evening Anderson sits alone reading. His library is large and represents a wide range of books from history to biography to novels and plays.

THE BRIGHTEST element in his home is a spectacular collection of colorful posters from various parts of Europe. He wrote to several tourist bureaus asking if they would send him the large decorative posters. His collection includes beauties from Italy, Portugal, Spain and France.

"I've put them up since the girls were last here," he says. "When they come to visit, they'll be delighted."

Telethon Set For Cable TV

TWO SIBERIAN TIGER cubs are part of the documentary special entitled "The Big Cats" on Channels 7 and 11 Friday at 8 p.m. The telecast, third of four National Geographic Society specials on ABC television this season, will look into the plight of the world's big cats who are dwindling rapidly toward extinction.

'Today' Takes Close Look At Family's Life In Cuba

How an ordinary Cuban family lives at the present time is explored in a filmed report by NBC News' Latin American correspondent Tom Streithorst that the NBC Network's "Today" program will carry Friday in its 8:30 a.m. segment.

"Fidel Castro is what people know of Cuba," Streithorst says, "but we haven't seen how the ordinary Cuban lives. That's what we try to show in this film."

The cameras zero in on Leon Isidro Sanchez, a welder, and his wife and their two daughters, 7 and 11.

They visit the family in their home, a two-bedroom apartment in the Alamar district of Havana; go with the father to work; go with the mother to her job in a school cafeteria; go with one daughter to school; go shopping .

Pakistan Launches An All-Out TV Attack On Illiteracy

RAWALPINDI (AP) — Pakistan Television Corporation later this year will launch an ambitious scheme aimed at overcoming one of the major drawbacks to progress in the country — illiteracy.

Those invovled agree that the problem is immense. At present about 55 million out of Pakistan's total population of 65 million are illiterate. Every year the number of people who can neither read nor write grows by one million.

Aslam Azhar, managing director of Pakistan television, says: "There can be no question but that the campaign for adult education is the most clear, urgent and yet neglected need in Pakistan. Indeed it is here that education is engaged in a race against disaster."

IT IS TO COMBAT this situation and, it is hoped, to eliminate illiteracy over the next ten years in conjunction with the education authorities that Pakistan TV is introducing educational television.

Because the cost of a television set —about $400 — is far beyond the reach of all but a small minority in the country, educational TV will revolve around community viewing centers.

The first 200 of these are to be set up in the Punjab province in the spring. Each center will be staffed with teachers trained to make use of the literacy programs that will be transmitted by PTV.

THE LITERACY course lasts for six months. At the end of that time, if there is a 100 per cent success rate, the 200 centers in the Punjab will graduate 12,000 men and the same number of women able to read and write, and with a basic grasp of elementary mathematics.

By spreading the centers all over the country and assuming the necessary teachers are available, those involved say that in theory it should be possible to make 41 million people literate in nine or ten years.

However they agree thqt a 100 per cent success rate is unlikely. The course that is to be put out on television is based on one pioneered by educational authorities in the Punjab, which has graduated 100,000 people over the past 10 years.

WHEN THE course was first started, says Vincent Davis, one of those closely involved in it, there was a 48 per cent dropout rate. But since 1968 this has leveled off at about 12 per cent.

Educational TV in Pakistan will not be concerned just with making people literate. Over the long term, says Aslam Azhar, it is intended to develop a comprehensive series of courses "designed to cover all aspects of the common man's day-to-day life and its problems and opportunities."

Subjects to be covered include nutrition and health, agriculture, family planning, education and upbringing of children, and tackling urban problems.

A START ON these specialized courses will be made probably towards the end of this year in Pakistan's largest city, Karachi, where 500 community viewing centers are envisaged. The course over six weeks will deal with child care. There will be separate programs for men and women because those responsible feel there is a basic psychological difference between the sexes in their attitude towards children.

The fathers' course will be aimed at suggesting how they can help their children have a more successful life. That for women will be directed more at the sentiments of mother-love on the basis of "you want your child to be happy."

Educational TV will also launch a crash program to introduce primary school teachers to a revised curriculum being introduced by the Pakistan government in 1974-75.

Martin Sheen Now Proud Of Profession

Martin Sheen says that until a couple of years ago he was somewhat embarrassed about being an actor.

"It's funny, but in a lot of ways you're made to feel like a second-class citizen. It's very hard for an actor to get a credit card, for instance," he says, "and yet actors have very high credit ratings. But I've lost that feeling. Right now, I'm very proud to be an actor.

TWO SIBERIAN TIGER cubs are part of the documentary special entitled "The Big Cats" on Channels 7 and 11 Friday at 8 p.m. The telecast, third of four National Geographic Society specials on ABC television this season, will look into the plight of the world's big cats who are dwindling rapidly toward extinction.

'Today' Takes Close Look At Family's Life In Cuba

How an ordinary Cuban family lives at the present time is explored in a filmed report by NBC News' Latin American correspondent Tom Streithorst that the NBC Network's "Today" program will carry Friday in its 8:30 a.m. segment.

"Fidel Castro is what people know of Cuba," Streithorst says, "but we haven't seen how the ordinary Cuban lives. That's what we try to show in this film."

The cameras zero in on Leon Isidro Sanchez, a welder, and his wife and their two daughters, 7 and 11.

They visit the family in their home, a two-bedroom apartment in the Alamar district of Havana; go with the father to work; go with the mother to her job in a school cafeteria; go with one daughter to school; go shopping.

Pakistan Launches An All-Out TV Attack On Illiteracy

RAWALPINDI (AP) — Pakistan Television Corporation later this year will launch an ambitious scheme aimed at overcoming one of the major drawbacks to progress in the country — illiteracy.

Those invovled agree that the problem is immense. At present about 55 million out of Pakistan's total population of 65 million are illiterate. Every year the number of people who can neither read nor write grows by one million.

Aslam Azhar, managing director of Pakistan television, says: "There can be no question but that the campaign for adult education is the most clear, urgent and yet neglected need in Pakistan. Indeed it is here that education is engaged in a race against disaster."

IT IS TO COMBAT this situation and, it is hoped, to eliminate illiteracy over the next ten years in conjunction with the education authorities that Pakistan TV is introducing educational television.

Because the cost of a television set —about $400 — is far beyond the reach of all but a small minority in the country, educational TV will revolve around community viewing centers.

The first 200 of these are to be set up in the Punjab province in the spring. Each center will be staffed with teachers trained to make use of the literacy programs that will be transmitted by PTV.

THE LITERACY course lasts for six months. At the end of that time, if there is a 100 per cent success rate, the 200 centers in the Punjab will graduate 12,000 men and the same number of women able to read and write, and with a basic grasp of elementary mathematics.

By spreading the centers all over the country and assuming the necessary teachers are available, those involved say that in theory it should be possible to make 41 million people literate in nine or ten years.

However they agree thqt a 100 per cent success rate is unlikely. The course that is to be put out on television is based on one pioneered by educational authorities in the Punjab, which has graduated 100,000 people over the past 10 years.

WHEN THE course was first started, says Vincent Davis, one of those closely involved in it, there was a 48 per cent dropout rate. But since 1968 this has leveled off at about 12 per cent.

Educational TV in Pakistan will not be concerned just with making people literate. Over the long term, says Aslam Azhar, it is intended to develop a comprehensive series of courses "designed to cover all aspects of the common man's day-to-day life and its problems and opportunities."

Subjects to be covered include nutrition and health, agriculture, family planning, education and upbringing of children, and tackling urban problems.

A START ON these specialized courses will be made probably towards the end of this year in Pakistan's largest city, Karachi, where 500 community viewing centers are envisaged. The course over six weeks will deal with child care. There will be separate programs for men and women because those responsible feel there is a basic psychological difference between the sexes in their attitude towards children.

The fathers' course will be aimed at suggesting how they can help their children have a more successful life. That for women will be directed more at the sentiments of mother-love on the basis of "you want your child to be happy."

Educational TV will also launch a crash program to introduce primary school teachers to a revised curriculum being introduced by the Pakistan government in 1974-75.

Martin Sheen Now Proud Of Profession

Martin Sheen says that until a couple of years ago he was somewhat embarrassed about being an actor.

"It's funny, but in a lot of ways you're made to feel like a second-class citizen. It's very hard for an actor to get a credit card, for instance," he says, "and yet actors have very high credit ratings. But I've lost that feeling. Right now, I'm very proud to be an actor.

FOR TRISH VAN DEVERE, starring in "The Day of the Dolphin"

You and your husband, George C. Scott, are both actors. Do you have any theories about what makes for powerful acting?—J. L., Dubuque, Iowa

● Let me tell you a story about Sophie the dachshund, who got so excited about the fish in our living room aquarium that everyone in the room had to stop and watch her. And all she was doing was looking at fish! There was so much electric energy in her concentration that all the dynamics in the room came down to Sophie, on a stool, staring at the fish. I think George believes completely in the energy of concentration—or, as Sir Laurence Olivier told him, "We know it's all in the eyes, don't we, George?" My own favorite actor is Edward G. Robinson. Just look at his eyes. He never made a mistake.

FOR SEN. HAROLD HUGHES (D–Iowa)

I understand you've decided to retire from the U.S. Senate to become a lay preacher and follow God's calling. Where will you get your income?—A. S. Kravitz, Brooklyn, N.Y.

● I will be financially supported by the Fellowship Foundation of Washington. I do not know now where my work will take me. At the end of my term, I will take some time to think and pray and wait on the Lord for guidance.

FOR CELESTE HOLM, actress

How do you feel about nudity in films?—F. A. Langdon, Fishkill, N.Y.

● I'm reminded of what a great French actor once told me. "Nakedness," he said, "is what theater is all about. Every good actor stands naked before the audience. But to communicate your nakedness by actually taking off your clothes —that's too much of a costume!"

FOR KEN CURTIS, Festus on "Gunsmoke"

Do you have a Western background?—Mrs. Gladys Greene, Elmira, N.Y.

● Yes, I have a background so close to my role on "Gunsmoke" that some people think I've made it up. I was born in Lamar, Colo., near the Kansas border and Dodge City. My father was a homesteader and sheriff at Las Animas, Colo. We lived in the jail. My mother cooked for the prisoners and I helped out as the jail keeper.

FOR ROB REINER of "All in the Family"

Do you think that Mike of "All in the Family" is basically right in his political views?—Chuck Goff, Caldwell, Idaho

● Mike has a lot to learn. His knowledge seems restricted to what he learns in college. Many of his ideas are valid, yet many are just as narrow-minded as his conservative father-in-law's. Beyond that, anything I said about his being right or wrong would be unfair to the character.

FOR HOWARD COSELL

How did you begin sportscasting? And what is the most thrilling event you've covered?—H.D. Harris, Dickson, Tenn.

● I started broadcasting five-minute weekend radio shows back in 1956, while I was still a practicing attorney in New York City. Probably the most thrilling event I've been associated with was the second Floyd Patterson-Ingemar Johannsson heavyweight-championship fight at New York's Polo Grounds on June 20, 1960. Patterson, by scoring the most compelling knockout I have ever seen, became the first man in history ever to regain the heavyweight title.

FOR MIKE CONNORS of "Mannix"

Why did you change your name when you became an actor? —L. G., Rifle, Colo.

● My name was Krekor Ohanian (that's Armenian). People were forever asking me, "What's that you said?" and "How do you spell that?" I didn't mind it until I became an actor. I had an agent who advised me to change my name on the grounds that a guy whose name was so hard to pronounce would have a tough time becoming a star. I think it was logical advice.

FOR FLORENCE HENDERSON

I read that you are the mother of four children, yet you look so young! How do you manage?—B. O. C., Yuma, Ariz.

● Actually I think I look younger now than I did when I was young. That's probably because I was brought up in a serious Catholic family, and at 17 I was very serious-minded. I had a lot of adjustments to make. I had to learn who I was. I don't have fewer worries or responsibilities now—but I do like myself better, and I'm interested in everything.

FOR LARRY LITTLE of the Miami Dolphins

Who is the toughest lineman you ever played against?—Richard Dickerman, Mankato, Minn.

● That's hard to say. But Joe Greene of Pittsburgh is certainly one of the toughest.

FOR LIBERACE

Are your hands insured, and if so, for how much?—Gary Cunningham, Jr., Kokomo, Ind.

● I'm often asked this question. The truth is, my whole body is insured. I think it would be foolish to have just my hands insured. Some entertainers have had various parts of their bodies insured and have gotten some good publicity from it. Personally, I don't see what good willing hands would be to a body that was too weak to sit at the piano.

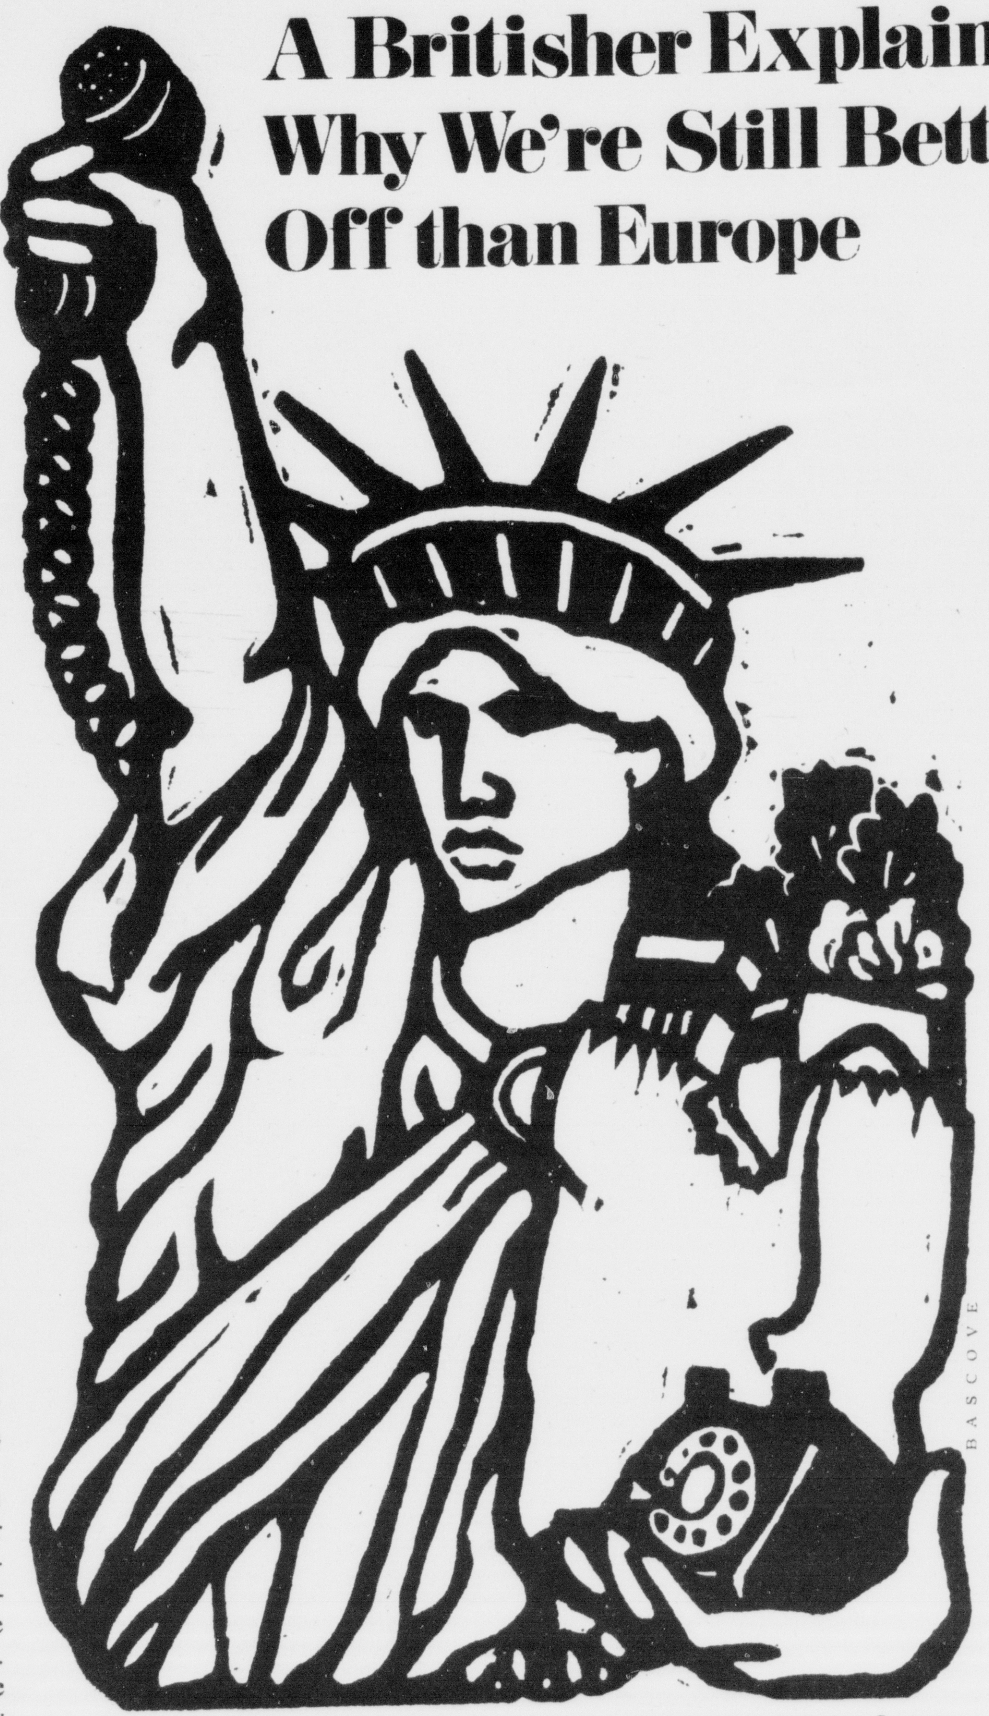
America in the "Age of Shortages":

A Britisher Explains Why We're Still Better Off than Europe

By Geoffrey Bocca, British Observer of the American Scene



Woodcut for Family Weekly by Barbara Bascove

I was walking along the Avenue Foch in Paris with a French friend recently when he put his hand on my arm and indicated some glass domes, like giant space helmets in the street. "Look," he said proudly, "pay telephones!" I had, of course, seen pay telephones before, but my emotion was as great as his, not because of the avant-garde design, but because they were there at all.

The French are just beginning to get around to what they call "taxiphones," and there are still only a handful scattered around the city.

Even today, the general method of making a telephone call in Paris is to go into a bar, chat about the weather with the suspicious lady at the cash register, buy a token (at excessive price) and then locate the telephone, which is usually in a broom closet or the toilet. The Italian and Spanish systems are worse, and in London I make a mental note as to where pay telephones can be found; otherwise one can search indefinitely. For some reason, the telephone box brings out the worst in the normally tidy and law-abiding British, and they use it for newspaper disposal, vandalism and worse. A familiar sight in London, wherever there happens to be a row of boxes, is that of a furious and frustrated citizen going into and out of one box after the other, seeking one that (a) works and (b) is not reeking of some foul odor.

Self-criticism in the U.S. has reached such a pitch that it is perhaps timely for a European visitor to remind Americans that for everyday comfort and convenience in living, America is still the only country that has found the secret. No European who has ever lived in the United States ever passes a single day without missing some aspect or other of American life.

One might think it difficult, for example, to fall in love with an ordinary brown paper bag, but if one has lived for a long time in Europe, it is—very easy. The brown paper bag—like the telephone that works or the garage attendant who checks one's tires (at least he used to; and I presume, after the present gasoline crisis, he will again)—is what makes people sigh with relief when they return to the United States from a sojourn in Europe.

In the U.S., the brown paper shopping bag is still an essential part of service in all shops. Not in Europe. It never has been. A sight familiar to all specialists in American behaviorism, but to no one else, occurs whenever an American housewife in Britain comes face to face with the girl at the cash desk of a supermarket.

Each waits for the other to make the first move. The salesgirl waits for the housewife to put her purchases in her shopping basket or whatever receptacle she has brought along for the purpose. The American housewife, who has not brought along anything at all, waits for the girl to take a brown paper bag from under the counter and pack the purchases for her. Snag; there is no brown paper bag, and, furthermore, if it was suggested to the salesgirl that she pack the customer's purchases, she would go on strike.

The stalemate is eventually broken, usually by the girl, who says vaguely, "Want a bag, or something?" The American, taken aback at such a question, can only nod. The girl looks around, scratching her head, eventually finds a couple of thin bags suitable only for holding jelly beans, and which promptly rip on the cutting edge of a tea bag, and the housewife staggers away, dropping things as she goes.

That is not the end of the story. As everyone knows, in America these bags are not discarded. They are folded, kept, and serve admirably for garbage disposal. Europeans, having no such bags, dump their garbage directly into the trash cans (which the English call "dustbins" and the French poubelles, after a certain Monsieur Poubelle who invented the trash can and has a street named after him in Paris). The European housewife, periodically scouring away the malodorous agglutinations from inside her trash can, is a phenomenon that scarcely exists in the U.S.

Nowhere in Europe is there a satisfactory equivalent of the drugstore lunch counter, where one can sit, have a quick cup of coffee and a doughnut, and go. The coffee served in the bars in France and Italy is not the same thing at all, nor is the atmosphere. And as for coffee in England, forget it. English

The coffee served in the bars in France and Italy is not the same thing at all, nor is the atmosphere. And as for coffee in England, forget it. English coffee is often as good as American coffee, and the brands are usually the same, but the British have never established a behavior pattern in drinking coffee in public, and the cafés that serve coffee are usually too squalid in American eyes to make the pause worthwhile. It is better to wait until one gets home.

Americans who complain about their repairmen do not know their luck. Of course they charge the world, but they come when summoned, do the job, and go. In England there is a well-known vaudeville song about the plumber who came to call. He did the plumbing but blew the fuses, so the electrician came to call. The electrician mended the wires, but tripped over the TV set, so the TV man came to call. And so on, and so on.

But even this fantasy is better than the reality is. An American living in London finally cornered his local plumber in a pub. The plumber had been promising to repair the leaking toilet cistern for weeks. The American bought a couple of beers, and the plumber, taking out his appointments diary, said, "You are getting close, guvnor. You are now 26th on my list." In the meantime the toilet continued to leak.

France is even worse. In the village in the south of France where I live, most of the inhabitants are either electricians, plumbers, masons, gardeners, house painters and the like. But a repair job may take six months to get done. The reason is that most of them work on jobs for neighboring factories and have little interest in the local housewife or householder. Being neighbors, however, they are also friends. Being friends, they always say politely, "Demain" ("Tomorrow"). But demain never comes. My longest wait–for the plumber–lasted two years.

Americans may not believe this, but parking a car is generally easier in the big American cities than it is in London, Paris or Rome, and parking restrictions are usually more logical. In East Berlin, Germanic thoroughness has reached a ludicrous level. There, as in most Communist cities, traffic is infinitely lighter than in the West, and cars are far fewer. But the conscientious German authorities have placed "No Parking" signs everywhere, in anticipation of the day–sometime in the distant, golden future–when they may expect to have a parking problem. Wishful thinking could scarcely go further in the wrong direction.

One can continue indefinitely. Admittedly one can also continue indefinitely in the opposite direction. As one lurches in the rusty cattle boxes that New York City calls its subway, one pines for the scarlet-and-cream glories of the London Underground or the silent Paris Metro trains hissing along on rubber tires. Watching American cops swagger about, chewing gum – with their guns, billies and handcuffs swinging from their belts – makes one miss London and its straight-backed, unarmed bobbies, or Paris and its elegant flics with their capes.

The American virtues carry their own backlash. The ease and comforts of American living, for example, have produced the uniquely American phenomenon of the "fat boy." The "fat boy," guzzling ice cream, popcorn and chocolate bars, is such a familiar sight that he has passed into American literature and the movies, unnoticed by Americans in the street. To European visitors, he is a tourist sight in himself. One can travel the length and breadth of Europe without seeing a "fat boy." And for "fat boy," read equally "fat girl."

But that is beside the point. Americans are spared many of the frustrations of everyday life, but because they have enjoyed these amenities all their lives, they do not know what they are. Those who have never traveled to Europe will probably be happy to believe me. Americans who have traveled, no matter how much they loved the great European capitals, will be obliged to agree. They say, "We like Europe in spite of the discomforts." Which is a different subject altogether. fw coffee is often as good as American coffee, and the brands are usually the same, but the British have never established a behavior pattern in drinking coffee in public, and the cafés that serve coffee are usually too squalid in American eyes to make the pause worthwhile. It is better to wait until one gets home.

Americans who complain about their repairmen do not know their luck. Of course they charge the world, but they come when summoned, do the job, and go. In England there is a well-known vaudeville song about the plumber who came to call. He did the plumbing but blew the fuses, so the electrician came to call. The electrician mended the wires, but tripped over the TV set, so the TV man came to call. And so on, and so on.

But even this fantasy is better than the reality is. An American living in London finally cornered his local plumber in a pub. The plumber had been promising to repair the leaking toilet cistern for weeks. The American bought a couple of beers, and the plumber, taking out his appointments diary, said, "You are getting close, guvnor. You are now 26th on my list." In the meantime the toilet continued to leak.

France is even worse. In the village in the south of France where I live, most of the inhabitants are either electricians, plumbers, masons, gardeners, house painters and the like. But a repair job may take six months to get done. The reason is that most of them work on jobs for neighboring factories and have little interest in the local housewife or householder. Being neighbors, however, they are also friends. Being friends, they always say politely, "Demain" ("Tomorrow"). But demain never comes. My longest wait–for the plumber–lasted two years.

Americans may not believe this, but parking a car is generally easier in the big American cities than it is in London, Paris or Rome, and parking restrictions are usually more logical. In East Berlin, Germanic thoroughness has reached a ludicrous level. There, as in most Communist cities, traffic is infinitely lighter than in the West, and cars are far fewer. But the conscientious German authorities have placed "No Parking" signs everywhere, in anticipation of the day–sometime in the distant, golden future–when they may expect to have a parking problem. Wear this Zolatron Simulated Diamond Ring 30 Days Free Without Risk to the readers of this magazine

FULL ONE CARAT SIMULATED DIAMOND

SET IN A GENUINE TIFFANY SILVER RING

10.

ZOLATRON LIFETIME WARRANTY

ZOLATRON is guaranteed for life against all defects. If found faulty during buyer's lifetime, it will be replaced or purchase price refunded. Lifetime Warranty is in addition to 30 Day Money Back Guarantee.

Zolatron must convince everybody that it's a genuine diamond...or you pay nothing!

The 30 Day Free Trial Certificate shown below gives you the right to wear and enjoy — this ZOLATRON simulated diamond ring for an entire month—without risk

You are invited to wear it and judge for yourself

Wear it! Prove it yourself — in the privacy of your own home. Marvel at the pure, dazzling color and fiery sparkle! Show it to your best friends. Watch their eyes pop out with excitement! After all they have no way to suspect it isn't the genuine article — a natural diamond worth a little fortune.

ZOLATRON is completely different from those phony looking paste or plastic stones glued into cheap costume jewelry. It's distinctly different and you can prove it yourself. The tough, grueling test that follows will convince you: (A) Drop this dense, man-made stone into a cup of acetone nail polish remover. See for yourself how it comes out undamaged! (B) Count each facet. It has a total of 58 genuine facets — the same number found in a natural diamond! (C) Observe how brightly a ZOLATRON shimmers even in moonlight! (D) Examine it carefully under a high-powered, illuminated magnifier. You won't find a single speck, crack or bubble.

Yes! We dare you to compare its fiery sparkle with costly diamonds! Not even one diamond out of a hundred extracted from the fabulous Kimberly Mines can beat it for color, clarity or flawless perfection. That's why even an expert might confuse it for a regular Kimberly diamond.

Get yours for less than 1% the value of a costly diamond!

Believe it or not — now you can get a ONE CARAT ZOLATRON — set in a fabulous Lady's Solitaire Ring for only $10. This is a LIMITED OFFER subject to the terms and conditions printed below. The average retail price for a one carat diamond gem is $1250.00 or more. Yet the resemblance between a diamond and a ZOLATRON is so striking that only an expert can really tell them apart!

Don't let the low price confuse you!

Just because ZOLATRON costs only $10, please don't confuse it for a cheap, dull fake. This man-made stone is not another plastic or paste jewel. ZOLATRON is one of the world's most dazzling and convincing simulations. Produced by Master Craftsmen, then mounted by hand into a genuine, Sterling Silver Ring. When you see it, you'll agree — it's truly an impressive ring of rare beauty and elegance! And each ring is made to give you a lifetime of wear and enjoyment. Of course, ZOLATRON is different from natural diamonds, but the most pleasant difference of all is that you can own a ZOLATRON for only $10—not $1250.00.

Even Millionaires Wear Simulated Diamonds

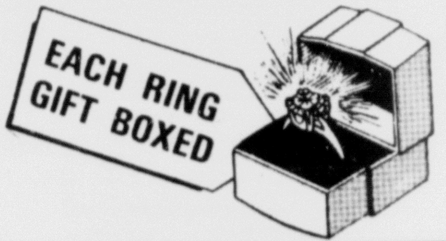
Countless thousands of wealthy persons wear simulated diamonds but they keep the secret to themselves. Those "genuine" diamonds your friends are wearing may not be so genuine after all! ZOLATRONS are so unbelievably real looking that they may even fool certain experts at times! That's why so many rich persons, movie and TV actors and actresses, wear simulations. They impress their friends and fans — while avoiding the risk of burglary or loss. Of course, wealthy people do own natural diamonds. But they often lock them up in a bank safety box!

IMPORTANT: FOLLOW THESE SPECIAL TERMS AND CONDITIONS

(1) LIMIT — only 1 ring per reader at this low price. (2) Orders accepted for USA and Canada only. (3) Sold only by mail — none thru stores. (4) Guaranteed for life. Refund or replacement if ever defective. (5) No COD's or phone orders. (6) NOTICE: this is a strictly LIMITED OFFER. Orders received after stocks are sold out will be returned to senders promptly.

The Gift of a Lifetime for Someone Special!

ZOLATRONS last a lifetime and so do precious diamonds. ZOLATRONS make thrilling, exciting gifts for special occasions: an anniversary . . . an engagement . . . or just a delightful surprise for that someone special! She'll never know this ZOLATRON isn't a genuine diamond — unless you tell her! Best of all, this Gift of Happiness costs only $10, while supplies are available. By choosing a ZOLATRON ring you save plenty for a down payment on a car, or even stocks or real estate. So many smart people have switched to simulated diamonds! Now you too can switch at very small cost! You take no risk at all. Our 2 guarantees give you full protection. Please read full details below on how you can obtain this amazing ring for only $10.



30 DAY FREE EXAMINATION AND MONEY BACK GUARANTEE

Wear and enjoy ZOLATRON Simulated Diamond Ring without risk or obligation — for a full month. Test and compare it. Show to best friends. If anyone can detect it from a genuine diamond, simply return and get your money back — INSTANTLY!

People Quiz

By John E. Gibson

Quiz: Why Some Say "Ouch" and Others Don't

True or False: How much a pain actually hurts is apt to depend on whether you're rich or poor. (See number 2)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. How much pain you can take is likely to depend on your personality type.

2. How much a pain actually hurts is apt to depend on whether you're rich or poor.

3. Pain that is "imagined," or that has no physical cause, can be discomforting, but doesn't hurt nearly as much as real physical pain.

4. Many people have a need to feel pain.

5. A large percentage of aches and pains disappear when a person's mood changes.

6. A person's ability to tolerate pain is related to his capacity to think and reason.

ANSWERS

1. True. In studies at Columbia University, students' tolerance to pain was compared with personality tests. It was found that those who had a low pain tolerance differed markedly in personality from those who were more able to take aches and pains in their stride. Those more tolerant of pain were inclined to lead lives characterized by exciting pursuits, to seek activities that gave promise of thrills, fun or stimulating action. On the other hand, those who scored low on the scale of pain tolerance "generally tended to avoid high-stimulus situations and to seek out low ones."

2. True—as evidenced by the findings of a psychological study which showed that "persons from upper socioeconomic levels manifested significantly less sensitivity to pain than persons of similar ages from lower income levels." It's pointed out that: Adult sensitivity to pain-producing stimuli is influenced by childhood experience. Presumably the less-advantaged child is subject to appreciably more trauma than the more protected child.

3. False. As one leading authority on the dynamics of pain points out: "The supposed differentiations between real and 'psychological' pain are invalid. All pain is real." In other words, a person whose medical examination shows him to be perfectly healthy may be actually suffering as much pain as if he were a candidate for the emergency ward. To illustrate the principle another way: A doorbell makes the same sound whether it's activated by a short circuit or by having someone push it.

4. True. These are the chronic complainers, and their pain may be with or without some physical cause. Says Dr. J. Blair Pace of the University of California at Irvine: "Headache, backache, neck and shoulder pain may be a socially acceptable defense against situations in the patient's life that are far more impossible to bear than the pain."

5. True. One investigation, for example, cites research showing that "approximately 35 percent of more than 1,000 patients in 15 studies reported marked relief from pathological pain after receiving a placebo [a pill without medicine in it]." Conversely, it has been found that concern over the well-being of any part of the body tends to make any pain hurt much worse, and may even produce extreme discomfort in an area that did not hurt before.

6. True—according to the findings of a team of investigators who divided subjects into two groups, based on their ability to tolerate pain. All were then given a standard intelligence test. The group that was the most tolerant of pain made significantly higher scores. fw

To illustrate the principle another way: A doorbell makes the same sound whether it's activated by a short circuit or by having someone push it.

4. True. These are the chronic complainers, and their pain may be with or without some physical cause. Says Dr. J. Blair Pace of the University of California at Irvine: "Headache, backache, neck and shoulder pain may be a socially acceptable defense against situations in the patient's life that are far more impossible to bear than the pain."

5. True. One investigation, for example, cites research showing that "approximately 35 percent of more than 1,000 patients in 15 studies reported marked relief from pathological pain after receiving a placebo [a pill without medicine in it]." Conversely, it has been found that concern over the well-being of any part of the body tends to make any pain hurt much worse, and may even produce extreme discomfort in an area that did not hurt before.

6. True—according to the findings of a team of investigators who divided subjects into two groups, based on their ability to tolerate pain. All were then given a standard intelligence test. The group that was the most tolerant of pain made significantly higher scores. fw

Santa Fe Tamale Pie

Preheat oven to 350°F. In skillet cook 1 lb. ground beef with 1 cup chopped onion until meat loses its pink color. Drain off excess fat if necessary. Add 1 cup chopped green pepper or 2 tablespoons bell-pepper flakes, 1 can (1 lb.) tomatoes, 1 can (8¾ ozs.) corn, drained, ½ cup chili sauce or ketchup, 3 teaspoons chili powder and ¾ teaspoon salt. Bring to boiling; reduce heat and simmer uncovered 15 minutes.

Make mush: Stir 1 cup cornmeal and 1 teaspoon salt into 1 cup cold water. Gradually pour into 3 cups boiling water, stirring constantly. Cook until thick and bubbly, stirring frequently. Spread about ⅔ of the mush in the bottom of an ungreased 2-qt. casserole. Pour beef filling over. Spoon remaining mush around edges of casserole. Bake for 20 minutes.

Tuna Dinners: With Rice Or Macaroni

Tuna with Mustard Fruit Sauce is a quick-and-easy version of a more complicated Italian recipe using the famous Mostarda di Frutta.

TUNA WITH MUSTARD FRUIT SAUCE

Drain 2 tablespoons oil from 2 cans (6½- or 7-oz. size) tuna in vegetable oil into large skillet. Heat. In hot oil sauté ½ cup sliced onion and 1 cup sliced celery, stirring, for 2 minutes. Combine 4½ teaspoons cornstarch in 2 cup measure with syrup from 1 can (9 ozs.) sliced pineapple. Add 2 tablespoons vinegar, 5 teaspoons prepared mustard and enough water to make 1½ cups. Add to skillet with tuna, pineapple, 1 can (8 ozs.) peaches, drained, 1 can (8 ozs.) apricot halves, drained, ⅔ cup sweet-pickle chunks, 1 teaspoon salt and dash pepper. Stir constantly over medium heat until sauce thickens and comes to a boil. Garnish with a few Maraschino cherries if desired. Serve over hot cooked rice. Makes 6 servings

SPAGHETTI WITH CLAMS

In medium saucepan sauté ½ cup sliced celery or onion and 1 large clove garlic, minced, in 2 tablespoons olive or vegetable oil about 5 minutes. Stir in 1 can (15 ozs.) spaghetti in tomato sauce with cheese, 1 can (about 8 ozs.) minced clams, drained, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1 tablespoon dry white wine and 1 tablespoon chopped parsley or 1 teaspoon parsley flakes. Heat to boiling; stir occasionally. Makes 4 servings

SEAFOOD RICE 'N' EASY

Preheat oven to 400°F. In 7x11x2-inch greased glass baking pan combine ⅓ cup dry white wine, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, ½ cup water, ½ teaspoon salt and 1½ cups quick-cooking rice. Place 1 lb. fresh or frozen thawed fish fillets over rice mixture. Top with 1 can (10¾ ozs.) cream of shrimp soup, undiluted. Sprinkle with ½ teaspoon lemon pepper, 1 tablespoon fine bread crumbs and 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted. Cover with foil and bake for 25-30 minutes, until fish is opaque and flakes easily. Makes 4 servings

HOT TUNA-OLIVE SALAD

In 1½- or 2-qt. casserole, combine 3 cups cooked elbow macaroni, ½ cup sliced pimiento-stuffed olives, 2 cans (6½- or 7-oz. size) tuna, drained, 1 can (6 ozs.) sliced mushrooms, drained, ½ cup chopped celery, ½ cup salted peanuts, cashews or walnuts, 1 cup mayonnaise, ½ teaspoon pepper, ¼ teaspoon salt and ¼ teaspoon crushed oregano leaves. Sprinkle with 1 cup shredded Cheddar cheese. Bake in preheated 350°F. oven for 25 minutes, or until heated through. (Or skip the baking, refrigerate and serve cold.) Makes 6 servings

*Cook ¾ cup elbow macaroni as package label directs for 3 cups cooked.

SKILLET YAM DINNER

In medium skillet brown 1 can (12 ozs.) luncheon meat, sliced, in 1½ tablespoons hot butter or margarine. Add 1 can (8 ozs.) pineapple chunks, undrained, 1 can (1 lb. 8 ozs.) yams in syrup, drained, 1 tablespoon instant minced onion, ½ teaspoon sugar, ¼ teaspoon ground cinnamon and dash ground black pepper. Mix gently. Cook covered over medium heat 10 minutes. Blend ¼ cup cold water with 2 teaspoons cornstarch smoothly. Stir into skillet. Heat, stirring, until mixture boils. Makes 4 servings

GIANT FISH CAKE

Preheat oven to 400°F. Prepare 5 cups instant mashed potatoes according to package directions. Season with ¼ teaspoon ground black pepper, 2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese, 2 tablespoons instant minced onion and 1 tablespoon parsley flakes. Stir in 1 can (15 ozs.) mackerel, well-drained and flaked. Heavily grease a 9-inch-round cake pan. Sprinkle with 3 tablespoons fine dry bread crumbs and 1 teaspoon seasoned salt. Spoon in potato mixture

Tips 'n' Topics

CELERY: IT ALWAYS COMES THROUGH IN THE CRUNCH!

Celery, the fresh, crisp green vegetable we take for granted in our markets year-round, has an interesting background. Back in the old days, no one ever ate it for fun—only as a medicine. Its taste was too bitter. Then, early in the 17th century, some unknown gardener in Italy or southern France transplanted some wild celery to a choice garden spot where the soil was deep, rich and moist. To his amazement, the ribs and leaves from these plants had a much more pleasing taste.

The largest celery-producing area is in central Florida, part of the half-million acres of farmland reclaimed from the Everglades. There, the rich, black soil is abundant and holds the moisture celery needs to grow crisp and sweet. But even here, celery is a slow, tricky grower, requiring 125 days from seed to harvest.

There is still a certain amount of confusion in some cookbooks, which call for "stalks" of celery when they mean "ribs." A "stalk," or "bunch," is the whole plant. The "rib" is only part of the stalk.

The weight watcher can eat celery freely, since a whole cup of diced celery has a mere 18 calories. Celery's at its market peak now through May.

In 3-qt. saucepan, combine 4 cups peeled, thinly sliced potatoes, 3 cups thinly sliced onions, 3 cups water, 2 small bay leaves and 2 teaspoons salt. Cover and bring to boiling. Reduce heat and simmer until potatoes are tender (15-20 minutes). Stir in 1½ cups milk and 2 tablespoons butter or margarine; heat. Add few twists freshly ground black pepper to taste. Sprinkle nutmeg on top if desired. Serve with crackers. To step up nutrition, beat in ½ cup instant dry skim milk powder with milk.

Makes about 2 qts.

CHICKEN 'N' CHEESE CRUSTY SQUARES

Prepare 1 pkg. (13¾ ozs.) hot-roll mix according to package directions, using ¾ cup water and 1 egg. Let dough rise about 20 minutes. Preheat oven to 450°F. Grease a 15½ x 10½ x 1-inch pan. Spread dough evenly in pan with fingers. Spread 2 cans (4¾-oz. size) chicken or deviled-ham spread over dough. Sprinkle with 1½ cups grated Muenster, mozzarella or Cheddar cheese. Dot surface with ½ cup sliced green olives and sprinkle with 1 teaspoon paprika. Bake on shelf in lower half of oven 12-15 minutes, or until crust is golden brown. Cut into large squares, serve hot. (If cut into small squares, may be used as a hot hors d'oeuvre.)

Makes 6-8 servings,
50 appetizer servings

SLOPPY HANS SANDWICHES

In saucepan combine ½ lb. cubed pasteurized process cheese spread, 2 tablespoons milk, 2 cups finely chopped bologna, 1 tablespoon instant minced onion or freeze-dried chives and 1 teaspoon prepared mustard. Split 4-6 hamburger buns and toast lightly under broiler. Watch closely so they don't over-brown! Spoon sauce over bottom halves of buns; replace tops. Serve with a crisp salad and glasses of cold milk or iced tea. Makes 4-6 servings

CELERY: IT ALWAYS COMES THROUGH IN THE CRUNCH!

Celery, the fresh, crisp green vegetable we take for granted in our markets year-round, has an interesting background. Back in the old days, no one ever ate it for fun—only as a medicine. Its taste was too bitter. Then, early in the 17th century, some unknown gardener in Italy or southern France transplanted some wild celery to a choice garden spot where the soil was deep, rich and moist. To his amazement, the ribs and leaves from these plants had a much more pleasing taste.

The largest celery-producing area is in central Florida, part of the half-million acres of farmland reclaimed from the Everglades. There, the rich, black soil is abundant and holds the moisture celery needs to grow crisp and sweet. But even here, celery is a slow, tricky grower, requiring 125 days from seed to harvest.

There is still a certain amount of confusion in some cookbooks, which call for "stalks" of celery when they mean "ribs." A "stalk," or "bunch," is the whole plant. The "rib" is only part of the stalk.

The weight watcher can eat celery freely, since a whole cup of diced celery has a mere 18 calories. Celery's at its market peak now through May.

The Superstove™ Range from GE with the oven that cooks three ways.

It's a microwave oven. So you can thaw frozen foods in minutes and speed-cook up to 4 times faster than you're used to. For instance, 3 baked potatoes in only 15 minutes.

Or it's a microwave oven and a conventional oven both at once. So you can speed-cook and brown at the same time. A 10 lb. turkey, frozen solid, will be roasted and browned in about an hour and a half. Or a frozen apple pie in 17 to 19 minutes.

It's an oven that does so many fabulous things, you'll want to use it more than you've ever used an oven before. For things like warming gravy right in the gravy boat. (The gravy gets hot, the gravy boat doesn't.)

Yet all this cooking splendor isn't all that expensive. With the Versatronic Oven System, you get both microwave cooking and conventional cooking plus self-cleaning for $599.95*

And you get something else only General Electric offers: Customer Care... Service Everywhere.™ This is our pledge: that wherever you are or go in the U.S.A., you'll find a qualified GE serviceman nearby. Should you ever need him.

Many have heard of it. Some have eaten it. Few have prepared it. But Chicken Cordon Bleu is a gourmet favorite that is delicious and relatively easy to make.

A "Show-Off" Dish—Chicken Cordon Bleu

CHICKEN CORDON BLEU

4 (2 lbs.) whole chicken breasts, boned
½ cup (¼ lb.) finely chopped cooked ham
1½ cups (¼ lb.) grated Gruyère or Swiss cheese
1 small clove garlic, minced
Few twists freshly ground black pepper
¼ cup plus 2 tablespoons dry white wine or sherry
¼ teaspoon thyme leaves
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup unsifted all-purpose flour
3 eggs
¼ cup plus 1 tablespoon vegetable oil
1½ cups fine dry bread crumbs
6 tablespoons butter or margarine
Parsley or watercress
Chicken-Wine Sauce (recipe below)

1. Cut whole chicken breasts in half. In small bowl combine ham, Gruyère, garlic, a few twists freshly ground pepper, 2 tablespoons wine, thyme and ½ teaspoon salt.

2. Use this ham-cheese mixture to stuff each breast in the pocket made by boning. Refrigerate covered for at least 30 minutes.

3. On sheet of waxed paper, combine flour, remaining salt and a few twists freshly ground black pepper.

4. Beat eggs with 1 tablespoon vegetable oil.

5. Coat each chicken breast in flour mixture, dip in egg mixture, then in bread crumbs, coating well.

6. In large skillet heat butter and ¼ cup vegetable oil until butter foams. Brown chicken breasts slowly on each side. Turn heat down to low and continue cooking uncovered about 20-25 minutes longer, until cooked through.

7. Or if you wish, brown in skillet as in Step 6, but finish cooking uncovered in preheated 375°F. oven for 20 minutes.

8. Add ¼ cup white wine to skillet. Bring to boiling, stirring to loosen all brown particles in pan (deglaze). Continue boiling till liquid is reduced by half. Pour over chicken breasts. Garnish with a bouquet of parsley or watercress.

Makes 8 servings

CHICKEN-WINE SAUCE

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 tablespoons flour
1½ cups chicken broth
¼ cup heavy cream
1 tablespoon dry white wine
Dash white pepper

1. In small saucepan, heat butter until melted. Stir in flour smoothly.

2. Add chicken broth all at once and cook, stirring with wire whisk until smooth and bubbly.

3. Stir in cream, wine and pepper. Heat; season to taste, adding salt and additional pepper if desired. Makes 2 cups

TIPS FOR SUCCESSFUL CORDON BLEU

1. Timing is important. For tastiest, tenderest results, don't overcook chicken.

2. Do cook until chicken feels firm to the "finger" test—that is, when pressed with your finger.

3. If you must wait to serve, cover loosely with foil and keep warm.

Mashed Potatoes Underlie "Florentine" Recipe

HASTY BEAN 'N' FRANK BISCUIT BAKE

Preheat oven to 400°F. In medium saucepan, combine 1 lb. sliced frankfurters, 1 can (1 lb.) pork and beans, ½ cup ketchup, ½ cup chopped onion or 2 tablespoons instant minced onion and 3 tablespoons brown sugar. Bring to boiling, simmer 5 minutes. Spoon hot bean mixture into ungreased 8- or 9-inch baking pan. Separate 1 can (8 ozs.) refrigerated biscuit dough into 10 biscuits; arrange over hot bean mixture. Sprinkle with 1 cup shredded Cheddar cheese. Bake 20-25 minutes, or until biscuits are golden brown and no longer doughy. Makes 5-6 servings

EGGS 'N' POTATOES FLORENTINE

Preheat oven to 375° F. Prepare 3 cups instant mashed potatoes according to package directions. Spread mashed potatoes in greased 9-inch pie pan, making a "crust." Cook 2 pkgs. (10-oz. size) frozen chopped spinach for 5 minutes, according to package directions. Drain well. Season spinach with 2 tablespoons butter or margarine. Spoon into potato crust. With back of spoon make four depressions and break an egg into each. Sprinkle each egg with 1 teaspoon grated Parmesan cheese. Bake 20-25 minutes, or until eggs are as set as desired. Makes 4 servings

CHEESE AND ASPARAGUS SANDWICH

Melt 1 lb. processed American cheese with 2 tablespoons milk in top of double boiler. Add 1 can (8 ozs.) tomatoes and green chilies; stir until blended. Toast 12 slices bread or 6 English muffins, split. Spread with 2 cans (4¾-oz. size) deviled ham. Heat 2 cans (15-oz. size) asparagus spears, drain well. Place 2 slices ham-spread toast on each plate. Top with asparagus spears. Spoon hot cheese sauce over each serving. Makes 6 servings

Saffola® will help lower his cholesterol.

Following the doctor's orders isn't always easy. So when he recommends a low saturated fat diet, it's nice to get some help.

Unlike the high-priced spread, Saffola (and, in fact, most margarines) contains no cholesterol.

But that's only the beginning. Saffola Margarine is made from safflower oil—lower in saturated fats, higher in polyunsaturates than corn oil. In conjunction with a low saturated fat diet, Saffola actually helps reduce the level of blood cholesterol.

It's reassuring to know that if your doctor recommends cutting down on saturated fats, you don't have to cut down on flavor.

Saffola tastes so much like the high-priced spread, chances are your family won't even notice the difference.

How about using the fresh piquancy of dillseed to add new flavor to your salad?

Tips 'n' Topics

DILL: SEED OR WEED?

We could all use a little lift just about now, so how about a new dressing for your favorite salad?

This recipe calls for whole dillseed, the seed of the herb plant, dill. The maximum flavor of dillseed is developed by "toasting" the seeds lightly in a small skillet for 5-10 minutes before using. A brief stay in a marinade or dressing also helps bring out the flavor.

Dillweed, the crushed leaves of the dill plant, releases flavor more quickly than the seed, but the flavor is milder. Dillweed enhances green salads, vegetables, fish and seafood sauces, egg salad, cottage cheese and, of course, thinly sliced cucumbers.

DILLY DRESSING

¼ cup lemon juice
1 teaspoon dillseed or dillweed
⅓ cup vegetable oil
¼ teaspoon sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon ground black pepper

1. Combine lemon juice and dillseed in small saucepan. Bring to boiling; reduce heat and simmer 5 minutes. Cool.

2. Combine all remaining ingredients in a jar; add lemon juice and dillseed mixture. Serve over sliced cucumbers, tomatoes, mixed salad greens, etc., shaking thoroughly before adding. Makes ⅔ cup

SYNTHETIC MILK?!

A team of professors at the University of Illinois has developed a pleasant-tasting nutritious drink that they say offers the protein "benefits of milk without the cost of the cow." It remains to be seen if the product can be developed as a milk substitute; at the moment, it is deficient in calcium. However, the product, made from soybeans, is still in the developmental stage, and will be used to make imitation "cheese," "yogurt," "ice cream," table spreads and frosted shakes.

Burt Bacharach Talks About Music, Racehorses and (First, Last and Always) Angie

"I like to play my music for Angie after it's done. She has a very good ear for it."

By Peer. J. Oppenheimer

The interview didn't start out too well. The night before, seemingly tired and nervous, Burt Bacharach had opened at Harrah's Club in Tahoe.

FAMILY WEEKLY: You seem awfully tired. What's wrong?

BURT: I had a tough day yesterday. A six-and-a-half-hour rehearsal, and two shows. That can get anybody down. Besides, I've worked hard the last couple of years. It took me a year and a half on "Lost Horizon," and when I did my TV show in London, I came down with the flu.

FW: Were you disappointed with the critics' reaction to "Lost Horizon"?

FW: Do you think they were wrong?

BURT: I think the picture was better than they said it was. But it seems that once you get a bad critique, each critic tries to outdo the guy before. Nobody gave credit to the attempt to make a picture completely in Hollywood and put people back to work.

FW: Don't you think any of the criticism was justified?

BURT: I didn't say that. I think it happened partly because the picture was ballyhooed so much. The whole attitude went something like "See here, public, this is THE picture you've been waiting for! You should be happy to see it!" I don't think that was right.

FW: What about your own score? Were you satisfied with it?

BURT: I think the score didn't work as well as it should.

FW: Is it true that you turned down "Love Story"?

When your child can't sit still, is it nervousness or is it Pin-Worms?

Fidgeting, distraction, fitful scratching of rectal itch—many people don't know these "nervous habits" can be caused by Pin-Worms. These almost invisible parasites are so common, medical authorities have said 1 out of 3 children examined, and many parents, may have Pin-Worms.

They can infect anyone—young or old, rich or poor. Worst of all, Pin-Worms are highly contagious, so they can spread from person to person, until the whole family is infected.

Fortunately, there is an easy-to-take medication called Jayne's® P-W® tablets that gets rid of Pin-Worms. Your pharmacist will tell you that Jayne's P-W tablets are specially formulated with an effective medical ingredient that drives Pin-Worms out of your system. Ask for Jayne's P-W tablets at your drug store.

BURT: It is. When I met with Bob [Paramount Production chief Robert Evans], he had his mind set on a certain kind of music. It wasn't a matter of whether it was good or bad. I simply never had a chance to think how I would feel about it. So I turned it down. But he was right. The music he chose worked, and I respect him for his opinion.

FW: Has Angie been able to help you with your work?

BURT: A great deal, particularly in the beginning. I like to play my music for her after it's done. She has a very good ear for it.

FW: Do you need time totally alone—even away from Angie?

BURT: I do. I go to Del Mar seven or eight weeks a year, though not always by myself. We own a house there that we bought two years ago. It's a great place to work, and a marvelous place to relax. Until we bought it, we used to go to Palm Springs for three or four days, and it was like a major move. Del Mar is a second home. I simply get into the car, drive there, and start another life.

FW: And Angie doesn't mind when you go by yourself?

BURT: At least she hasn't told me she does. Besides, when Nikki is in school [Burt's and Angie's six-year-old daughter Lea Nikki], Angie doesn't like to leave her on her own too long.

BURT: I do. I've liked racing since I was 11, when my father took me to a horse race for the first time. Ever since, I thought that if I ever made it, I wanted horses of my own.

FW: How are you doing?

BURT: I won my first race and I figured it was easy. Then I lost the next 43! I'm doing better than that now, but there is no way you can make money on racehorses. At least I can't.

FW: How does Angie feel about your racehorses?

BURT: She likes horses, but not as much as I do, and I figure that if it's an effort to see them run, it isn't worth her time.

BURT: A great deal.

FW: Do you set certain hours to do your composing?

BURT: No. I don't start at nine and work until six in the afternoon. Sometimes I work 32 hours in a row. Sometimes I get up at four and work until noon and then go play tennis. But then I have to tell myself not to have a drink with the guys, but go home and go back to work.

FW: How do you feel about Angie still working as an actress?

BURT: I think it's absolutely essential, and I'm all for it—and not just for her to keep busy. If Angie weren't such a good actress, I would prefer that she quit. But she's too good to stay away from the screen. Unfortunately, she doesn't seem to get parts that do her justice.

FW: What do you think is the best thing she's ever done?

"If Angie weren't such a good actress, I would prefer that she quit."

BURT: "Point Blank."

FW: She did a nude scene in the film. Did you mind?

BURT: Not at all. I thought she looked gorgeous!

FW: Is your daughter musically inclined?

BURT: She seemed to be a couple of years ago, and she tried the guitar and the violin. She has a pretty good ear. But now she's more interested in horses. Incidentally, she doesn't want to be called Nikki anymore. She's Lorne Greene now.

FW: What do you mean—she's Lorne Greene now?

BURT: Well, she's told us that from now on she's not a she but a he, and her name is Lorne Greene. Unless we call her that, she won't answer.

FW: So?

BURT: So we call her Lorne Greene.

FW: When you wrote the music for "Promises, Promises," producer David Merrick referred to you as "a new sex symbol." How did you feel about it?

BURT: I laughed. David's a card.

FW: How did Angie feel about it? And not just that, but when your fans fall all over you at concerts and personal appearances?

BURT: It doesn't bother her. At least, I don't think it does.

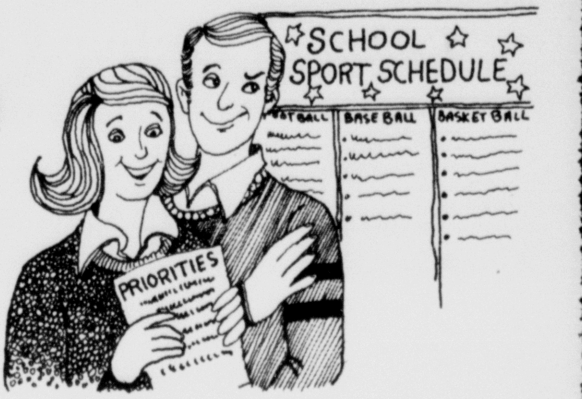
What Students Really Think About Sports



Some adults may be surprised to hear this, but when a nationwide group of high school senior boys was polled recently on 14 different things a high school should emphasize, the students ranked athletics last. What did the students feel was more important? They wanted to see more vocational skills taught to boys and girls who aren't interested in college. They wanted more programs to prepare them for family life as a spouse and parent. They asked for courses to improve students' social and psychological adjustment. They were even eager for more encouragement in traditional academic achievement! School, most of them felt, was more boring than it needed to be. Only six percent of the students found their schoolwork "exciting and stimulating." Even worse, only 30 percent thought the things they're learning in high school will be "very important" in their lives.

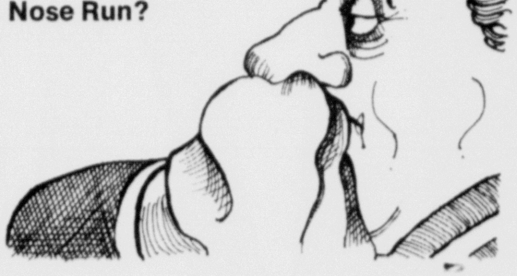
The Doctor Lets You In

What Makes Your Nose Run?



"Oh, this darn nose—what's making it run so much?" Ever said that while suffering from a cold? Well, it's a good question—what does make your nose run? Here's the answer: A cold is an infection. And when you have an infection or inflammation, all your tissues are "running"—i.e., secreting fluids. The fluid running from your nose is called mucus, a secretion containing, among other things, mucin (an "animal glue") and dead white cells that have been killed while fighting infection. When inflammation strikes, many tissues discharge fluids. But you are most aware of the problem in your nose because the mucous membrane in your nasal passage is exposed and unprotected (that's also why it's the most vulnerable to attack from germs). The point to remember is this: A runny nose is not bad in itself. It is an attempt by your body to throw off an infecting agent. This is why many doctors are cautious about overusing products that block or dry up the nose of a cold sufferer.—By Erwin Di Cyan, Ph.D.

What Students Really Think About Sports

SCHOOL SPORT SCHEDULE
BASE BALL
BASKET BALL PRIORITIES

Some adults may be surprised to hear this, but when a nationwide group of high school senior boys was polled recently on 14 different things a high school should emphasize, the students ranked athletics last. What did the students feel was more important? They wanted to see more vocational skills taught to boys and girls who aren't interested in college. They wanted more programs to prepare them for family life as a spouse and parent. They asked for courses to improve students' social and psychological adjustment. They were even eager for more encouragement in traditional academic achievement! School, most of them felt, was more boring than it needed to be. Only six percent of the students found their schoolwork "exciting and stimulating." Even worse, only 30 percent thought the things they're learning in high school will be "very important" in their lives.

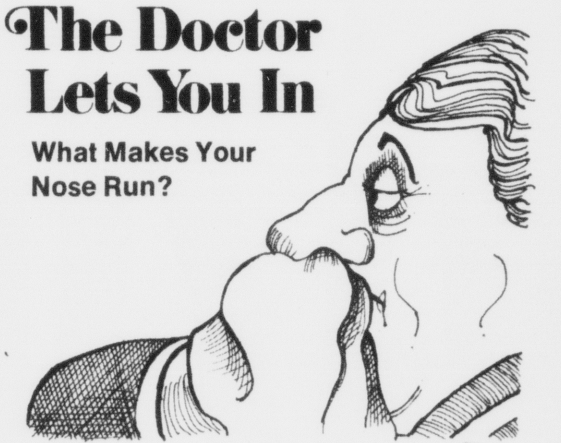
The Doctor Lets You In

What Makes Your Nose Run?



"Oh, this darn nose—what's making it run so much?" Ever said that while suffering from a cold? Well, it's a good question—what does make your nose run? Here's the answer: A cold is an infection. And when you have an infection or inflammation, all your tissues are "running"—i.e., secreting fluids. The fluid running from your nose is called mucus, a secretion containing, among other things, mucin (an "animal glue") and dead white cells that have been killed while fighting infection. When inflammation strikes, many tissues discharge fluids. But you are most aware of the problem in your nose because the mucous membrane in your nasal passage is exposed and unprotected (that's also why it's the most vulnerable to attack from germs). The point to remember is this: A runny nose is not bad in itself. It is an attempt by your body to throw off an infecting agent. This is why many doctors are cautious about overusing products that block or dry up the nose of a cold sufferer.—By Erwin Di Cyan, Ph.D.

"Did You Kill Your Baby?"

The Double Suffering of "Sudden Infant Death"

By Elizabeth McGough

The funeral for six-month-old John Jerry Price, Jr., took place on a July afternoon in North Carolina with only a few people gathered around the tiny blue-trimmed coffin. The baby's father was not there. John Jerry Price, Sr., 20, sat in the County Jail charged with assault and battery in the death of his son. An autopsy had shown that the infant had not been beaten or struck. He had died of Sudden Infant Death Syndrome (sometimes called crib death), but the father was being held anyway.

In Chicago, a distraught father raced into the hospital. His infant son had been found dead in his crib. The father was asked repeatedly, "How many times did you hit him?"

These cases are extreme. But nearly all Sudden Infant Death Syndrome (SIDS) families have been asked, "Did you give the baby any medicine before you put him to bed? Did another child hit him? Did you love this baby?" You can imagine the trauma this brings into parents' lives.

The death of any child is heartbreaking. Yet no other disease leaves in its wake the self-doubt, guilt, psychosis and charges of criminal neglect that accompany deaths from SIDS. The leading cause of death in infants under one year old, SIDS has been with us at least since Biblical times. The disease cannot be predicted, even by a doctor, nor can it be prevented. While we do not know the cause of these 10,000 to 15,000 deaths a year, we do know that the surviving families are not criminals.

To define SIDS, let's look at a typical case. An apparently healthy infant between three weeks and eight months old is put to bed. He may have signs of a slight cold. Sometime later the baby is found dead. Most babies show not the slightest trace of any disturbance. No one has heard the baby struggle or cry out. Sometimes the infant has obviously moved at the time of death, and he may have a blanket near or around the face, or may be wedged over in the corner of his crib.

Here are some basic facts about SIDS:

- SIDS is a definite disease.
- The causes are not suffocation, regurgitation or pneumonia, although sometimes death certificates list such causes in error.
- There is no suffering; death occurs during sleep.
- It is not hereditary; there is no greater chance for it to occur in one family than in another. But it is unlikely to happen a second time in one family.
- It is not contagious. Although a viral infection may be involved, it is not a "killer virus" that threatens other family members.
- SIDS rarely occurs after seven months of age.
- New environmental agents, such

This lovely lady—Rachel Carr, author of "Yoga For All Ages"—IS REPLACING DEADLY TENSION WITH SOARING NEW STRENGTH AND ENERGY! Yet, to an outside observer, it looks as though she is doing nothing at all! This is the great marvel of Healing Yoga— that it produces such phenomenal returns in beauty, strength, appearance and vitality for such a tiny investment in time or energy! No wonder it can be enjoyed by 80-year-olds, or arthritics, as well as robust teenagers! No wonder its simple postures (like this one) seem to "smooth away" both years and pounds from the very beginning! Why not try these incredibly-easy "body-reshapers" and "revitalizers" today—without risking a penny!

IS THIS THE World's Easiest Yoga?

So incredibly easy that anyone can master it! And yet so powerful that it may cut years off your appearance...recharge your body with youthful energy... turn back on sleeping "Health Glands" inside your body! And do it all—in just a few glowing minutes each day!

Call It, If You Will, "Healing Yoga!" Made Up Of SIMPLE HEALING POSTURES THAT REDIRECT THE ENERGY FLOW WITHIN YOUR BODY To Help You To:

1) Gently stretch "weak muscles" strong again! So that they gain new strength, new power, new slimming control—not by agonizing effort—but by the super-nourishing blood-flow that these stretches pour into those muscles!

2) Flood with the same super-nourishment the tragically-neglected upperbody tissues of your face, neck and hair—and thus retard the drying and collapsing process that is aging your appearance faster and faster every year!

3) Revitalizes dormant "Youth Glands" inside your body! Put gentle, soothing pressure on them for a few blissful moments each day, so they automatically burn more of the food-fuel you put into your body! So you use the fat stored on your waist, hips and thighs as a brand-new supply of energy, to ward off fatigue and sluggishness at the same exact time that you look slimmer and feel younger than you have in years!

And—perhaps most important of all—

4) Attack directly—with Nature's own health powers—unnecessary sicknesses and breakdowns that may be torturing you today! So that you feel for yourself the effect of these simple postures on such agonizing cripplers as arthritis . . . rheumatism . . . respiratory illnesses . . . high blood pressure . . . back troubles . . . insomnia . . . shattered nerves . . . and a dozen more!

Such startling relief, in fact—so quickly—that the author must share it with you, in these joy-filled words:

"At first I found the sudden intake of oxygen a little startling. I experienced a surge of vitality as though I had opened the window for a breath of fresh air; yet the quieting effect it had in my mind was hypnotic. . . . My step took on bounce, and a wonderful sensation of well-being stayed with me. The pain in my joints and back, which had plagued me for years, subsided. With relief I discarded the traction device I had used nightly . . ."

And All These Benefits Come From Simple Postures That May Seem, At First, Too Easy For You! In Fact, You May Actually Laugh At Them—UNTIL YOU FEEL THE SURGE OF NEW ENERGY COURSING THROUGH YOUR BODY!

Once again, this new, simplified, streamlined Yoga works on the proven scientific principle that you cannot force . . . you cannot strain . . . you cannot torture your body into releasing again the buried reserves of strength and vitality that are now trapped within it!

For example, you know perfectly well how exhausted you feel after ordinary strenuous exercises . . . how they become progressively more and more difficult to practice . . . how your body finally forces you to give them up, and sink right back again into ever-increasing flabbiness, sagging facial and body tissues, an ever-growing sense of feeling "old and beaten" by life!

But—right now—do you have the energy to simply lie on the floor, and breathe in and out five times in a brand-new way? It takes only minutes to learn the method! You may chuckle at it at first! Until you feel the surge of super-charged oxygen revitalizing every tired tissue of your body!

And then, do you have the energy to simply raise your arms over your head—in the special way we show you while you are lying on the floor—and stretch your body gently and luxuriously from head to toe! And feel so much trapped tension drain out of that body that you may actually want to dance around the floor in sheer delighted joy!

Yes, and do you have the energy to play a simple trick on those flabby stomach muscles, that sucks them gently in close to your spine for a few strength-producing seconds . . . and that can make you look inches thinner in just a few blissful days!

And would you like to tighten up the vital muscles in your face, chin and neck—at the same exact time you flood them with fresh nourishing blood—all with one or two simple stretching exercises! Or start slimming over-heavy calves and thighs . . . tone up sagging breasts and hips . . . the hanging flesh on the undersides of your arms—all with the same easy gentle stretching movements!

Once Again, They Produce Results That You Can Gain In No Other Way! For Example:

Why the best tranquilizer in the world doesn't cost you a penny! It's yours on page 10.

Blood-Stream Purification. Forces your body to burn up potentially damaging inner secretions that may have been clogging your cells for years. You may feel the difference—thrilling new freedom from indigestion alone—immediately!

Yoga Sex Exercises specifically designed to stimulate lagging sex glands!

What is perhaps the single most powerful pose to delay aging in the human body (page 38). And why it may release a virtual torrent of self-healing processes!

How to re-distribute weight the Yoga way! How you can look like a young person if you have an old person's bulges distorting your figure. Yoga works on those bulges to painlessly redistribute that weight over your entire body . . . and help eliminate ugly bulges that have plagued you for years!

Yoga Revitalizers For Your Face, Your Hair, Your Spine, Your Teeth!

How to flood your face with blood at least once a day—the effortless way—and not only use the power of gravity to help build up instead of tear down delicate facial tissues that are now collapsing into lines and wrinkles, but also: stimulate mental processes . . . irrigate the gums and roots of your teeth to help increase their strength and longevity . . . and flood your scalp and hair follicles with the same rich nourishing blood!

Plus:

A simple way to avoid incomplete elimination!

How to stretch lower back pains away! Make those stiff joints mobile again! That stiff spine as supple as a kitten's!

Deep internal massage! To tone up the liver, kidneys and pancreas . . . firm the stomach . . . increase the gastric fire and therefore the powers of digestion . . . lead to true inner cleanliness!

What Yoga can do for you to improve varicose veins, swollen ankles and feet!

How to restore elasticity to stiff joints—without pain—especially knees, ankles, shoulders, hips, wrists, and finger-joints!

Folds in the neck—they are not inevitable if you know this simple posture on page 30.

How to cleanse nasal passages . . . calm the mind . . . help relieve sinus and other headaches . . . reduce eye strain and fatigue . . . strengthen optic nerves and muscles—all in the same posture!

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

The crippling pain of arthritis sent Rachel Carr to the study of yoga. Following the system of exercises she outlines in Yoga for All Ages, she managed to loosen her rigid spine and knee joints and to dispense with the traction equipment she had used at night to stretch her spinal column. From that beginning, she went on to study yoga in depth and to become one of America's most noted teachers of the subject.

The great Yoga cure for over-strained nerves! Starts to work immediately, in minutes! May be worth a hundred trips to a psychologist! Its fantastic ability to induce sound sleep, even in confirmed insomniacs, may alone be worth the low price of this book!

Prove It Yourself— Entirely At Our Risk!

But there is so very much more! You really must try these great Health-Power Postures yourself to believe them! Therefore we offer this Complete Streamlined Course to you, to read and use from cover to cover, entirely at our risk!

Look again at the unretouched photograph of the author above. Realize again that, only a few years ago, this woman was in literal agony from the pains of arthritis . . . in such poor health that she could not sleep at night without traction!

Is it worth a few minutes of your time to learn the Path Back to youthfulness and health that she discovered! That now makes her feel young, strong, supple!

If it is, then send in the No-Risk Coupon . . . TODAY!

1) Gently stretch "weak muscles" strong again! So that they gain new strength, new power, new slimming control—not by agonizing effort—but by the super-nourishing blood-flow that these stretches pour into those muscles!

2) Flood with the same super-nourishment the tragically-neglected upperbody tissues of your face, neck and hair—and thus retard the drying and collapsing process that is aging your appearance faster and faster every year!

3) Revitalizes dormant "Youth Glands" inside your body! Put gentle, soothing pressure on them for a few blissful moments each day, so they automatically burn more of the food-fuel you put into your body! So you use the fat stored on your waist, hips and thighs as a brand-new supply of energy, to ward off fatigue and sluggishness at the same exact time that you look slimmer and feel younger than you have in years!

And—perhaps most important of all—

4) Attack directly—with Nature's own health powers—unnecessary sicknesses and breakdowns that may be torturing you today! So that you feel for yourself the effect of these simple postures on such agonizing cripplers as arthritis . . . rheumatism . . . respiratory illnesses . . . high blood pressure . . . back troubles . . . insomnia . . . shattered nerves . . . and a dozen more!

Such startling relief, in fact—so quickly—that the author must share it with you, in these joy-filled words:

"At first I found the sudden intake of oxygen a little startling. I experienced a surge of vitality as though I had opened the window for a breath of fresh air; yet the quieting effect it had in my mind was hypnotic. . . . My step took on bounce, and a wonderful sensation of well-being stayed with me. The pain in my joints and back, which had plagued me for years, subsided. With relief I discarded the traction device I had used nightly . . ."

And All These Benefits Come From Simple Postures That May Seem, At First, Too Easy For You! In Fact, You May Actually Laugh At Them—UNTIL YOU FEEL THE SURGE OF NEW ENERGY COURSING THROUGH YOUR BODY!

Once again, this new, simplified, streamlined Yoga works on the proven scientific principle that you cannot force . . . you cannot strain . . . you cannot torture your body into releasing again the buried reserves of strength and vitality that are now trapped within it!

For example, you know perfectly well how exhausted you feel after ordinary strenuous exercises . . . how they become progressively more and more difficult to practice . . . how your body finally forces you to give them up, and sink right back again into ever-increasing flabbiness, sagging facial and body tissues, an ever-growing sense of feeling "old and beaten" by life!

But—right now—do you have the energy to simply lie on the floor, and breathe in and out five times in a brand-new way? It takes only minutes to learn the method! You may chuckle at it at first! Until you feel the surge of super-charged oxygen revitalizing every tired tissue of your body!

And then, do you have the energy to simply raise your arms over your head—in the special way we show you while you are lying on the floor—and stretch your body gently and luxuriously from head to toe! And feel so much trapped tension drain out of that body that you may actually want to dance around the floor in sheer delighted joy!

Yes, and do you have the energy to play a simple trick on those flabby stomach muscles, that sucks them gently in close to your spine for a few strength-producing seconds . . . and that can make you look inches thinner in just a few blissful days!

And would you like to tighten up the vital muscles in your face, chin and neck—at the same exact time you flood them with fresh nourishing blood—all with one or two simple stretching exercises! Or start slimming over-heavy calves and thighs . . . tone up sagging breasts and hips . . . the hanging flesh on the undersides of your arms—all with the same easy gentle stretching movements!

Once Again, They Produce Results That You Can Gain In No Other Way! For Example:

Cleansing Breaths! Sort of Super-Sighs, that let you breathe weariness right out of your body!

Why the best tranquilizer in the world doesn't cost you a penny! It's yours on page 10.

Blood-Stream Purification. Forces your body to burn up potentially damaging inner secretions that may have been clogging your cells for years. You may feel the difference—thrilling new freedom from indigestion alone—immediately!

Yoga Sex Exercises specifically designed to stimulate lagging sex glands!

What is perhaps the single most powerful pose to delay aging in the human body (page 38). And why it may release a virtual torrent of self-healing processes!

How to re-distribute weight the Yoga way! How you can look like a young person if you have an old person's bulges distorting your figure. Yoga works on those bulges to painlessly redistribute that weight over your entire body . . . and help eliminate ugly bulges that have plagued you for years!

Yoga Revitalizers For Your Face, Your Hair, Your Spine, Your Teeth!

How to flood your face with blood at least once a day—the effortless way—and not only use the power of gravity to help build up instead of tear down delicate facial tissues that are now collapsing into lines and wrinkles, but also: stimulate mental processes . . . irrigate the gums and roots of your teeth to help increase their strength and longevity . . . and flood your scalp and hair follicles with the same rich nourishing blood!

Plus:

A simple way to avoid incomplete elimination!

How to stretch lower back pains away! Make those stiff joints mobile again! That stiff spine as supple as a kitten's!

Deep internal massage! To tone up the liver, kidneys and pancreas . . . firm the stomach . . . increase the gastric fire and therefore the powers of digestion . . . lead to true inner cleanliness!

What Yoga can do for you to improve varicose veins, swollen ankles and feet!

How to restore elasticity to stiff joints—without pain—especially knees, ankles, shoulders, hips, wrists, and finger-joints!

Folds in the neck—they are not inevitable if you know this simple posture on page 30.

How to cleanse nasal passages . . . calm the mind . . . help relieve sinus and other headaches . . . reduce eye strain and fatigue . . . strengthen optic nerves and muscles—all in the same posture!

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

The crippling pain of arthritis sent Rachel Carr to the study of yoga. Following the system of exercises she outlines in Yoga for All Ages, she managed to loosen her rigid spine and knee joints and to dispense with the traction equipment she had used at night to stretch her spinal column. From that beginning, she went on to study yoga in depth and to become one of America's most noted teachers of the subject.

The great Yoga cure for over-strained nerves! Starts to work immediately, in minutes! May be worth a hundred trips to a psychologist! Its fantastic ability to induce sound sleep, even in confirmed insomniacs, may alone be worth the low price of this book!

Prove It Yourself— Entirely At Our Risk!

But there is so very much more! You really must try these great Health-Power Postures yourself to believe them! Therefore we offer this Complete Streamlined Course to you, to read and use from cover to cover, entirely at our risk!

Look again at the unretouched photograph of the author above. Realize again that, only a few years ago, this woman was in literal agony from the pains of arthritis . . . in such poor health that she could not sleep at night without traction!

Is it worth a few minutes of your time to learn the Path Back to youthfulness and health that she discovered! That now makes her feel young, strong, supple!

If it is, then send in the No-Risk Coupon . . . TODAY!

"Did You Kill Your Baby?"

Continued

as fluoride in water, smoking or birth-control pills, do not cause SIDS. These deaths happened as often in the 18th and 19th centuries as they do now.

For parents of the tiny victims, there is at least one friend. It's called the Washington State Foundation for Sudden Infant Death Study. Through this group, parents learn that their baby was not the victim of some freakish happening, that 35 families a day in the U.S. lose a baby this way.

In a recent interview with the Seattle research-study team on SIDS, I asked Dr. C. George Ray, virologist and project director, what signs indicate a true SIDS death. He explained, "A key thing to settle right away is that we don't find any obvious cause. We rule out heart disease, meningitis, pneumonia, or any prior lesion, in autopsy. Five pathological signs recognized in SIDS death are: tiny hemorrhages (called petechiae) on membranes surrounding the lungs; fluid blood in the heart rather than clotted blood; mild inflammation of the respiratory tract, but not enough to cause death; congested lungs; and the bladder is empty." All signs are not necessarily present in all SIDS cases.

Dr. Ray further explained that two of these signs, the hemorrhages and fluid blood in the heart, are not usually evident in other causes of death.

I asked, "Would either of these appear if child abuse had been involved in the death?"

"Almost certainly not," he answered.

"Can you definitely rule out child brutality by autopsy?"

"Yes, really, we never see this in child abuse."

When a child dies of leukemia, no one dreams of accusing the family of any wrongdoing. But many people have never heard of Sudden Infant Death or do not accept it as a true disease. Many families are never told why their babies died or given any information about SIDS. Friends, grandparents and neighbors often wonder and say devastating things like: "That baby was sick. If only you had taken him to a doctor."

One community that has an organized, humane system of handling SIDS is the aforementioned Seattle-King County in Washington. Here, the victim of any suspected case is immediately brought to Children's Orthopedic Hospital for autopsy. Within 24 hours, Dr. A. B. Bergman or another pathologist of his research team telephones the family to discuss the findings. He gives them his home and office phone, should they need to call. He tells the family that brochures will be mailed immediately, and that a public-health nurse will call on them within a week. These nurses, specially trained for their role, go into the home to explain the disease to the parents and to counsel them in their grief. Mrs. Margaret Pomeroy, R.N., who has visited more than 200 families as research-project nurse, explains:

It's bad enough to lose your child. It's worse when people think it's your fault!

"Even here in Seattle, where we feel SIDS is rather well understood, we still find incidents in which families have been unfairly treated. One mother was questioned by a police officer after her baby's death. He asked, 'Where did you say you were?' She had told him she was ironing in another room. 'Were you across the street at a neighbor's?' he repeated. 'Did you go to the store?' She told him a dozen times that she was ironing. He kept going back to that question: 'Where did you say you were?' Fortunately, my visit was shortly after that. We tracked down this officer immediately to explain SIDS to him so that it wouldn't happen again."

Another volunteer role includes clipping articles on misinformation about the causes of Sudden Infant Death. These discounted theories include the widely publicized whiplash, or spinal-cord, injury; milk allergy; gamma globulin deficiency; parathyroid inadequacy. Some mothers, having lost a child to SIDS, think, "If only I had breast-fed him!" This makes no difference. Many victims have been totally breast-fed.

As Dr. Bergman, president of the National Foundation for SID commented, "It's bad enough to lose a child without a parent having to go through life fearing that he killed it."

He's right. I know. I lost my own son this way.

VERY SPECIAL PEOPLE

Many heads turned when Charles Tripp, "Armless Wonder," and his friend Eli Bowen, "Legless Wonder," rode their bicycle built for two.

The Struggles, Loves, and Triumphs of Human Oddities

As a youngster, Francesco Lentini was so shocked at what he saw in an institution for the severely handicapped that he never complained about his third leg again.

These are just a few of the many "mistakes of Nature" included in Frederick Drimmer's fascinating new book, VERY SPECIAL PEOPLE. What makes them very special is that they were all born "curiosities" and they all lived unusual lives. Like Chang and Eng, the original Siamese twins, who were joined at the chest for life. They married sisters, set up separate homes, and fathered 22 children between them!

Then there was Grace McDaniels, billed as the ugliest woman who ever lived (and her photo proves it). Believe it or not, Grace received several proposals of marriage before she accepted one from a handsome young man. They had a perfectly normal son, who grew up to be his mother's manager!

John Merrick, the grossly deformed "Elephant Man," was deserted by his heartless manager. Befriended by a kindly doctor, Merrick became quite famous and was frequently visited by Royalty.

The stories in this book are true, and we have over 65 rare photos to prove it. Never has one book been so complete. There are chapters on giants, dwarfs, fat people, armless and legless wonders, hermaphrodites (half man, half woman), bearded ladies, and numerous other human oddities.

This is not just a picture book of "freaks." The author treats these people with insight, compassion and the dignity one earns by being born different from everyone else.

VERY SPECIAL PEOPLE will also teach you one of the most important lessons that life has to offer: the incredible ability of man's mind, soul, and spirit to overcome any physical imperfection... no matter how hopeless it may appear. Read this book and you'll never indulge in self-pity again.

Only $5.95, hard covered, 412 pages, 67 photographs.

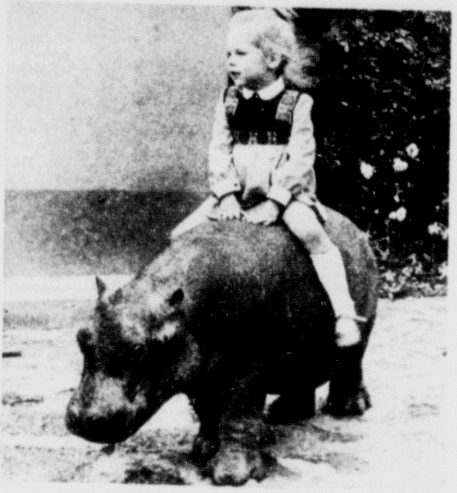
NIXON AND STEVENSON
Candidates' cookout test

In his new book, columnist Stewart Alsop recollects a day in 1956 when he was polling voters. He went up to a man raking leaves in the backyard of his suburban Chicago home and asked him if he was going to vote for Eisenhower or Adlai Stevenson. The man replied that he was voting for Eisenhower because "he's the kind of guy I'd like to invite over for a cookout." Ever since then, Alsop has applied this "cookout test" to presidential aspirants. "Nothing is more obvious," he notes, "than that Richard Nixon fails it even more abysmally than Adlai Stevenson did. His inability to arouse the kind of personal affection lots of voters felt for Dwight Eisenhower or John Kennedy has been ... his greatest source of political weakness." From "Stay of Execution: A Sort of Memoir" (J. B. Lippincott, $8.95).



BIPS

HIPPO-BACK RIDE
Almost as fun as a daddy?

"Play horse, Daddy!" Millions of weary fathers hear this, or a rough equivalent, when they come home each day. And, when they obey, it's barrump, barrump around the floor or yard while little Suzie or Johnny pounds the living daylights out of their trapezius muscles. So daddies know how Esmi the hippo feels. The 200-pound Esmi, who is said to be the world's only "hand-reared" hippopotamus, has just returned from a hard day's wallow and, presumably, wants nothing more than to curl up with the sports page. Little Suzanne Crawley will have none of that. Suzanne's father is general manager of the Longleat Wildlife Park in Wiltshire, England.

Sam Waterston

The engaging movie newcomer, Sam Waterston, comes from an Ivy League background that's strikingly similar to that of Nick Carraway, the F. Scott Fitzgerald character he plays in the movie, "The Great Gatsby." "The difference," says Sam, "is that I've never been rich." Both Waterston and Carraway attended private boarding schools and graduated from Yale University. Both came from middle-class New England families. About his own background, Sam says: "My father was a teacher at a private boarding school in New England and a great believer in good education. It's nice that my own background was so useful in getting the part. But in the sense that people think it was a privileged existence, it is a bane. Speaking selfishly, I'm grateful it was so pleasant, but I was never into the social thing."

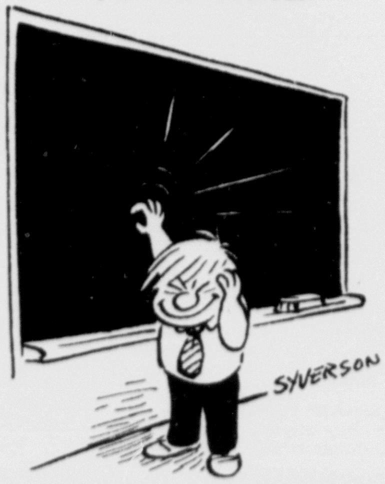
ARMOUR'S ARMOURY
By Richard Armour



ON THE NAIL

Among the things this writer hails,
Long overdue, are fingernails.
They finish off our fingertips
And help us when we come to grips.
They have their uses, quite a few:
To scratch an itch, to turn a screw,
To open letters, scrape a spot,
To peel an orange, like as not.
Although they must be clipped and cleaned,
Their worth should never be demeaned.
They're somewhat fragile, far from thick,
And just below them is the quick.
But when they sometimes break or crack,
It's none too quick when they grow back.

One of the most exciting ways to travel is by wet soap. —B. Fairweather

In England, a busful of American tourists pulled to a stop at Runnymede and one of them demanded of the guide: "What happened here?" "This is where they signed the Magna Carta," replied the guide. "When did they do that?" asked the tourist. "1215," replied the guide. Looking at his watch, the man turned to his wife and said: "My gosh, Irene, we just missed it by 40 minutes!" —Dan Bennett

My daughter, who lives in London, took her three-year-old son to watch the wedding procession of Princess Anne and Capt. Mark Phillips. That evening his father asked him what he had seen. His reply was, "I saw the horses' legs." —Mrs. C. M. Styan

My young son recently came home from school and told me that his teacher had said he was the second quietest student in the room. I suggested he should try to be the quietest. After a moment's thought, he said, "I can't be. The quietest is a girl."

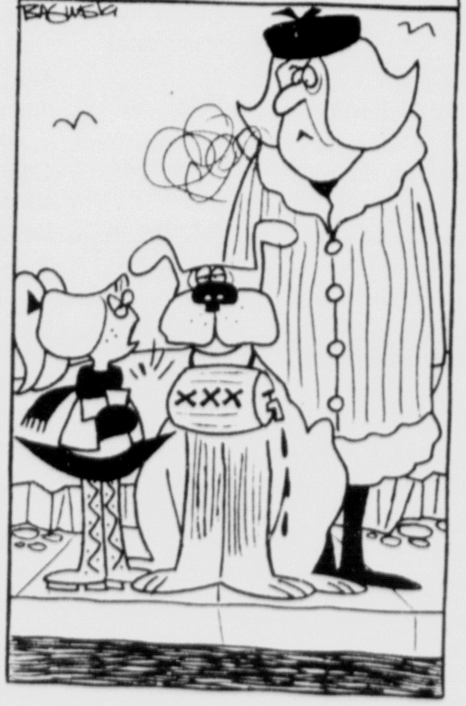
LITTLE EMILY



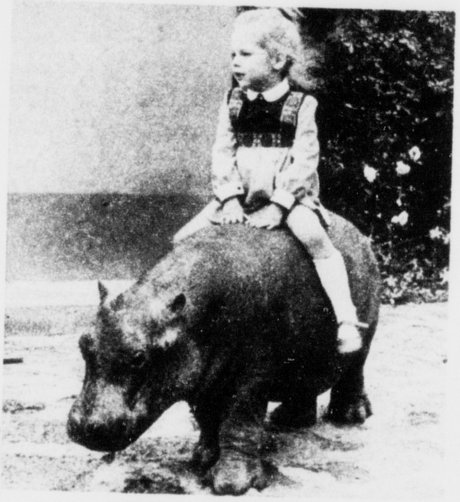
"Relax! It's only hot chocolate!"

What in the World!

Wide World

NIXON AND STEVENSON
Candidates' cookout test

In his new book, columnist Stewart Alsop recollects a day in 1956 when he was polling voters. He went up to a man raking leaves in the backyard of his suburban Chicago home and asked him if he was going to vote for Eisenhower or Adlai Stevenson. The man replied that he was voting for Eisenhower because "he's the kind of guy I'd like to invite over for a cookout." Ever since then, Alsop has applied this "cookout test" to presidential aspirants. "Nothing is more obvious," he notes, "than that Richard Nixon fails it even more abysmally than Adlai Stevenson did. His inability to arouse the kind of personal affection lots of voters felt for Dwight Eisenhower or John Kennedy has been . . . his greatest source of political weakness." From "Stay of Execution: A Sort of Memoir" (J. B. Lippincott, $8.95).



BIPS

HIPPO-BACK RIDE
Almost as fun as a daddy?

"Play horse, Daddy!" Millions of weary fathers hear this, or a rough equivalent, when they come home each day. And, when they obey, it's bar-rump, barrump around the floor or yard while little Suzie or Johnny pounds the living daylights out of their trapezius muscles. So daddies know how Esmi the hippo feels. The 200-pound Esmi, who is said to be the world's only "hand-reared" hippopotamus, has just returned from a hard day's wallow and, presumably, wants nothing more than to curl up with the sports page. Little Suzanne Crawley will have none of that. Suzanne's father is general manager of the Longleat Wildlife Park in Wiltshire, England.

Sam Waterston

The engaging movie newcomer, Sam Waterston, comes from an Ivy League background that's strikingly similar to that of Nick Carraway, the F. Scott Fitzgerald character he plays in the movie, "The Great Gatsby." "The difference," says Sam, "is that I've never been rich." Both Waterston and Carraway attended private boarding schools and graduated from Yale University. Both came from middle-class New England families. About his own background, Sam says: "My father was a teacher at a private boarding school in New England and a great believer in good education. It's nice that my own background was so useful in getting the part. But in the sense that people think it was a privileged existence, it is a bane. Speaking selfishly, I'm grateful it was so pleasant, but I was never into the social thing."

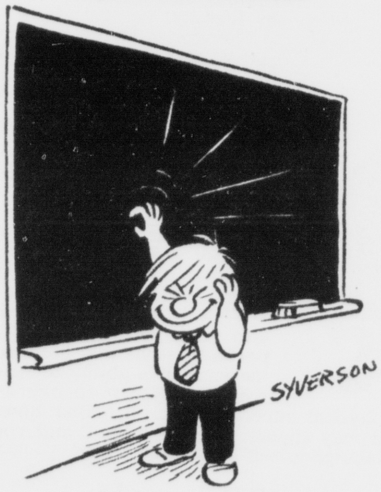
ARMOUR'S ARMOURY
By Richard Armour



ON THE NAIL

Among the things this writer hails,
Long overdue, are fingernails.
They finish off our fingertips
And help us when we come to grips.
They have their uses, quite a few:
To scratch an itch, to turn a screw,
To open letters, scrape a spot,
To peel an orange, like as not.
Although they must be clipped and cleaned,
Their worth should never be demeaned.
They're somewhat fragile, far from thick,
And just below them is the quick.
But when they sometimes break or crack,
It's none too quick when they grow back.

In England, a busful of American tourists pulled to a stop at Runnymede and one of them demanded of the guide: "What happened here?" "This is where they signed the Magna Carta," replied the guide. 50 Fast Growing Plants To Make 100 Feet of Formal Hedge

Imagine! a 100 foot Privet Hedge that dresses up your landscape as it protects it . . . for less than 4c per foot of hedge! Or, for faster effect and more dense growth, order 100 plants for only $7.65 and plant every 12 inches. Free cultural instructions help develop in shortest time possible. We ship the Ligustrum Species planting stock we think best suits your climate, and of same size stock and fine quality as feature offer above.

*Varieties personally selected by our experts as being suitable for most parts of the U.S. In severely cold climates, check for hardiness. Blooms illustrated are reasonably accurate as to shape of varieties named although they may vary because nature often turns out tints and shapes found nowhere else. While not anticipated, should we sell out one or more nursery grown varieties, we may include instead any equally suitable planting stock, nursery grown or native collected and of equal or greater beauty. EVERGREENS—in extremely hot Southern Climates check for growth ability. OUR 3 Way Guarantee protects you.
